Jack London's Prophecy. How Strikes Are Broken. Diamond in Her Tooth.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO, Jack London, able young magazine writer who thought he was a revolutionist, wrote "The Dream of Debs," describing an imaginary general strike in San Francisco.

He showed the "wealthy fighting over meat," telegraphers refusing to carry any messages except those "relating to peace terms" in connection with the strike, told how the working class remained happy, well fed and quiet at home, while "millionaires and paupers fought side by side for food, and then fought with one another after they got it."

IT IS NOT like that in San Francisco, where, with the general strike a reality, citizens take good naturedly the conditions and inconveniences. Strikers promise to "protect patients in twenty-three hospitals," and allow doctors to have gasoline. They have stopped ferryboats running between Oakland and San Francisco, very inconvenient for those that would like to cross.

Strike sympathizers say:

"Citizens should submit to the necessary conditions and help the strikers in their efforts."

What would these sympathizers say if employers, instead of strikers, had shut down the ferries and told the people:

"You may eat in nineteen of the three thousand restaurants in San Francisco, and at no others?"

THERE ARE various ways of dealing with strikes, when those in power wish to end them. In France, Briand, head of the government, himself a radical and Socialist, did not approve the strike on French railways. The majority of the strikers were still within the age of military service. Briand called them all out "to the colors" and put them on trains, not as strikers, but as soldiers. They were told to run those trains well, or be shot for military insubordination. They ran the trains.

THE CHICAGO PULLMAN strike of 1894 started in May, spread to interstate commerce, affecting nearly all the railroads running out of Chicago.

Eugene Debs, in charge of the strike, acted with great energy. Interstate transportation of foodstuffs in several western states was hindered, and United States marsnals were pushed aside by the strikers. Grover Cleveland, then President, sent United States troops to Chicago, although Gov. Altgeld had not requested federal assistance.

Debs announced:

"The first shot fired at the strikers will precipitate revolution, and civil war."

The United States government indicted Debs. Several, including strikers, sympathizers and bystanders, were shot and killed by United States troops. Thousands of railroad cars were burned by strikers.

Cleveland, in a proclamation, warned that law enforcement had broken down, and all lending aid or encouragement to strikers after three o'clock on the afternoon of July 10 would be dealt with as public enemies. On July 10 Debs was arrested. On the 11th the strike broke.

The same Grover Cleveland, you will remember, settled a difficulty with England concerning Venezuela in short order. It would be interesting to know what he would do if he were here now, in connection with the British debt.

TROOPS BALK OUSTER OF LANGER

Court Defied as Two Men Seek to Rule North Dakota

BISMARCK, N. D., July 18.—(AP.)—Two men acting as Governor of North Dakota clashed in exercise of executive authority today as Lieut. Gov. Ole H. Olson, acting Governor by court order, called on the adjutant general's office to withdraw National Guardsmen and end state-wide martial law ordered by William Langer, recently convicted of a felony and ordered ousted by the State Supreme Court.

Olson also issued a proclamation revoking Langer's call for a special session of the Legislature, scheduled to convene Thursday noon.

For the time being it was uncertain whose orders would be followed.

SOLDIERS ON DUTY

National Guardsmen, armed with bayonets, were scattered throughout the Statehouse, still acting under Langer's martial law order issued last night. Although Langer declared martial law to cover the entire state, Bismarck was the only city where guardsmen were used.

Assistant Adjt. Gen. H. A. Brocopp called outt he troops last night on orders from Langer. Adjt. Gen. Earle Sarles was expected to take charge of the situation soon.

Brocopp received Olson's order to withdraw the troops, but said

BRAVES DEFEAT PIRATES

BRAVES FIELD, BOSTON, July 18.—The Braves defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates this afternoon in the first game of a doubleheader.

Paul Waner, Pirate rightfielder, had an attack of stomach trouble and wasn't in fit condition to play today. Jensen took his place.

Larry French was on the slab for the Buccos. He was opposed by Fred Frankhouse.

The Ptitsburgh management announced today that the game scheduled between the Pirates and Dodgers at Brooklyn Friday had been moved back to Sunday to makeup a doubleheader.

FIRST INNING

PITTSBURGH — McManus threw out L. Waner. Jensen doubled to center. Frankhouse tossed out Lindstrom. Jensen took third on a wild pitch. McManus threw out Vaughan. One hit. One left.

BOSTON—McGee bounced a hit off Traynor's glove. Jordan sacrificed. Suhr to Thevenow who covered first. Beregr hit to Vaughan and McGee was trapped between second and third and went out, Vaughan to Traynor to Thevenow. Lee singled to right sending Berger to third. Thevenow

Senator McAdoo Five-Minute Divorce Probed

LOS ANGELES, July 18.—(AP.)—The divorce of Senator William Gibbs McAdoo and Mrs. Eleanor Wilson McAdoo, daughter of the late President Wilson, faced an inquiry today by Presiding Judge Frank C. Collier, of the Superior Court.

Mrs. McAdoo was granted the divorce by Superior Judge Allan B. Campbell in a hearing lasting about five minutes yesterday—within 20 minutes after she filed suit.

Judge Collier said:

"It would be possible for a complaint to be filed and go through the regular processes in the time which this action took, but I want to know that all the processes were duly followed in the case."

Judge Collier said his investigation "will not void the decree."

WEATHER BLAMED

The Washington weather and differences of interest were blamed by Mrs. McAdoo for the divorce, obtained on grounds of incompatibility. She said:

"As a Senator, Mr. McAdoo is obliged to spend the larger part of each year in Washington. The climate does not agree with me and it is impossible for me to live there. I have and always shall have the greatest admiration and affection for Mr. McAdoo."

The Senator, who did not contest the action, said she "correctly stated the reasons for the separation."

The court approved a property settlement, which was not made public, and awarded custody of the children, Eleanor, 19, and Faith, 14, jointly to the parents.

ACTION DEFENDED

Henry Grivi, attorney for Mrs. McAdoo, said:

"Each step was taken according to the rules of court and law. Under the rules it could have been done even faster. If Judge Collier wants to investigate he is perfectly at liberty to do so."

Senator McAdoo is 70 years old; Mrs. McAdoo 43. McAdoo's first wife, Sarah Fleming McAdoo, died in 1913.

Miss Wilson, youngest daughter of the President, and McAdoo, then Secretary of the Treasury in her father's cabinet, were married at the White House in 1914. They have homes in Los Angeles and Santa Barbara.

Children Menaced By Runaway Horse

R. M. Loughbridge, of 2044 Fairland street, Rieck-McJunkin Dairy Company driver, risked his life today stopping a runaway horse in Wilkinsburg that narrowly missed tramping down several children.

The horse, owned by the Duquesne Baking Company, bolted down Rebecca and Swissvale avenues when frightened by an automobile, according to Frank Reimer, driver of the baking wagon.

Oakland's 'Hermit' Killed in Plunge

The hermit-like life of Thomas Finneran, 70-year-old cripple, ended suddenly today, when his body was found lying in an alley next to 3257 Park View avenue, Oakland, where he had lived in an attic for 10 years.

Leaning out of the attic window, he had apparently been stricken with a heart attack and fell to his death, reports to the Coroner's office stated.

U. S. PAYOFF FOR ORTALE BANK

Funds Available For Closed Institution Tomorrow

Working with record speed, the government's new Federal Deposits Insurance Corporation was preparing to pay off depositors in the Bank of America Trust Company four hours after announcement of its closing. Actual payment will begin tomorrow.

This morning the Pennsylvania Department of Banking announced the bank had been taken over and closed. At 2 p. m., Francis C. Brown, counsel of the insurance corporation, announced that notices were being mailed this afternoon to the first group of depositors, whose deposit balances have been verified.

Notices will be sent out to other groups just as soon as the balances are verified, he said, and depositors can then get their money at the bank.

SECOND IN NATION

This is the second bank in the country to be liquidated by the guaranteed deposits' plan worked out by the government.

The government stepped into the situation shortly after arrival here from Washington of W. R. Milford, assistant to the chairman of the Deposits Insurance Corporation.

Milford declared:

"The corporation is very anxious to expedite the payment of all claims against the bank, but it must be remembered that it

EMPLOYERS SIFT OFFER OF UNIONS

BULLETIN.

SEATTLE, July 18.—(AP.)—Strikers and sympathizers said by police to number 1,200 stormed Pier 41 here today, but were repulsed by guards equipped with tear gas bombs.

Nine ships were being loaded by nonunion men behind the police lines. The rioters scattered under clouds of the gas, but quickly reformed for a new assault on Pier 40 nearby.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 18.—(AP.)—Two vital conferences were called here today in efforts to reach an immediate settlement of the general strike.

Mediators, encouraged by the strikers' offer of arbitration, sought ways and means of bringing the union representatives and employers together for a quick termination of the mass walkout involving 100,000 men in the bay region.

The ship owners were to consider the proposal of the general strike committee for mediation of the maritime strike, involving 27,000 workers along the Pacific Coast.

MAYOR IN CONFERENCE

Mayor Angelo Rossi and the other mediators also gathered.

Discussion of union labor's resolution yesterday proposing arbitration "gave us something to work on," said Mayor Rossi, adding:

"We know what the unions are willing to do and are waiting to see how the shipowners feel about it."

A demand that the general strike be called off immediately was made by Seattle employers. They stated openly the proposal made by the unions at San Francisco "will not be accepted because it's a trick."

The employers were quoted by the Seattle Citizens' Emergency Strike Committee, as saying:

"We will not do a thing toward arbitration or otherwise until and unless you call off the general strike."

The food blockade in the San Francisco Bay region meanwhile was broken, with trucks bringing in huge loads of fresh produce, meats and other foodstuffs.

Some 350 butcher shops here opened their doors with special union permission.

Meanwhile Chief of Police William J. Quinn issued terse orders to "keep the streets clear of loafers and vagrants," and the National Guard concentrated its force of 1,000 men along the waterfront.

Chief Quinn's orders followed

NORMAN SAILS ON U. S. VISIT

LONDON, July 18. — (AP.) — Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, and Mrs. Norman, left today for a short vacation on the coast of Maine.

They plan to travel as far as New York with George L. Harrison, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Norman and Harrison recently conferred at Basel, Switzerland.

As Norman embarked on the Europa, at Southampton, the usual hush-hush atmosphere which surrounds his journey was noticeably lacking. He said

"As you will have noticed, I have not made any secret about my departure. I published it. I cannot disclose the purpose of my visit nor can I tell you how long it will last."

The bank head himself put a notice in a London morning newspaper that he was going to America on a vacation.

Vienna to Confiscate Knickerbocker Book

VIENNA, July 18.—(AP.)—The state's attorney today ordered the confiscation of H. R. Knickerbocker's book, "Will War Come to Europe?" he charged the writer with "unjustified attacks on the government of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss."

LaGuardia Studies Plan to Tax Meals

NEW YORK, July 18.—(INS.)—A tax on all incomes over $3,000 and on all meals consumed in restaurants costing 50 cents or more was the latest scheme to raise money being considered by Mayor F. H. LaGuardia today.

ALFONSO SAFE IN FATAL CRASH

International News Service.

VIENNA, July 18.—Former King Alfonso of Spain, and his son and daughter were involved in an automobile accident shortly after midnight last night in which one man was killed and three persons injured, it was learned today. As far as could be learned King Alfonso was not hurt, nor were his children.

As King Alfonso, the Infanta Juan and the Infante Maria Christine were returning from a wine garden their car collided with the car of Carl Peterson, of Copenhagen.

Peterson's car was hurled against a street car and wrecked. Carl Suetana, a Viennese lawyer, who was riding with Peterson, was killed. Peterson, his 20-year-old sister, Helen, and Karin von Schott, a friend, were badly injured.

Ted Husing's Wife Asks Reno Divorce

RENO, July 18—(INS.)—Charging cruelty, Mrs. Helen G. Husing today filed suit for divorce against B. (Ted) Husing, well known radio sports announcer. The Husings were married in Brooklyn June 8, 1924, and have one child. An agreement was reached out of court on property matters and the custody and support of the child.

Blues Singer Files Bankruptcy Petition

NEW YORK, July 18.—(INS.)—A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was on file today for Irene Taylor, popular blues singer and radio star, who listed liabilities of $5,938 and said she had no assets.

Murder Charge Faces Student in Beauty's Death

NORMAN, Okla., July 18.—(AP.)—A murder charge was filed today against Neal Myers, El Reno youth sought for investigation into the death of Marian Mills, University of Oklahoma beauty queen in a purported effort to prevent motherhood.

Although preliminary findings of an autopsy have not disclosed the cause of death, Hazel Brown, fraternity house cook at whose home the campus beauty died eight days ago, told investigators that the tragedy followed use of a quack remedy to escape motherhood.

Young Myers, a junior pharmacy student at the university, vanished after summoning a physician to the Brown apartment and was last reported seen in Brownsville, Tex., and Matamoros, Mexico, after abandoning his motor car at Houston, Tex.

Mrs. Brown is detained here as a material witness.

County Attorney Paul Updegraff, in drawing up the murder charge, specified that the accusation was based on "an illegal operation."

Although they could not determine the exact cause of death, the three physicians who performed the autopsy said they were certain it was not from natural causes.

Gandhi Guarded, Death Plot Hinted

CALCUTTA, July 18.—(AP.)—Police have taken elaborate precautions to protect the life of Mahatma Gandhi when he comes here tomorrow.

There has been a flood of inflamatory literature in which Gandhi is described a "traitor" and authorities fear a plot to assassinate the gentle leader of millions of Indians.

Woman, Two Men Killed in 'Triangle'

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 18.—(AP.)—C. C. Smith, about 60, chief brand inspector at the St. Joseph Stock Yards; his wife, 50, and David McCoy, about 55, died in a triple shooting early today in a Big Lake cabin near Bigelow, Mo., apparently the result of a double murder and suicide.

The three St. Joseph residents went to the two-room cabin last Friday, renting it from Milton Easter, who lives 100 yards away.

GREEN DISOWNS FRISCO STRIKE

CHICAGO, July 18.—(AP.)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, today asserted that the general strike at San Francisco was neither ordered nor authorized by the A. F. of L. and has no national significance as far as organized labor is concerned.

"When working people are engaged in an economic life or death struggle, it does not seem appropriate for their friends to engage in comment which might be used against them by their enemies. At the moment, therefore, when the intense struggle is approaching a climax, it is not so much a question of the wisdom or the unwisdom of the action taken. Instead, an honorable settlement of the industrial conflict upon an equitable basis, should be the question of supreme concern to all fair, just and social-minded people."

Green was in Chicago on his way to Racine, Wis., where he will address the convention of the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor tonight. He planned to return to Washington tomorrow.

Severe Earthquake Rocks City of Colon

COLON, Panama, July 18.—(INS.)—A severe earthquake rocked the City of Colon at noon today. Buildings swayed and dishes rattled on the shelves. The populace rushed into the streets, but no serious damage was reported.

A sharp earthquake shock was felt last night.

Father of Quadruplets Falls Dead From Shock

International News Service.

BUCHAREST, July 18.—Michael Petculap, 56, whose wife was an expectant mother, raised his glass and had a hearty laugh in the village inn at Inodesti today when the innkeeper pointed to an item in a Bucharest newspaper, later proved erroneous, reporting that a Mme. Jordas in the town of Jontesti had given birth to sextuplets.

Ten minutes later the young assistant to the town doctor came running into the inn to inform Petculap that his wife had given birth to four babies and that "mother and children were doing well."

Petculap blanched, staggered and fell into a chair. When the doctor arrived he was dead.

Vice Witness Fears Son, Seeks His Arrest

Declaring she feared the wrath of her son, Mrs. Charlotte Ryan, whose allegations of police graft and protected vice before the Police Research Commission last week implicated that same son, swore to a surety of the peace warrant against him today.

Constables from the office of Alderman John A. Joyce, 342 South street, said they were searching for the son, Joseph Ryan, but thus far had been unable to locate him.

Going to Public Safety Director A. Marshall Bell yesterday, Mrs. Ryan appealed for police protection, the director revealed. Mrs. Ryan said her son, according to Director Bell, had threatened her because of testimony given before the commission. She asked Bell to order her son's arrest. The Director said he advised her to go before an alderman and swear out a warrant.

She also appealed to Bell to get her son into a government hospital because he was gassed in the war. The director said he told Mrs. Ryan she would have to appeal to military authorities.

Mrs. Ryan told the Police Commission that her son was employed by May (Billy) Scheible in an alleged Oakland disorderly house and through him, she said, she was able to learn the contents of otherwise secret records.

UNIONS CALL FOR ARBITRATION IN SAN FRANCISCO STRIKE

SHIP OWNERS MEETING TO SIFT OFFER

'Vigilantes' and Police Raid Headquarters Of Communists

extensive attacks yesterday by self-styled vigilantes and police on known Communistic meeting places.

Observers said they saw union buttons on the caps of many men among the crowd which demolished the radical headquarters.

The record of the more than 300 men arrested in the raids were being scrutinized to determine whether any of them can be reported as undesirable aliens.

The general strike committee called opposing forces in the Pacific Coast maritime dispute for a "showdown," voting to arbitrate differences and send all strikers back to work as soon as shipowners agree to recognize the maritime unions.

Though the proposal failed to forecast specifically an end to the general walkout of nearly 100,000 union workers, which has paralyzed the normal service to 1,300,000 people of the metropolitan area, it was quickly hailed as a possible way out of the demoralizing crisis.

The resolution, adopted by the committee by a vote of 207 to 180 after seven hours of debate, followed a day of increasing tension as 30,000 East Bay workers joined in the walkout and raids and riots struck the region.

TROOPS HELP POLICE

National guardsmen, in control of the San Francisco waterfront and touring the East Bay cities in squads, aided hard-pressed police in guarding the beleaguered region.

Increasing evidence of federal concern over the spreading strike was seen as Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, branded the general strike a "bloody insurrection" in an address at Berkeley, and P. A. Donaghue, chief examiner of the new National Labor Reference Board, arrived here by airplane from Washington.

United States Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, author of the original labor disputes bill, hurried to Portland, Ore., where a general strike threat was held back by a union "strategy" committee pending action he may take.

After his arrival at Portland last night, Senator Wagner conferred with Gov. Julius L. Meier, of Oregon.

UNION PEACE MEETING

The San Francisco general strike committee's "peace" call came from a turbulent meeting of the members at the Labor Temple, at which John A. O'Connell, secretary of the Central Labor Council, collapsed and was taken to his home in a serious condition.

In its resolution the strike committee called upon the 27,000 marine and dock workers of the coast to submit to arbitration by a federal board appointed by President Roosevelt.

Employes likewise were asked to place issues in dispute in the hands of the President's board, and the entire proposal was made contingent upon employer recognition of all the 10 maritime unions whose strike has crippled shipping since May 9.

LONGSHOREMEN ANGRY

The longshoremen's demand for complete control of hiring agencies, which has been a stumbling block in mediation attempts thus far, was not mentioned in the resolution. Maritime union members of the committee came from the meeting obviously angry, and Harry Bridges, militant longshoremen's representative, declared the proposal "will never be accepted by the men."

Immediate consideration of the olive-branch offered by waterfront and shipping employers, however, was announced by Thomas G. Plant, their authorized spokesman.

The President's mediation board, now preparing to conduct an election among striking seamen for the purpose of determining what leaders shall represent them, also will meet on the matter, O. K. Cushing, spokesmen for the board, said.

Edward Vandeleur, president of the Central Labor Council and chairman of the general strike committee, said:

"Labor has done its part. The matter rests entirely with the shipowners now."

ROOSEVELT PLEA URGED

The resolution urged the governors of California, Oregon and Washington and the mayors of all cities affected by the widespread conflict to:

"Immediately appeal to the President of the United States to act in this emergency * * *."

Members of the General Strike Committee declined to comment on their possible course should the arbitration edict be rejected. Conservative members indicated, however, that they believed the maritime unions, if they refused consent, would lose general strike backing and that the employers, in the event of failure to accept the offer, would lose public support.

The wave of walkouts extended to Seattle where union boilermakers voted 222 to 48 for "sympathy" action in support of the maritime workers.

Gov. Clarence D. Martin, of Washington, urged "all citizens who are primarily interested in the public welfare to join in expression" against general strikes which he asserted could not win.

EAST BAY WORKERS

While declaring no lessening of the general strike in the East Bay cities was planned, William H. Spooner, secretary of the Alameda County Labor Council, said the actions of the San Francisco strike committee were being watched closely. He intimated that the East Bay unions would follow the lead of their embattled fellow workers across the bay.

Belief that strikers may need protection "from the fury of citizens" unless the mass walkout in the bay region, now in its third day here, is ended was expressed by Acting Gov. Frank F. Merriam, of California. He said:

"Three hundred men in Oakland wanted to arm themselves and go after the strikers. I am not going to advocate anything like that, but I feel the people have a right to exercise the spirit that marked the activities of their forefathers and determine these questions for themselves. In such an event the state will have to protect the strikers as well as the other elements."

In his address at Berkeley, Gen. Johnson declared that he considered the position of the shipping interests in the maritime dispute "extreme and unreasonable."

Thumbs Down On Thumbing By QUIN HALL

HARRISBURG, July 18.—Advice to the motorist to turn "thumbs down" on the hitch-hiker was given by the Governor's Committee on Street and Highway Safety in its report made public here today.

The report said:

"The hitch-hiker is a lawbreaker and deserves no consideration. The only way to eliminate the hitch-hiker is to ignore him."

Pennsylvania has a law which provides a fine of $2, and costs, or imprisonment for not more than one day for itinerants who "ride on the thumb."

It is pointed out that the hitch-hiker has become increasingly reckless and it is upon the head of the sympathetic motorist that the blame for accidents is placed.

Acting Police Superintendent Jacob Dorsey will launch a crusade on the hitch-hiker here if the city law department will allow him, the former traffic inspector announced today.

Several times, Dorsey revealed, he has attempted to rid the city's boulevards of the "thumb-pest," but each time the law department has intervened. It has been the opinion of city solicitors in the past that under existing state laws the hitch-hiker is within his rights so long as he does not stand in the street or highways and thus interfere with traffic.

TROOPS MASSED IN TRUCK WAR

International News Service.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 18.—With National Guardsmen quartered in the armory ready for instant duty an anxious city today awaited developments in the strike of 7,000 union truck drivers.

Mobilized on orders of Gov. Floyd B. Olson for "the preservation of law and order," the 151st Field Artillery remained ready for action.

There was fear that the present strike would result in more of the same rioting and bloodshed that marked the first drivers' strike two months ago, during which two men were killed and scores injured.

City markets remained closed and the strike, which went into effect at midnight Monday, brought commercial trucking to a standstill.

The arrival of the Rev. Francis J. Haas, Labor Board mediator, from Washington, was welcomed in the hope that the clergyman can lead the way to a settlement of the dispute.

TIGHE BATTLES THREE RIVALS

M. F. Tighe, veteran president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, faced three rivals for his job today, as efforts were being made to have one of the candidates withdrawn from the race.

A new candidate, Frank Bennett, of Granite City, Ill., had entered the race, making it a four-cornered affair. Bennett is described as being an independent.

Tighe, who has headed the union for 15 years, is seeking re-election, strongly opposed by a rank and file slate headed by Earl J. Forbeck. While a technicality stood against Forbeck's candidacy, it appeared unlikely his name would be eliminated from the lineup.

George Williams, of Canonsburg, originally picked to head the rank and file slate, had not withdrawn his name, although attempts were being made to have him do so. It was reported he agreed not to oppose Tighe, who decided suddenly last week to run again.

FOOD BLOCKADE RELAXED

SAN FRANCISCO, July 18.—(AP.)—Fresh fruits and vegetables appeared in San Francisco stores today for the first time this week as the general strike committee relaxed the original rigidity of its mass walkout blockade.

Grocers seeking supplies, however, were forced to get two permits to cross the double line of strike pickets and National Guardsmen separating them from the commission house district.

The strike committee granting the permits demanded that all trucks be driven by union teamsters, who also have been engaged in carrying food supplies to the 51 restaurants in the city which are being permitted to serve those San Franciscans who eat out.

STRIKE TROUBLE EASED OVER NATION

Moves for Arbitration Arouse Hopes for Industrial Peace

Associated Press.

From Oregon to Alabama the nation's turbulent labor currents swung into smoother channels today.

The most striking example was in San Francisco, where the general strike's board of strategy took the lead to divert the longshoremen's controversy into a more peaceful course.

Arbitrate or lose our support, the general strike committee virtually told the maritime workers. "Left Wing" leaders roared in vain The Waterfront Employers' Association was to decide today its stand.

Police and self-appointed vigilantes raced each other late yesterday to raid Communist and other radical centers in a determined drive to dam the unrest at its font.

WAGNER SEEKS PEACE

Portland's proposed general strike was held in abeyance to permit labor leaders to confer with Senator Wagner, the government's representative, in a move for mediation.

The Mayor of Houston, Tex., named a committee to seek a solution of the maritime strike which has taken three lives there.

Miners at the Raimond red ore mine, near Birmingham, Ala., returned to work. Their agreement with the Republic Steel Corporation wrote the last chapter in a strike which called out 8,000 workers and cost two lives.

In Montana, where 5,800 employes of the Anaconda copper mines are on strike, mine properties at Butte were stoned.

Rioting at one mill inaugurated the textile mill workers' strike in Northern Alabama. The walkout and consequent shutdowns left an estimated 15,000 employes of 20 mills idle. Strike leaders predicted 22,000 would be out soon.

ARRESTS IN ST. LOUIS

St. Louis police today arrested 46 of the 1,008 striking employes of the Century Electric Company, where a strike has been in progress since June 29, for the purpose of "averting future attacks on working employes of the company."

Eight hundred truck drivers struck in Baltimore and a spokesman for their union said as many more would be called out today.

In New York, the national labor committee of the Socialist party called on its locals to demonstrate their solidarity and support of the San Francisco strikers.

Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's Union, stated emphatically there would be no sympathy strike on the eastern seaboard. Other organizations were pressing for a walkout.

Driver 'Exam' Post Closed for Picnic

Closing of the examination unit of the state highway patrol on Washington boulevard, near Highland Park, next Tuesday afternoon, was announced today.

Driving examinations will be suspended for the afternoon while the "boys" of Troop B, whose headquarters are Greensburg, go picnicking at Idlewild Park, Ligonier. The examination unit will reopen the following morning at 9 o'clock.

KEEP STRIKING! RED PAPER CLAMORS

Arbitration Efforts Fought in Drive For Communism

Universal Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 18.

Strike! All out! Stand firm! Fight to elect five militants from your local!

These are the headlines that appeared in the Western Worker, which describes itself as the western organ of the Communist party, U. S. A. (section of the Communist International) in the issue of July 23, 1934.

In a half-page editorial the district committee of the Communist party came forward and showed their stand on the strike situation in this city. The following statements are excerpts from that editorial:

"All workers of the West Coast should FOLLOW 'FRISCO and STRIKE IN UNITED RANKS. A GENERAL STRIKE of the entire West Coast will once and for all establish the rights of the workingman.

"The Central Labor Council in San Francisco put a phoney one over on us when they ordered the local unions, on ONE DAY'S notice, to appoint five members each to constitute the CENTRAL GENERAL STRIKE COMMITTEE. — INSIST ON ELECTING FIVE IN YOUR OWN LOCAL. ELECT LIVE WIRES, ESPECIALLY MILITANT FIGHTERS. The Vandeleur-Deal-Kidwell leadership is a sellout crowd.

"ROOSEVELT MAY COME HERE. Whether he personally comes, or his National Longshoremen's Board asks again, DON'T YIELD TO ARBITRATION.

"SPREAD THE STRIKE. Send committees to other towns in Northern California. Keep on spreading the strike.

"You can strengthen this strike and win through strengthening the ranks of the militant workers, especially by JOINING THE COMMUNIST PARTY. Because our party is under constant attack, we take measures when necessary to protect our members from becoming known."

Further on in the paper is an advertisement asking workers to join the Communist party and explaining why their "enemies direct their main fire against the Communists."

"It is the Communist party which: INITIATED THE GENERAL STRIKE—FIGHTS ALL SELLOUT MANEUVERS — IS THE MOST ACTIVE MILITANT FORCE—CALLS FOR GENERAL MARINE STRIKE IN U. S.—WON SEAMEN TO COME OUT WITH LONGSHOREMEN!"

Junk Dealers Taxed In War on Thefts

Seeking to break up thefts of building equipment and tools and their sale as junk, the McKees Rocks Borough Council last night passed an ordinance requiring junk dealers and peddlerse to pay annual license fees of $25 and $5 and to hold purchases of junk from 24 to 48 hours to permit police inspection.

The higher levy applies to permanent dealers, while the $5 fee is to be assessed occasional peddlers.

PRINCE WOULD WED INA CLAIRE

International News Service.

NEW YORK, July 18.—Prince Ferdinand von Lichtenstein, handsome dark-haired scion of the ruling house of the small European principality of Lichtenstein, was in New York today and very much in the company of Ina Claire, famous stage and screen actress.

The prince admitted frankly when questioned that he was very much in love with Miss Claire and would like to marry her as soon as possible. He said:

"Yes, I would like to marry Miss Claire, only the church will not countenance the marriage until I get an annulment of my previous one. And I am getting that."

STRIKE DETAILS FOR ROOSEVELT

The President is believed to have received full wireless reports on attempts to negotiate settlement of the strikes, but he made no public comment.

The cruisers Houston and New Orleans slowed their pace to 18 knots, a speed which would bring them July 24 to Napoopoo, where President Roosevelt will get his first glimpse of the western side of the island of Hawaii. The cruisers will then proceed to Hilo and Honolulu.

The route being followed will bring the two crafts nearly 2,000 miles south of San Francisco by noon today.

At Clipperton Island yesterday the President refrained from fishing, but his son, Franklin, and a party dared the dangerous coral reefs of the island and were rewarded with a catch of tuna and pompano.

Edgewood Woman Wills $21,000 to Kin

An estate valued at $21,000 was disposed of in the will of Mrs. Annie M. Kuhn, 125 Dewey street, Edgewood, which was filed today. Following a bequest of $5,000 to a daughter, Miss Helen Kuhn, the will directed that the remainder be divided equally between three daughters, Helen, Mrs. Katherine Aber and Mrs. Margaret Robb.

UNIONS DUPED, PETER B. KYNE DECLARES

Put in Hole by Reds, Says Writer; Lots of Talk, Little Action

By PETER B. KYNE
Novelist and Short Story Writer.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 18.—Having spent some nine years of my life on the San Francisco waterfront (seven of them in the wholesale lumber and shipping business), I have been through a few strikes. Today, with San Francisco paralyzed by a general strike, which is stated to be the most momentous strike in the history of the United States, I say that strikers aren't what they used to be, and that this general strike is 90 per cent talk and 10 per cent direct action.

That's because it is a strike organized and directed by Communists who have sold union labor a pup.

And, after two days of a general strike, union labor is beginning to realize that it has not only crawled into a hole, but has dragged the entire aperture in after it. I confidently look forward to seeing the honest, thinking union citizens of my city start a house-cleaning about tomorrow and then the dove of peace will perch on the Ferry Building and preen her ruffled feathers and all will be merry as a marriage bell.

FEW GET EXCITED

I haven't seen anybody getting excited about this strike except the Communist wrecking crews and the men they beat. And the wrecking crews have learned the value of terrorism. Hence 90 per cent talk (threats) and 10 per cent direct action.

There is work, on the average, for 1,500 longshoremen in San Francisco and the average wage of one regularly employed is about $60 a week. Since last December I am informed the longshoremen's union has increased its membership to about 4,000.

This extra membership does not really expect to work. They vote. They are rabble rousers.

The public has been urged to think that the subject of control of the hiring halls is the casus belli; but it is not. It is recognition of the union. The leaders in the longshoremen's strike do not want peace. They want chaos.

PICTURE CHANGING

With 4,600 National Guard troops in the city and ample federal troops awaiting the call; with the municipal street car lines in operation; with the good nature of our citizens gradually giving way to irritation as the strike strategy committee issues orders and permits and, in general, assumes to take charge of the city and its industrial and economic life, the picture is changing abruptly.

It is beginning to dawn on the strike committee that 50,000 men cannot order the lives of the 1,500,000 people who dwell in the Bay area; that it cannot deprive them of heat and transportation and force them to live on a limited ration of canned goods, ham and bacon. Already, on the second day of this general strike, they are cracking.

UNIONS PERILED

Everybody, with the exception of the strikers, knew that a general strike meant ruin to union labor in this city—and San Francisco does not wish to see that. We have wages and standards of living out here that would amaze the remainder of our country if it but knew about them. We are prideful and wish to retain that condition. And, of course, we shall, but not at the price of public convenience, risk, hoodlumism, short rations, lies and deception.

The people know the truth, the truth is mighty and will prevail.

When the unions clean house we shall have an honorable peace. Already they are issuing brooms.

Ship Workers Held, Deny Strike Rumors

GENOA, Italy, July 18.—(AP.)—Four members of the engine room gang of the Dollar liner President Hayes remained in jail today while the steamer proceeded toward America.

They were charged with disorderly conduct for fighting deck hands while the ship was en route to Genoa from Naples. Authorities denied rumors the crew of the President Hayes struck in sympathy with San Francisco marine strikers.

Leaders in Strike Drama Grin and Bear It

SAN FRANCISCO, July 18.—(AP.)—Hard work—that's what the general strike is to the headliners in the grim drama, but they take it with a grin.

Mayor Angelo J. Rossi even remembers to keep a red carnation in his lapel. He likes a fight.

As for Harry Bridges, his pale eyes are the blue of tempered steel, not of water. He is the born leader of the striking longshoremen. Tactics are his specialty.

The Australian — he sailed through the Golden Gate in 1920 possessed of little more than a razoredged tongue—has an "army of devoted longshoremen. His head wags and his arm wave as he talks, but his words are the words of an orator.

Mayor Rossi once was a florist. He, too, is a good public speaker. In less strenuous times he delights to partake in civic ceremonies.

Sharply contrasting with Bridges in his convictions is Edward Vandeleur, veteran labor leader and chairman of San Francisco's general strike committee. Also small of stature and well liked among the laboring men, he has labored incessantly in their behalf. He first opposed a general strike and then obtained the concession that food could be brought into the city.

Frank Merriam, California's acting Governor, is at Sacramento, but thousands of National Guardsmen make him the mightiest factor in preserving peace. The former Iowa farm boy, Nebraska school teacher and California Sunday school superintendent won't work on Sunday unless it is unavoidable. He dresses quietly, speaks with a deep voice. He is 69.

Industrial 'Paradise' Torn by Labor Dispute

KOHLER, Wis., July 18.—(AP.)—Mediation of the strike at the Kohler plant, held in a state of siege through last night by the 1,000 pickets parading about the huge plumbing factory in the heart of this "model industrial village," began today.

First efforts toward settling the strike of members of the American Federation of Labor union were started under the direction of the Rev. J. W. Maguire, Kankakee, Ill., a member of the Chicago Regional Labor Board.

Walter S. Kohler, president of the company, was the only person to enter or leave the plant yesterday. Although boos greeted his arrival, pickets peacefully lifted up ropes to let him enter. The order was:

"Let the boss through."

Kohler, who believed his dream of an industrial "paradise" would come true with the founding in 1913 of a village where employes would be housed comfortably in an independent community, was reported by associates to be gravely worried by the dispute.

Arthur Kuhn, president of the union, which demands shorter hours, more pay and recognition as a bargaining agent, lives in a home adorned with landscaping just like other dwellings in the community. Kohler also lives in the village.

COUPLE TELLS OF ATTACK BY TURKS

U. S. Professor, Wife Robbed By Soldiers, Held for Hours

ISTANBUL, Turkey, July 18.—(AP.)—Prof. Richard Carman Borden, of New York University, today described how a group of Turkish soldiers had attacked him and his wife Sunday night and wrecked a canoe trip through Turkey.

The soldiers, after quick action by the United States embassy, are under arrest and the equipment which they stole from the Bordens has been returned. Prof. Borden said:

"We had been studying local customs and native dialects. Our sole weapon was a toy pistol for warding off savage dogs.

"Soldiers with bayonets took all our money, which amounted to $60, knocked me down, maltreated my wife, and kept us for seven hours in a guardroom, threatening us, and not allowing us to communicate with our authorities.

"Finally they broke the rudder of our collapsible boat, pushed us aboard and drove us out to sea with a heavy wind blowing.

"We ultimately regained land and made contact with the American authorities who, together with the Turkish police, were most helpful.

"Most of our belongings were restored, but we are catching an Italian liner for Athens tomorrow."

The Bordens, making a trip down the Danube and through the Black Sea toward Istanbul had halted Sunday night at Bakirkeuy on the shore of the Marmora outside Istanbul and pitched their tent close to the military powder factory.

RECORD TUNNEL OPENED BY KING

LIVERPOOL, July 18.—(AP.)—The largest underwater highway of its kind in the world, the Mersey tunnel connecting Liverpool and Birkenhead, was opened officially today by King George.

More than half a mile longer than the Holland tunnel of New York, the tube under the Mersey River stretches 11,380 feet from the mai entrance in Liverpool to the main entrance in Liverpool to

Hundreds of Americans, including many vacationing college students, swelled the crowd celebrating the completion of an eight-year project with a seven-day pageant.

A living bouquet, made up of thousands of children dressed as flowers, was among the spectacles.

King George pressed a golden switch to roll back huge green and gold curtains, then formally declared the tunnel opened. It is named the Queensway in honor of the Queen.

The engineers responsible for the design of the $35,500,000 tube conceded they owe much to the experience American engineers gained on the Holland tunnel. In addition to the main tube, of four traffic lanes, there are two-lane tributaries connecting the docks, which give the whole a length of 15,465 feet.

Weather Conditions

The lake region high drifted southeastward, and is now centered over Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia, and covers most of the country east of the Mississippi. The skies are clear over most of the country, the only cloudy area being over the Upper Mississippi Valley, in the front of low pressure, that extends from Manitoba southward to Mexico. Rainfall for the last 24 hours was light and was limited to the Mississippi Valley and the plains states, and to scattered local showers east of the Mississippi River. Temperature changes were slight, toward cooler over the Appalachian Mountains, and towards warmer over the Central valleys. Temperatures of 100 degrees or higher occurred yesterday in Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, Missouri, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Texas. The highest reported is 108 degrees at Kansas City.

River Conditions

The rivers are falling. Stage at Franklin is minus 2-10ths foot; Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 10.5; Pittsburgh, 10.0; Dam No. 4, 9.4; No. 6, 9.5; No. 10, 8.5, and No. 12, 8.5. The dams are up.

GIRLS! DON'T GO NUDIST FOR ROMANCE

International News Service.

DELAWARE, O., July 18.—Warning women to stick to cosmetics and fancy frocks and not to resort to nudism in their hunt for romance, Jasper Adams, former university professor and self-styled leader of 10 nudists held in County Jail here, today described his once-clothesless clique as "martyrs to our cause."

In an exclusive interview in his jail cell, Adams, who was taken into custody when deputies raided their remote woodlands camp, attacked critics of nudism as "prudes."

A one-time chemistry teacher in the Ohio Northern University at Ada, Adams declared that "sex loses its morbid interest with nudism" and insisted that "there was nothing obscene in our camp." But he warned:

"No one should ever go to a nudist camp to get a sweetheart. One doesn't fall in love there. Girls are not enticing under such conditions and girls seeking romance should get dolled up with fine clothes and cosmetics."

Those held in jail here are six men, two women and two boys, one six and one seven years old. The latter were held because Sheriff C. E. McKenie said "I don't know what else to do with them." The others, including the parents of the lads, were charged with "offending the peace and dignity of the state."

Their trial was expected to develop into a spectacular test case over the practice of nudism and it was indicated that the International Nudist Conference, with headquarters at New York City, may aid them.

Adams, now unemployed and living at Columbus, explained:

"We have two aims in becoming nudists. The first is health building. Although it is quite true that we might receive the same health benefits by wearing loin cloths or shorts, we could not achieve our second aim—to get rid of obscenity. There is nothing obscene about the nude body.

"The pictures on the wall of the jail here and the acts in many night clubs and theaters are more suggestive than a nudist camp.

"We allow no pairing off in our camp, no off-color jokes and no posing.

"People who criticize nudist camps are prudish persons who have never seen a camp and know nothing about them. There are a few 'bootleg' camps where immorality may be practiced, but not in true nudist camps."

Adams' nudist camp was located in a woodlands section nine miles south of here and had been walled in by high piles of brushwood.

MORALS CHARGE DEFENSE OPENS

LOS ANGELES, July 18.—(AP.)—Testimony that the morals of Dave Allen, former head of the Central Casting Bureau, were under discussion long before his indictment growing out of alleged "wild party" was before a Superior Court jury today.

Appearing as the first of a number of defense witnesses who Defense Attorney Jerry Geisler said would prove state charges a "frame-up," was Mrs. Myra McKinney Russell, secretary of the Motion Picture Supporting and Extra Players' Association. She testified that Miss June DeLong, film extra and the state's star witness, came to her office and wanted to "make a statement concerning the morals of Dave Allen," four months before he was indicted by the grand jury on charges of an offense against public morals.

Allen and Miss Gloria Marsh, red-haired actress, are accused of participating with Miss DeLong in an immoral party at her apartment last April 26.

Mrs. Russell said:

"I finally told her to go to the District Attorney."

GEMS STOLEN, PARTY PROBED

International News Service.

WESTERLY, R. I., July 18.—Theft of $25,000 in jewels owned by Mrs. Russell Forgan, of Chicago, from the home of her sister, "Meadow Crest," at Watch Hill, was disclosed today by police.

Mrs. Forgan, who discovered the theft Monday night, first communicated with the concern in New York which insured the gems, and last night gave police meager details of the theft.

The largest item among the gems was a matched pearl necklace, containing 105 stones, valued at $12,000. Diamond rings, bracelets, pins and pendants were included in the loot.

Mrs. Forgan told police she wore most of the jewels at a party she gave Saturday night in honor of Mrs. Clifford Rodman, of Chicago, a house guest. She said there were 14 guests at the party. She had no occasion to use the gems again until Monday, when she discovered their loss.

ZOO BEARS KILL JOKING KEEPER

DENVER, July 18.—(AP.)—Countless times Charles E. (Pap) Wyman, 76, a keeper at the City Park zoo, had playfully turned the hose on two of his charges, Teddy and Lady Yellowstone, shaggy grizzily bears.

They liked it, opening their mouths to let the water trickle down their throat.

But today the bit of foolery had cost both the keeper and the bears their lives.

Infuriated by the stream of water in his face, Teddy attacked Wyman. His mate joined him. Together, before help could reach the aged keeper in the bear pit, the animals mauled and clawed him to death.

Newsboy Flier Dies When Plane Crashes

SOUTH BEND, Ind., July 18.—(AP.)—Herbert Downey, 17-year-old newsboy-pilot, crashed to his death on the Bendix municipal airport from an altitude of 200 feet early today while his father, State Game Warden Glen Downey, looked on from the ground.

Homer Stockert, who taught Downey to fly, said the youth was attempting a 360-degree turn too near the ground.

PRIEST TRAPS AUTO SHEIKS

A campaign on "auto sheiks" annoying women in the vicinity of the Sacred Heart Church and the Calvary Episcopal Church, both at Shady avenue and Walnut street, today resulted in the fining of two youths.

The Rev. Thomas F. Coakley, pastor of Sacred Heart, caused the arrest last night of Vincent Nuscianze, 33, of 5640 Penn avenue, and Michael B. Milkas, of 123 Fourth street, Rankin. It was testified the men were cruising around the streets of the district and annoying women. Magistrate Charles Papale fined them $25 each in the East End Police Court.

Sheriff Association Elects New Officers

George N. Barnes, of Dauphin County, was the retiring president. Other officers named were: Vice presidents, Sheriff Frank A. Robinson, Elk County, and Thomas J. Evans, Schuylkill County; secretary-treasurer, Dallas C. Shobert, Wilkes-Barre, and trustee, former Sheriff Robert H. Braun, Pittsburgh.

JUNIOR CRUSOE SAVED BY RAINFALL

Proves He's 'Tough' In Surviving Elements

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

HARTSDALE, N. Y., July 18.—Bobby Connor, 21-month-old baby, who played a junior Robinson Crusoe in a thicket for five days, appeared to be making a winning fight for life today.

Under treatment by a group of medical specialists for exposure, hunger and thirst, a hospital bulletin reported Bobby improving and showing no alarming symptoms.

The bulletin, issued by Dr. Claude W. Munger, superintendant of Grasslands Hospital, read:

"Temperature, 99; pulse, 120 per minute; respiration, 28 per minute. Child appears to be strong, is quite restless this morning. Are no alarming symptoms."

SURVIVED ELEMENTS

With the virtual elimination by authorities of their original theory of kidnaping, the recovery of the lost Bobby created public wonderment as to how a baby could survive the elements and the lack of food and drink for almost 120 hours.

Bobby Connor may lay claim to being the toughest baby in the world. This Junior Tarzan also takes his place among the great adventures of 1934.

It was at 6 p. m. last Thursday, that Bobby tired of his sandpile and set forth on an exploratory jaunt which kept the nation in suspense for five days.

He toddled westward (where all true pioneers head) toward the unknown. The spot in the underbrush where the baby was found is about half a mile from a paved highway. Perhaps Bobby took to the broad highway and then cut into the jungle to see what he could see.

WANDERED A MILE

The distance from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Connor, is only one-half mile in a direct line but it is probable that Bobby toddled twice as far before he collapsed in a space shaded by the junction of two stone walls.

The fact that Bobby was found alive in his jungle retreat was probably due to a benevolent stretch of weather. A checkup by International News Service of the weather conditions prevailing during his five-day absence showed that the temperature only averaged 74.3 degrees with a life-saving rainstorm occurring midway in his period of isolation.

Dr. Munger, of Grasslands Hospital, agreed that the heavy rain on Sunday probably had kept the child alive.

The parents of Bobby, when not visiting their baby in the hospital, are staying at an unrevealed residence in order to avoid the crowd of curious tourists who have motored to the Connor home since news of his recovery was given to the world.

Roger Pryor's Wife In Reno for Divorce

LOS ANGELES, July 18.—(AP.)—The Times says Mr. and Mrs. Roger Pryor are planning a divorce, Mrs. Pryor being now in Reno.

Pryor, stage and screen actor and son of Arthur Pryor, American composer and bandmaster, made his debut in "Moonlight and Pretzels" and is Mae West's leading man in her "It Ain't No Sin" picture, which is being retitled and revised. The Pryors have been married nine years.

HOUSE TO HOUSE FILM REFORM DRIVE ON

NEW YORK, July 18.—(AP.)—The Interfaith Council of the League of Decency planned today to ask members of every family in New York City to pledge themselves not to attend questionable movies.

The executive committee of the league has divided the five boroughs of the city into districts and will send canvassers into every New York home.

The Rev. Joepha McCaffrey, pastor of Holy Cross Roman Catholic Church, Catholic member of the committee, said:

"We would have the moving picture interests understand that this is a serious, determined and sustained effort for the permanent purging of motion pictures of indecency, crime portrayal and lewdness."

Father McCaffrey and a delegation of Protestant and Jewish clergymen conferred with Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia, Police Commissioner John F. O'Ryan and License Commissioner Paul Moss at City Hall.

FIGHT 'TAXI DANCES'

They told the officials they would fight indecent stage and dramatic productions as well as indecent movies and also would seek the abolition of taxi dance halls.

Father McCaffrey at the end of the conference said he had been assured full co-operation by the Mayor, but that any details regarding taxi dance halls or other matters would have to come from the Mayor.

The Mayor said, in regard to the latter:

CHARGE 'AX GRINDING'

HOLLYWOOD, July 18.—(AP.)—A counterblast against certain phases of the so-called "movie cleanup" movement was loosed yesterday by the Screen Writers' Guild and the Authors' League of America. "Ax grinding of special interests" was charged.

The writers expressed resentment at "the intemperance, hysteria, injustice and in some cases outright falsehood which characterizes certain expressions" of the current protest against "evidences of vulgarity and bad taste" in movie entertainment.

Power Rates Loom Again as Major Roosevelt Issue

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Revival of the electric power question by President Roosevelt's letter to Secretary of the Interior Ickes, saying he wished to establish a national power policy committee within the Public Works Administration, is taken to mean that this program still remains one of the chief objectives of the administration. The duty of the committee, which is headed by Secretary Ickes, is, in the President's words, "to develop a plan for closer co-operation of the several factors in our electrical power supply" so that "national policy in power matters may be unified and electricity may be made more broadly available at cheaper rates."

As far as attention from the President is concerned, this problem has been so long dormant that it was beginning to be asked if he was going to be content with what had already been projected. The Tennessee Valley development having been got under way, Boulder Dam under construction, the Bonneville Dam in Oregon and Grand Coulee in Washington started, it was thought by some that the administration might rest without inaugurating new plans.

Justification for this feeling was found in the defeat by the Senate of the St. Lawrence waterway treaty. Hostile comment at that time was to the effect that, if the President was determined to have ratification of the treaty, he could get it by bringing pressure to bear on certain Senators whose votes were necessary for the purpose. At one time it was reported that "the heat was being turned on," but that appeared to be incorrect, for the treaty was defeated and the votes which were to be swung into line for it were unmoved.

This caused some critics to say that the President had lost interest in the power question and that further developments would not be pushed. The President's letter to Secretary Ickes seems to dispose completely of that judgment and to indicate rather that he is as determined as ever to have a broad national power development in order to reduce the cost of electricity to all classes and thus insure its more extended use.

SAD DISAPPOINTMENT

What happened to prevent the passage by Congress of the bill for a census of the unemployed, which had been sponsored by the Democrats, has just been told by one of those who had a part in administering the lethal dose. Democrats were very much in favor of the bill because it would require in the neighborhood of 250,000 persons to take the census and, in a campaign year, that represented a valuable asset in the way of patronage. The scheme did not look so good to Republicans, however, and they opposed it vigorously in the House, but without effect. In the closing days of the session, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic leader in the Senate, went to the White House to consult the President as to his wishes and learn what legislation was regarded as "must." He came back to the Senate with the list and talked it over with the Republican leaders, as is the custom, in order to learn what part of the list might meet with opposition.

The Republican leaders found no fault with the measures presented to them and all seemed smooth for the program. Then, of a sudden, Leader Robinson learned that the President also wished the census bill passed. He went to the Republican leaders, whom he had previously consulted, and declared frankly that he was in a hole and would they help him out. He said he had not known of the census bill when he talked with them before and would they please also agree not to oppose it. The answer, according to the story, was in effect:

"We love you Joe, but not that much."

FARLEY PLEADS

After Senator Robinson's failure Postmaster General Farley tried his hand. He made a trip to the Senate to point out to the Republicans how important this unemployment census was, how necessary to an understanding of conditions and what a boon to the country.

The Republicans retorted:

"All right, if it is to be such a benefit to the nation, we will not oppose it, but on condition that the work is not to begin until after November or about the first of the year."

Mr. Farley couldn't think of postponing so important a matter that long. He urged the necessity of prompt action and early results, but each time met the steely, understanding glance of the Republican leaders. Mr. Farley, being a practical man himself, understood perfectly that they understood and finally gave up the task of persuasion. So that was the way the census bill did not pass.

Stratosphere Fliers Plan Aerial Survey

RAPID CITY, S. D., July 18.—(AP.)—A proposed airplane survey of the territory over which the stratosphere balloon is expected to float is the latest plan of aeronauts who are awaiting suitable weather for ascent into the thin upper air.

Maj. William E. Kepner, pilot, announced yesterday he expects to fly over Southeastern South Dakota and perhaps Northwestern Iowa to familiarize himself with landmarks as a precaution against becoming "lost" on the balloon expedition.

Ex-Vet Commander Faces Year in Jail

SHAMOKIN, Pa., July 18.—(AP.)—Joseph W. Maus, former state commander of the United Spanish War Veterans, must repay $1,000 he is alleged to have swindled from that body or go to jail for a year, under a court ruling yesterday.

Conviction in December, 1933, of applying $3,000 of the organization's funds to his own use, Maus claimed he made restitution for the full amount. Counsel for the veterans contended, however, that $1,000 still is due.

LUPE WHOOPEES HER FAREWELL TO TARZAN

By HARRISON CARROLL
International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, July 18.—Living up to Hollywood's new code, Tarzan and his mate will make a final gesture tonight to show the world they are parting friends.

There will be a small party at Lupe Velez' Beverly Hills home to celebrate the Mexican star's birthday, and Johnny Weissmuller was the first guest invited to attend.

Surrounded by their friends, the film couple bid adieu to their marriage. For, tomorrow morning, not so many hours after the festivities have concluded, Lupe goes before a judge to ask her legal freedom.

Johnny will not contest the suit, so it is expected that finis will be written to the romance of the pair, which culminated in a Nevada airplane elopement last year.

One of the swimming champion's birthday gifts to his estranged wife will be a mate to her tiny Chihuahua dog. He has several other things in mind, but is keeping them secret to surprise Lupe.

The appearance of the film couple together at the birthday party is one of a half dozen similar episodes staged by divorcing pairs in Hollywood within the last few years. Eddie and Audrey Sutherland started the custom when they gave a divorce party at the breakup of their marriage. Only a few nights ago, Director Dudley Murphy and his wife celebrated their decree with a gay party at filmland's new rendezvous, the El Rey Club.

FIGHT BREWERY RECEIVERSHIP

A petition seeking to oust Louis Wechsler as receiver of the Bentleyville Brewing Company, Bentleyville, Washington County, was filed in Federal Court by Mary Voss and Rudolph C. Becker, of New York, trading as Voss Ice Machine Company, a creditor of the brewing concern.

Becker avers he was a member of creditors' committee and the petition seeking receivership of the company was filed without him being advised, and described it as a "friendly action" brought by Charles M. Gleicher, May 16. The petition alleges that Gleicher is not a creditor but a stockholder, who paid nothing for his stock.

The bill further avers that the brewing company is indebted to general creditors in the sum of $33,743.21, and in the opinion of the petitioners, a mortgage held by George C. Moeller of $90,000 was created by him for the purpose of incurring these debts, and subsequently using the mortgage with which to wipe out the claims of creditors and secure an unlawful advantage over the creditors.

Judge Schoonmaker granted a rule on Wechsler, returnable September 4, to show cause why he should not be removed as receiver. The petitioners alleged the brewing company owes them $3,237.79.

FRENCH, NAZIS IN LOAN TRUCE

PARIS, July 18.—(AP.)—French holders of Dawes and Young loan bonds were assured of the payment of their interest today by a Franco-German agreement reached in Berlin guaranteeing Germany a favorable balance in her trade with France.

The arrangement, which is expected to be signed soon, promises that the French will buy enough German goods to give Germany a balance of about 200,000,000 francs ($13,200,000) annually after the imports from France and the bonds' interest—amounting to about 150,000,000 francs ($9,900,000) annually—are paid.

Bowman Replies To Pinchot on Turner Ouster

MILFORD, July 18.—(AP.)—"Gov. Pinchot had wrong information" about the dismissal of Dr. Ralph E. Turner from the University of Pittsburgh faculty, Chancellor John G. Bowman said in a letter to the Governor, who disclosed the contents today.

The Governor had written a protest to the university chancellor, threatening a legislative investigation of the dismissal of Dr. Turner, whose friends said he was dropped because of liberal utterances.

Chancellor Bowman referred the Governor in his letter to Congressman Henry Ellenbogen for an expression of his attitude in the matter. Bowman told Ellenbogen that Turner had "sneered" at religion.

Gov. Pinchot, revealing the Bowman reply, said:

"I have no comment at all. As you see, none is necessary."

Chancellor Bowman's letter read:

"I have your letter of July 11, and I note that Mrs. Stegeman, in acknowledging it, enclosed a copy of a recent letter written by myself to Congressman Ellenbogen.

"I am very sorry indeed that you had received, as it seems to me, so much wrong information about the matter.

"With kind personal wishes, I am faithfully yours,

"John G. Bowman."

TRUNK KILLINGS HOLD WAITER

BRIGHTON, England, July 18.—(AP.)—Tony Mancini, a "stuttering waiter," pleaded not guilty today when formaly charged with the hammer murder of Mrs. Violette Kaye, 42-year-old professional dancer.

Mancini, who was charged under the name "Jack Notyre," was remanded to jail for a hearing July 26.

Mrs. Kaye's body was found stuffed in a trunk in the cellar of a lodging house here Sunday and Mancini was arrested in London yesterday after a widespread search.

In the trunk were the head and arms of another woman, believed those from the torso found a month ago in a trunk at a railway station here.

Britain Speeds Plan To Double Air Force

LONDON, July 18.—(AP.)—The finishing touches today were put on Great Britain's plans to double her air force at a cabinet meeting in 10 Downing Street.

It was understood that the cabinet agreed on an increase of at least 50 squadrons during a period of years. When such extension should be completed, Great Britain would have an air force equal to any nation "within striking distance."

ORTALE BANK CLOSED FOR PAYOFF

takes a little time to work out the details and people must have patience."

Handling the paying end of the business will be a complete banking organization to be known as the Deposits Insurance National Bank of Pittsburgh. Bruce P. Greene, of Columbus, will be in charge of the bank.

Across from the bank will be the claims department with W. M. Taylor, of Washington, in charge.

The closing of the Bank of America Trust Company was announced by Dr. William D. Gordon, banking secretary, after a last-minute conference with directors and officers of the bank failed to evoke a satisfactory reorganization plan.

It finally brought to a head the situation which has prevented depositors of the institution from realizing on their claims against the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, which had insured small deposits.

AGREEMENT REACHED

In announcing the closing of the bank, Dr. Gordon also announced deposits up to $5,000, instead of to $2,500, as previously announced, will be paid by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Closing the bank, Gordon said, in part:

"A reasonable period of time has elapsed since the plans for reorgazation were formulated and it has been clearly demonstrated that it is not possible to raise the necessary capital for the reorganization.

"In the latter part of the last session of Congress, the insurance limit was raised to $5,000 per deposit account and today the representatives of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation agreed with me that this upper limit of $5,000 would be applicable in the case of the Bank of America Trust Company.

"In order that all depositors who had balances over $5,000 and who are not thus protected by insurance might not suffer any loss, Directors (Michael) Manella, (R. D.) Thomas, (Dominic) Navarro, (F. W.) Wimmer, (Charles) Ross and (Salvatore) Sunseri agreed to contribute voluntarily sufficient cash to pay in full this other group of depositors.

"Therefore, as a result . . . every depositor in the institution will be paid in full and thus no depositor will suffer the loss of a single penny.

". . . I have been assured that the corporation plans to begin the machinery of paying off quickly as it is humanly possible to do so."

THE PAY-OFF

The pay-off of the insured deposits includes all but about $350,000 of the total, approximate $1,157,000 at the close of business, April 19.

The institution was placed on a restricted basis at the time its president, W. P. Ortale, was charged with embezzling $106,700 of the institution's funds. Since then, Ortale has denied his guilt, has said he wished to help in reorganizing the bank and has accused Gordon of blocking his moves.

Gordon's decision to close the bank came last night after Ortale, Gordon said, and a reorganization committee failed to raise required funds.

ACTION DEFERRED

Meanwhile, Gordon announced that, by request of a reorganization committee of the Fifth Avenue Bank, he would defer action on a large R. F. C. loan until a proposed liquidation plan was completed.

Present prospects indicate that the institution will be the first in the Pittsburgh district to avail itself of the legal right to liquidate under its own receivers, or trustees, confirmed and approved by Common Pleas Court.

With consent of 90 per cent of depositors and creditors of the bank (in dollars) and of a majority of stockholders (in number of shares), Gordon can surrender all interest in the bank to the chosen receivers.

AWAITS COLLECTION

Gordon announced the committee had asked him to defer action on a $610,000 loan until a plan for this liquidation is agreed upon. In that way, the receivers can determine if they want the money on the government's terms. The loan awaits collection at present, Gordon said:

"It was stated that it was the consensus of opinion of the depositors that the bank be liquidated under the special plan of liquidation provided for under the Department of Banking code, which provides that the Secretary of Banking may surrender possession to permit of a special plan of liquidation . . .

"I have agreed to await the 30 days for the report of the committee with respect to the suggested special plan of liquidation."

PARTY MURDER ALIBI OFFERED

SAN FRANCISCO, July 18.—(AP.)—Millard Hickman mounted the witness stand at his murder trial yesterday and told the story he hopes will save him from the gallows.

The 45-year-old marine engineer narrated events of the evening of May 12 and accounted almost to the minute for actions in the early hours of May 13, when Miss Louise Jeppesen, 23-year-old Ogden (Utah) girl, was being attacked and strangled in Golden Gate Park.

He recounted with a calm that seemed wooden the details of the night of revelry which preceded the finding of Miss Jeppesen's body by a stableman before dawn in a tunnel at the park.

He said there were sharp words while they were alone in his apartment and he told her maybe she had "better take her hat and coat and go home." She put them on and left, but he did not accompany her, he said.

His story left no time when he could have driven to Golden Gate Park with Miss Jeppesen, there to attack and kill her.

15 WOMEN HURT ON ELEVATOR

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 18.—(AP.)—Fifteen women, two of them with broken backs, are in hospitals, injured in the fall of an elevator while their Ladies Aid Society visited a wholesale grocery plant.

The most seriously injured are Mrs. Rose Lytton, fractured spine and broken ankle; Mrs. Minnie Jones, fractured spine, and Mrs. Rose Elkins, fractured leg.

Others suffered broken bones in their feet, fractured ankles, broken ribs and shock.

LANGER DEFIES DAKOTA COURT

Whose orders members of the Legislature would follow remained problematical. Langer in a telegram last night informed them to convene Thursday. Olson today wired the legislators he had filed a proclamation with the Secretary of State revoking Langer's special call.

ORDER DELIVERED

The order to withdraw the guardsmen was handed personally by Olson to Brocopp.

Leaders in the Olson group said that if Sarles refused to accept Olson's order revoking martial law, it was possible the federal government would be asked for soldiers to restore order.

Service of a writ of quo warranto on the Governor was necessary to complete the Supreme Court proceedings in which the justices ruled, 4 to 1, last night that Langer's conviction of a conspiracy to solicit political contributions from federal relief workers disqualified him from holding office.

The court held that Langer's conviction, a felony under the federal law, took away his citizenship, hence his rights as an elector, and that therefore he was not eligible to continue to serve as Governor.

The court plans to issue the writ today. Lawyers questioned whether Langer's authority ceased with the issuance of the court's decision or must await issuance and service of the quo warranto writ.

DISORDERS FEARED

Langer gave as his reason for declaration of martial law the possibility of threats to peace and order by federal relief workers of Bismarck, who conducted demonstrations in front of the state house Monday. Besides the shattering of a window by one worker, there were no other disorders.

Political opponents charged that Langer inspired the strike to serve as a basis for his declaration of martial law.

After the workers had issued their demands on federal relief officials, Langer addressed and advised them to strike if necessary to enforce their request. The workers cheered Langer and voted to strike for 10 days.

Bismarck streets were peaceful today after demonstrations last night by approximately 200 persons, including some of the federal relief strikers, who paraded through the streets shouting, "We want Langer."

Today

Mr. Dooling, as leader of Tammany, is very young, only 41. Tammany has always thought a leader should be over 50. Croker and Murphy were over 50. Some Tammany men feel that Mr. Dooling is "too highly educated." At Fordham College, he studied Greek and Latin as well as law.

MR. DOOLING'S conspicuously broken nose is a souvenir of a football game played in his college days. Other important Tammany men have had broken noses, less justifiable.

Tammany is interested in the fact that Mr. Dooling's victory means greatly increased power and glory for Mr. Eddie Ahearn. The fathers of both Mr. Dooling and Mr. Ahearn were Tammany leaders before them and the sons are not political amateurs.

AT PAULSBORO, N. J., a good-looking young woman, not identified, with red hair and a diamond set in one tooth, was found dying in the street after a brutal beating. She died without speaking.

Such an incident, in our crime days, is common enough, but the "diamond set in one tooth" interests reporters and detectives and will give the case publicity.

Fitzsimmons, genuine prize-fighter, had various diamonds set in his teeth, rejoiced in them, and pulled his mouth far to one side to show you those in the large back teeth.

WELL-MEANT efforts of men often go wrong. Some one paid a German band to go to the entrance of the Tombs Prison in New York and play "The Prisoner's Song" loudly for an hour "to cheer the prisoners." The band played just enough music to go with the words:

"If I had the wings of an angel,
O'er these cruel prison walls I would fly;
I'd go back to the arms of my darling,
And there I'd be will-ing to die."

Then came a furious noise, shaking of steel doors, howling and yelling from the seven hundred prisoners, and a keeper to say:

"Get away from here before they push the front of the building on top of you."

It seems that real prisoners do not like the "Prisoner's Song" as much as sentimental ladies like it.

THE PRESIDENT, "browned by the tropical sun and rugged," was having his last day's fishing yesterday off tiny Clipperton Island, in the Pacific. His next stop will be Hawaii, on his fifteen-thousand-mile vacation cruise.

He will need all the "ruggedness" he can acquire to handle conditions when he returns.

FROM ECUADOR, in South America, two "spectacled bears" arrive at New York's Bronx Zoo, which for nine years has had no spectacled bear. Clarence Darrow Has a Dual Personality—Sometimes He Shows a Dark Side and Sometimes a Bright

By Edwin C. Hill

GNARLED, knobby old Clarence Darrow exits and leaves the case with the jury. His third and last epistle to the NRA, garlanded with poison ivy and ballasted with bricks, may be his valedictory. Surely, he snapped his red suspenders after he had heaved his report through Gen. Johnson's window! That's Darrows gesture of finality. They can take it or leave it.

He seems to feel that way about his career, too. He thinks man is just a handful of clay, and there is no Valhalla for even such stout warriors as he. So with fame, too. Those who hymn the great with psaltery and harp are themselves just little measuring worms—impelled to futile endeavors by some strange chemistration of sunlight. "All is vanity and a striving after wind."

One could assemble selections from the sayings and writings of Clarence Darrow in a malign testament of hate and despair. One could build others into an exalted humanitarian theme. There is a curious quality about Darrow which discloses blurred and shifting outlines as he steps into the wings. In the opinion of this writer, he will not survive as a profound or original thinker, either as a penologist or a social philosopher, although there are multitudes who seem to regard him as such.

But there should be some kind of a Pantheon for a weary old man of 77 who will leave his home at night to aid any poor wretch in distress. He still does it—"Unto the least of these." It seemed to me that the debate in New York between Darrow and Chesterton several years ago was fairly incandescent in lighting up Clarence Darrow. The subject, as I recall it, was "Is the World Turning Back to Religion?"

* * *

Darrow's Debate With Chesterton

IN HIS youth in Kinsman, O., Darrow used to sit around the livery stable or the feed store and talk religion with all comers. His attack on Chesterton was straight old line Bob Ingersoll. Savagely, he contended that the whale didn't swallow Jonah and Balaam's ass didn't talk.

Chesterton ballooned out onto the stage, agitating his little flipper arms as he adjusted his tiny pincenez on his moon face.

"The difficulty of debating with Mr. Darrow," he gasped, as if greatly perturbed, "is that he insists on arguing furiously with his fundamentalist maiden aunt."

General Johnson might have dredged up that one. For, in spite of all the distorted pictures of Clarence Darrow as a modernist and a radical philosopher, he stems from the "little America" of the Dave Siebern's Golden Eagle store, or Dan Donovan's lumber yard—where one was for or against the preacher or the banker, and where the whale did or didn't swallow Jonah.

While Charles Edward Russell may have ghosted a little Karl Marx into his report, Darrow himself knows little and cares nothing about fuzzy philosophies and large loose generalizations. "Workers of the world unite," leaves him cold. Anton Dubinski, stockyards mucker, getting a raw deal, gets him out of a bed like a fireman sliding a brass pole.

As in Kinsman, O., everything in his now larger cosmos is highly particularized and personalized. One little pants presser, sideswiped by the Blue Eagle, would stir Darrow to anger, unappeased by carloads of offsetting statistics.

Not a philosopher or a critic of religion, why is he picked to debate with Chesterton, perhaps the greatest controversailist of modern times? Not an economist, why is he picked to lead the battle of individualism against collectivism at Washington? Not a scientist, why was he picked as the shining Apollyon to wrestle with the great Bryan on evolution, in Dayton, Tenn.?

* * *

Speaks Tongue Of Common People

PERHAPS the classical phrase—"human, all too human" gives a clue. Darrow has the idiom, the mind, the speech of the old agrarian America—before it was bedeviled with machines and confounded with philosophies. Whatever is to be said, about science, religion or economics he can say it our way, in our language, wearing a sound $18 suit, which was sent up to him when he telephoned. He orders his clothes that way and forgets them.

If he shuts his eyes, he probably wouldn't know whether he was wearing blue or gray or brown. He knows his tailor is all right, and maybe that's why he puts so much spleen into his defense of the small businessman against NRA.

General Johnson in his "Dear Clarence" letter concedes that he is the greatest American trial lawyer, and perhaps he is. He doesn't drag in much law. But he knows how to become one of a jury rather than an outsider talking to them. "Human—all too human."

One may believe that he has been decidedly "all too human" in some of the causes he has championed. But here is a salient American well-worth appraisal in some more authoritative forum than this. Did you ever notice that his coat pockets bag, with the flaps tucked in? They are apt to be full of scraps of poetry and doggerel and usually there is a tattered copy of one of those old drummer's joke books.

Darrow likes the poem about "My Love Works in a Greenhouse." His rival works in a livery stable. She chooses the former, because "a greenhouse has a fragrance which a livery stable ain't." Darrow knows this one by heart and loves to say it for his friends—chuckling, of course, and snapping his suspenders. One may go far, knowing such abstractions as law, science and economics, but he may go even farther knowing the human heart.

EVICTION AIDS GRETNA 'WAR'

CAMP MUIR, MT. GRETNA, July 18.—(AP.)—"War" began at Indiantown Gap today as Mr. and Mrs. John Ginrich and their four children and their cows were removed by state police from the "zone of combat" of Pennsylvania National Guard troops.

The Ginrichs sold their farm to the state three months ago, but refused to move. The children, driving the cows to and from pasture, were within the danger zone of machine gun bullets, so combat firing with live ammunition was held up until troopers evicted the family.

Maj. Gen. Edward C. Shannon, commander of the 28th Division, observed as 57-man war-strength platoons of the 109th and 110th Infantry went successively through a combat problem, involving an attack with live ammunition on field targets representing an enemy.

Machine gunners and automatic riflemen at Indiantown Gap fired on the field range, now that the Ginrichs are out of the way.

DOCTORS' TAX SUIT SETTLED

Income tax evasion charges against Dr. R. P. McClellan, a physician and banker of Irwin, and Earl D. Beacham, Homestead dentist, today were quashed in Federal Court with the government's acceptance of a $1,000 settlement as a compromise.

United States Attorney H. S. Dumbauld sought the action on authority from the Attorney General's office. The men were indicted last year in connection with Dr. McClellan's 1930 return. It was charged that McClellan claimed a loss of $25,727 in the sale of securities and evaded payment of $1,615 tax. The sale was alleged to have been fictitious and framed between the men with Beacham purchasing the securities at an auction and returning them to McClellan for the amount of the bid.

M'NAIR MAY GO TO CAPITAL IN TOLL FIGHT

Mayor McNair today was considering expanding his speaking campaign against bridge and tube tolls by carrying the fight directly to Washington.

The executive was trying to make up his mind if he should make a journey to the capital and enter a personal protest to government officials. He outlined his objection to the South Hills Kiwanis Club at a luncheon yesterday.

In the meantime, his single tax supporters kept busy.

About 500 Hill residents, who attended a Moritz Democratic rally at Washington street and Bedford avenue last night, were supposed to be looking for a vacant storeroom suitable for a single tax and free port headquarters today.

Harry Eigenrauch, Jr., clerk in Traffic Court, who operates a single tax headquarters across the street from the East Liberty Police Station, asked them last night to find a site, outlining a plan to open such a store in every district.

Theodore L. Moritz, the Mayor's secretary, who is also a nominee for Congress, was another speaker. Mayor McNair, he said, spends his time from morning till night thinking of things that will benefit of the people.

As the next speaker, the Mayor himself also urged a steadfast fight for lower bus and street car fares.

Evidently referring to his recent apology for charging that the Pittsburgh Railways Company "owns the judges body and soul," he said:

"I'll probably have to apologize to some judge tomorow because Moritz asked for a 10-cent bus fare.

COAST STRIKE ROUSES M'NAIR

Taking a hand in the San Francisco strike, Mayor McNair issued a statement today urging all city employes who are members of any of the striking unions in California to withdraw their membership cards as a protest against "anarchy."

Recalling the great strike of 1877, the Mayor says:

"If we are to have mob rule in Pittsburgh again, those who are connected with the city administration must be faithful to their trust and not surrender their wills to irresponsible mob dictatorship.

"Now is the time to take a stand. I therefore urge upon all city employes or anyone connected with the city administration to show their loyalty to the community by withdrawing their membership cards from their unions until reason again gains ascendancy in the minds of those who are destroying the orderly processes of government in other municipalities."

MYSTERY DEATH GIRL IDENTIFIED

PAULSBORO, N. J., July 18.—(AP.)—The body of a young woman, a diamond set in the gold inlay of one of her teeth and a bruise on the back of her head, who fell dead on a Paulsboro street, was identified by relatives early today as that of Mrs. Mabel Peterson, 29, of Williamsport, Pa.

W. Clayton Apgar, chief of Gloucester County detectives, said the woman's relatives told him she left home several days ago on an automobile tour with Robert Lynch, a boarder at the Peterson home.

The woman died shortly after midnight Monday. Investigators are awaiting the result of a chemical analysis to determine if she was poinsoned.

Apgar said he learned from the woman's relatives that she and Lynch went from Williamsport to Newark on Monday and that Mrs. Peterson left Newark Monday night to visit a sister elsewhere. He said he did not know the sister's address.

Mrs. Peterson, he stated, was separated from her husband two years ago. She had worn the diamond set in one of her teeth for 10 years.

WOMAN CHAINED IN OLD MANSION

International News Service.

TOLEDO, O., July 18.—Police were prying into the secrets of a dusty old mansion here today, after detectives last night found one elderly woman chained to a bed and another unconscious in an alley beside the house.

Detectives were seeking Platt Tucker, 60, owner of the house, and son of the late Theodore Tucker, once a millionaire real estate operator. Platt Tucker's sister, Alma, was found in the alley beside the house suffering from a blow on the head.

Entering the gloomy home, crowded with Victorian furniture, rare antiques and costly but dust-covered paintings, detectives found another sister, Adelia, chained to the floor beside her bed.

Both women were taken to county hospital, where police failed to elicit an explanation from either.

Police returning to the house to question Tucker reported he leaped from a back window and escaped.

CHANGE IN TOLL PLAZA ASKED

With a conference arranged for next Friday to reach a final agreement on the design for the proposed Liberty Tubes toll plaza, Frank Vittor, noted sculptor and member of the City Planning Commission, today appealed for changes to beautify the present plaza design.

Vittor declared:

"My object is to beautify Pittsburgh.

"Therefore, I'm stressing the point that the plaza should be a beautiful thing — not an ugly sight.

"The present design does not appeal to any one who knows anything about art or who is a lover of outdoor beauty."

Support for Vittor's view was given by City Public Works Director Leslie M. Johnston at a meeting on the project yesterday. This meeting was attended by representatives of the County Planning Commission, the City Planning Commission and the City Public Works Department.

At the meeting it was agreed to have four lanes of traffic in the plaza instead of two wherever possible.

Police Hold Man In Liquor Seizure

Joseph Fisher, 32, of 912 Middle street, North Side, today was held for State Revenue Department agents after admitting ownership of 23 pints of untaxed moonshine at a hearing in North Side Police Court. Police arrested Fisher yesterday in Voeghtly street, North Side, where the liquor was reported seized.

PWA CONTRACT READY FOR O. K.

The contract with the Allegheny County Authority, by which the Public Works Administration is to give $24,500,000 for public works, was to be signed in Washington late today according to Administrator Harold L. Ickes.

The contract, ready for the signing in the event the Public Works board approves and ratifies it, will then be signed by the members of the Authority in Allegheny County.

A committee of South Hills residents, protesting the tolls, was en route to Washington today to tell Administrator Ickes that the South Hills doesn't want to pay to go over bridges and through tunnels.

A. C. Purdy, of Dormont; J. L. Galbraith, Brookline, and Mrs. E. H. Schroeder, of Beechview, were the committee named. It was understood they would oppose the tolls only, and not the projects, nor suggest alternate financing plans.

V. F. W. Post Wins Award in Parade

The loving cup award for the best marching unit in East Liberty's Century of Progress Jubilee parade today was held by the Trees-Carlisle Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The honor was given to the veterans' drum and bugle corps in last night's program which drew hundreds of men, women and children along the line of march. The first award for the best float was taken by the Kirby Shoe Store; second honors was given to the Haller Baking Company.

UNITED CHURCH LUTHERAN GOAL

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 18.—(AP.)—The Luther League of Pennsylvania opened business sessions of its annual convention today with a united church—spiritually as well as outwardly—before it as an ideal.

Merely the joining of various bodies under a single government will not unite the various Christian denominations under a common banner, the convention delegates were told last night by the Rev. Lewis C. Manges, pastor of Memorial Lutheran Church.

He urged "the building up of a church that is an integral unit, declaring:

"Until the time that such oneness can be reached, any portion of unity must fail."

HELMKE AGAIN WALTHER HEAD

Vice presidents elected were: E. J. Rabe, Meridien, Conn.; the Rev. A. W. Koehler, Richmond, Cal.; the Rev. H. B. Roepe, New Orleans, and the Rev. G. W. Schoedel, Stratford, Ont.

F. A. Schack, of Fort Wayne, Ind., was chosen treasurer and George C. Mueller, of Milwaukee, recording secretary.

Those chosen for the executive board were E. J. Gallmeyer, of Fort Wayne, Ind.; Henry Buck, of Kansas City; Herbert L. Grau, of Pittsburgh; Gilbert Muchow, of St. Louis; Erwin Jones, of Seward, Neb., and Oscar Doerr, of Omaha.

Moritz Asks Writ In Finley Battle

Theodore L. Moritz, McNair's unseated appointee to the Traction Conference Board, through his attorney, John E. Evans, today went into Common Pleas Court to ask for a writ of quo warranto to be directed against Charles A. Finley to show cause by what right he continues to serve as chairman of the board.

Judge M. A. Musmanno heard the petition and granted the writ. He announced he would schedule a hearing later.

Vanish Second Time Right From Under City Hall Loafers

Theodore L. Moritz, man of many jobs in the McNair city administration, who has been having trouble lately trying to land a seat on the Traction Conference Board, can't even keep a bench or two around City Hall.

Somebody swiped 'em again. And this time right from in under the loafers, not to mention a constituent or two who hang around the city tabernacle these days with nothing else to do but sit.

There have been some rapid developments in the bench situation in the last 24 hours. Yesterday Secretary-Candidate - Unseated - McNair-appointee Moritz discovered his missing benches on the police rifle range at Aspinwall. A truck, some of the boys from Ralston School (barracks for the unemployed) and Moritz brought them back.

Some of them went to the boys at Ralston School. Three were set up by Moritz personally along the Diamond street side of City Hall.

Today the benches had disappeared from Diamond street again.

BORO OFFICIALS SURCHARGED

Surcharges totaling $4,144 are made against various McKees Rocks Councilmen and borough officials in the report of Borough Controller D. J. Buckley, on file today in the prothonotary's office.

The Controller says Council appropriated $14,500 for street work, but that $15,522 was spent. The payroll was exceeded by $1,288, of which $1,022 is surcharged to former Controller C. B. Keebler, and $266 to Keebler, O. M. Dorr, president of Council; H. B. Supinger, treasurer, and George W. Gast, secretary. The four men are surcharged with $360 excess salary over the appropriation paid to the secretary and a $46.99 gas and oil bill of Ed. Reider, under the garbage disposal appropriation.

Keebler, Darr and Supinger are surcharged $218 electric light bills of the Holy Ghost Greek and St. Mark's Catholic churches, and $216 paid Policeman M. F. Matsey when his pay was raised from $162 to $180 without authorization of Council.

A fee of $1,000 to Special Counsel H. M. Irons, individual telephone bills of $516, and $500 paid in a settlement to the McKees Rocks Trust Company are surcharged to the same officials, and several Councilmen who voted for the payments, which were charged to the miscellaneous appropriation after it had been exhausted.

Starts Each New Day With Clean Slate, Actress Says

Marie Dressler, the funniest woman in America, was born in a small town in Canada. After a series of ups and downs on the stage, she decided that in order to achieve success one must keep her troubles to herself. Her first big success was "Tillie's Nightmare," which sent her on the road to "hats with ostrich feathers as long as any in Newport."

Then came reverses on the stage and in her financial investments. She learned that no "vice" is as bad as "advice." Despite pleas and warnings, she set out for Hollywood without a contract and pounded the pavements searching for a job. Her first opportunity came as she was in desperate financial straits. With Polly Moran she established the game of "Give and Take," which brought her temporary success.

After a bad year, her ship arrived with her performance in "Anna Christie." She bought a house in Hollywood and took great delight in planning meals, using her own recipes.

MARIE DRESSLER . . . HOLLYWOOD'S QUEEN OUT STROLLING

CHAPTER IX.

The mike and I get along very well these days because the mike is now so arranged that the actor is less hampered by the little sound demon. Nobody knows what a strain it used to be to try to look and act natural realizing that it was possible to move only in a limited space and hold one's head at a certain angle in order that the sound could be properly reproduced.

In "Anna Christie" I told the director that the mike would have to follow me instead of me following the mike. As a result a man shadowed me wherever I went and carried that little instrument which recorded Marthie's words to film lovers throughout the country. The result was good because I was not worrying about mechanical conditions and trying to pull my stuff at the same time.

After a hard day on the lot, I don't dress up in my best clothes and parade Hollywood boulevard or go to an all-night party, as many suppose. Instead, I am put to bed at 9 o'clock, my windows opened so that I get the fresh fragrance of my garden and the sound of the sea, and I am asleep. I don't even need nightingale songs and scented breezes to induce sleep. Yes, I have that kind of conscience.

Erase Mistakes

I have learned that the only thing to do when there has been a hard day behind and a bad one ahead is to put water on the slate and sponge out all mistakes and worries. After all, we never do say any of those scathing things to the other fellow that we so carefully plan during a pillow conference with ourselves.

I do not alternate work and play. When I work, I work and when I play, I play. In the days when I made "Tillie's Punctured Romance," we took our picnic pails along, had a lark of a time, and spent some 14 weeks producing the picture. Today some of our biggest and most expensive films are started and completed within four weeks.

While we are working, I give all that I have to the job. If it's necessary to stay over time at night, I never whimper. I'm on the job promptly in the morning because punctuality is my greatest virtue or sin, whichever you consider it. I never have been able to understand or forgive the many people who are so inconsiderate of the time and pocketbook of others as to appear for appointments with lame excuses as slow clocks or unexpected callers.

Keeps Appointments

I am sure that I have just as many interruptions and know just as many people, if not more, than the average person, but if I can say to a dear friend, who has just come to see me on her return to the city, "I'm terribly sorry, but I have an engagement in 10 minutes," I do not see why others can't pursue the same tactics.

As it is I give up something that means a good deal to me to keep my appointment only to find that the other person keeps me waiting half an hour. We ought to get together on this and change things for the better! Time in George Washington's day meant very little; today half an hour is part of a lifetime.

While I'm prompt on the job and slow to quit, I'm a strictly union man at noontime. My breakfast is so light that I am roaring by 12 and by now everybody begins to look at me when the hunger hour strikes. No matter what the director is doing, he says, "Let her out of her cage. She's growling again," and I'm off.

Treated Like Child

They treat me like a child and often say, "Don't hurt her," as if I were easily breakable. As a matter of fact, I've encountered only the greatest kindness and consideration in Hollywood, which is contrary to the generally accepted notion that everybody is indifferent and hurried. This impression is gained from the fact that literally hundreds of persons often with most mediocre talent, come to Hollywood expecting to be met with contracts on silver salvers and the proverbial bran hand.

Few of these aspirants would have sufficient stamina to stand the gaff if they did get in, but while they are on the sidelines they rail because they do not receive instant reception. As a matter of fact, everybody in Hollywood who is working is too busy to be on a reception committee.

Seek Legislators To Tax Utilities

I. Leonard Aronson, president of the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners' and Taxpayers' League, speaking at a meeting in the Duquesne High School last night, urged home owners and taxpayers to co-operate to elect legislators who will pass laws forcing public utilities to pay real estate taxes.

FRECKLED FACE ENTRIES CLIMB

Strange, isn't it? Every boy or girl who can boast of a crop of freckles is proud of the distinction. And from the number of entries that have already come in for the Sun-Telegraph contest to find the freckled face champions of Pittsburgh and vicinity it is evident that there is no shortage of freckles in Pittsburgh.

One youngster writes that he has 4,897, but he may be taking in a lot of territory outside of his face. However, any kiddie with 25 or more freckles is entitled to enter this unique contest. The champions are going to get wonderful prizes.

The freckled faces are all going to be judged at West View Park Tuesday afternoon, July 31. This is the date of the annual Sun-Telegraph National Kiddies Day and Junior Patrol outing and freckles will be the high-spots of the day. Boys and girls up to 16 years of age, no matter where they live and providing they have at least 25 freckles, are eligible to enter. Use the blank on this page.

This is going to be an exciting day for the kiddies of Pittsburgh because hundreds of strips of tickets for the rides and attractions at West View Park will be given away. Watch the Sun-Telegraph for details.

CANARY KILLED GIVING CROWD 'THE BIRD'

Mike, a wild canary, is dead today, probably because he wouldn't listen when Dan G Gough, of 910 California avenue, Avalon bird caller, whistled.

It was about noon yesterday when J. P. Clancey, Grant Building safety director, noticed that an unusually large crowd had gathered in the lobby.

All, he observed, were peering up, in the manner of people who gape at flagpole sitters. There, he saw, was Mike, flitting fitfully from chandelier to high window ledge.

Plainly, the bird thought he could fly through the plate glass over the main entrance.

For a while, Clancey listened to the advice of all and sundry. Said one bird fancier:

"Put salt on his tail."

Said another, more practical like:

"Open the windows."

Clancey explained that the "windows" are not the kind that open before he called Fire Chief John Heinz for help. And Heinz, picking a good man, dispatched Deputy Fire Chief Nick Phelan.

But Chief Phelan, after looking the situation over, didn't have an idea. The fire department's equipment, he pointed out, doesn't include butterfly nets—only life nets. He asked:

"Would the canary jump into one of them?"

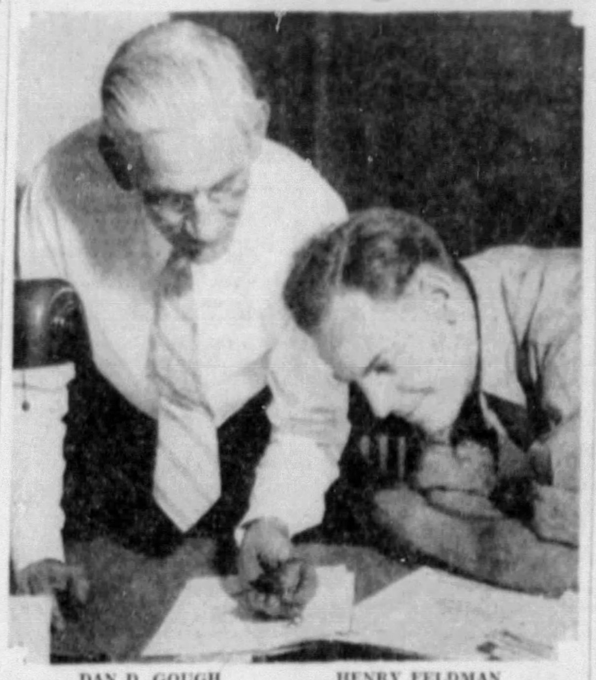
Much later, Gough, who has "whistled down" all kinds of birds, and who is also district manager of the American Mutual Liability Insurance Company of Boston, with Grant Building offices, tried to whistle Mike down.

For many minutes he chirped softly — imitating the cooing sounds one canary makes to another. But the thunder of passing street cars and the noise of the large audience in the lobby evidently frightened the bird.

The canary hunters stayed on. Shortly a folded newspaper, flung by an elevator mechanic, caught the bird on the wing.

The long fall to the floor evidently broke Mike's neck. And so ends his brief saga—just another victim of a paper wad.

His Prank Brought Death



DAN D. GOUGH HENRY FELDMAN

Small solace for Mike, a wild canary, in his dying moments. He had to give his life for a few frightened hours of flying about in the high-vaulted lobby of the Grant building. He was struck on the wing by a newspaper. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

FIVE FUGITIVES ELUDE CAPTURE

Associated Press.

Authorities are seeking five fugitives from three penal institutions in Pennsylvania—an industrial home, a county jail, and the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg.

No trace has been found of three youths who walked off the farm of the State Industrial School at Huntingdon Monday afternoon, and escaped in an official state car. The youths were William H. Wood, Jr., of West Chester; Frank C. Greher, of Allentown, and Warren Kelly, of Lawrenceville.

Ray B. Smith, Negro trusty who fled the York County Jail after an alleged attempt to attack Mrs. Frank Lindemuth, wife of the warden, was sought in Baltimore. The search shifted there after a report that he had been seen riding a freight train bound for the Maryland city.

Adam Mondich, 23, of Newark, N. J., serving two and one-half years for passing counterfeit money, stole quietly to freedom from the farm at the Lewisburg federal prison.

85 Bodies Found In Poland's Flood

WARSAW, July 18.—(INS.)—With 85 bodies recovered from the disastrous floods in Southern Poland, it was feared today that the death list would exceed 100.

More than 500 boy scouts camping in Sromowca were rescued after a night in the treetops.

VENICE PRISON BREAK FOILED

VENICE, July 18.—(AP.)—Closing the gates of a blasting picturesque island prison in Venice, where some of Italy's most desperate criminals are housed, authorities early today prevented a menacing jail delivery.

Three hundred and seventy long-term prisoners were held at bay by hastily-summoned military police and sailors at the point of rifles and herded into the prison church.

Meanwhile, the entire Venetian fire-fighting force played streams of water on a fire which destroyed two large penitentiary establishments. They got the fire under control just before dawn after several hours of intense battling.

Authorities discovered a plot among inmates who had set the fire, hoping to escape in the resultant confusion. Ringleaders were transported in motorboats under heavy guard to the prison Santa Maria Maggiare, also in Venice.

Russian Aviator Leaps 26,575 Feet

LENINGRAD, July 18.—(AP.)—Soviet aviation officials announced today that Nikolai Evdokimoff, a red army aviator, had established a world's record by making a successful parachute jump from a height of 8,100 meters—26,575 feet.

FIGHT RADICALS, ELK RULER ASKS

KANSAS CITY, July 18.—(AP.)—Michael F. Shannon, Los Angeles attorney, was elected grand exalted ruler of the B. P. O. Elks here yesterday and called upon the half million members of the order to become "shock troops" in a "pro-America" campaign against radicalism.

His call was to mobilize the full strength, 1,400 lodges, into "shock troops to combat and exterminate those who would destroy the business of this country, disrupt forever family relations, abolish religion, liquidate American institutions and tear down the flag." He added:

"To the harrangue and propaganda of the gutter Communists has been added the voices of teachers in schools and colleges—a small percentage of the whole, but great in the aggregate and constituting the most vicious influence in American life today."

J. E. Masters, Charleroi, Pa., was re-elected grand secretary.

SCOPES JURIST IN 'COMEBACK'

DAYTON, Tenn., July 18.—(AP.)—John T. Raulston, the judge in the famous Scopes evolution trial which was nearing a climax here nine years ago today, is in the midst of a vigorous campaign to regain his seat on the bench at an election August 2.

Since his defeat in 1926 by Judge Leslie Darr, Raulston has been practicing law in Winchester and South Pittsburg, Tenn.

Raulston stepped up to the bench July 10, 1925, to open the trial of John T. Scopes, a bespectacled Dayton school teacher, on a charge of violating the Tennessee law against teaching evolution in public schools.

Raulston fined Scopes $100. However, the State Supreme Court reduced it to $50. Later, with the consent of prosecuting counsel, the fine was remitted. Scopes is now living in Beeville, Tex., near San Antonio.

Man Fined on Charge Of Writing Numbers

Louis Antitose, 31, of 4790 Yew street, was fined $5 today in Central Police Court on charges of writing numbers. Police testified they confiscated a numbers book in a restaurant at 12 Ferry street, where Antitose was employed. Antitose testified the book belonged to a bakery truck driver and denied writing numbers.

TWO CATHOLIC GROUPS ELECT

MAUCH CHUNK, Pa., July 18.—(AP.)—The Catholic Central Verein and the Catholic Women's Union are to have their present leaders for another year.

At closing convention sessions yesterday the verein re-elected Frank Slifter, Carnegie, as president, and the women voted to continue Mrs. Elizabeth Stopper, Williamsport, as their leader.

The verein also named the Rev. John N. P. Fries, Catasaqua, as spiritual director for another term, and chose Jacob Post, Sr., Pottsville, and Frank X. Engler, East Mauch Chunk, as vice presidents; John F. Weisler, Philadelphia, corresponding and financial secretary; H. A. Becker, Bethlehem, treasurer, and F. William Keresting, Pittsburgh, recording secretary.

The women's group named Miss Mary Turner, Bethlehem, vice president; Mrs. Genevieve Bronder, Pittsburgh, secretary, and Mrs. Marie Moebs, Philadelphia, treasurer.

West Homestead Hearing Postponed

The hearing on West Homestead's councilmanic court fight was postponed by Judge Samuel H. Gardner until next Tuesday. The hearing is on a mandamus against the minority members and Burgess Richard Lawry to compel them to agree on an ordinance fixing the tax millage and permitting the borrowing of sufficient money to pay off current bills contracted since last January.

Policeman Warned To Attend Hearings

Suspension from duty faces all arresting police officers who fail to appear at magistrate hearings in a general order issued today by Acting Police Supt. Jacob Dorsey.

An order to all police inspectors stipulated that failure to appear will result in the policeman being called before the police trial board.

Philadelphia Mayor Job Sought by Cox

PHILADELPHIA, July 18.—(AP.)—The Record says Edwin R. Cox, city council president and chairman of the Republican city committee since ousting of William S. Vare's leadership, will be a Republican candidate for mayor of Philadelphia next year.

Junior Birdmen Members to Have Opportunity to Write to Aviation Enthusiasts in Other Towns!

By LAWRENCE SHAW
National Director

Greetings, Junior Birdmen! Here's some interesting news from National Headquarters. We are all ready to inaugurate a new service for members.

Our first official service, that of the Junior Birdmen Model Plane Institute, is now definitely under way and many of the largest manufacturers of model plane kits and supplies have forwarded their requests to our institute headquarters in New York for official testing at the new laboratories set up.

In a few weeks, when the stamp of approval has been granted to those manufacturers whose product warrant it, you will be able to purchase kits and supplies backed by the Junior Birdmen organization but made by those manufacturers you have always favored.

We will announce in our columns shortly the first list of kits and products to receive this outstanding merit of approval.

But here is a new service of a different type. It is the inauguration of our "Writers' Club Unit" which will comprise groups of Junior Birdmen members in each Wing city who wish to correspond by mail to members in other states and cities.

Perhaps you have often desired to write to Junior Birdmen members in distant towns and discuss with them the many activities of our organization and interchange ideas and suggestions for your flight squadrons. It's great fun.

Junior Birdmen in New York can write to members in San Francisco, Seattle, Omaha, San Antonio or other wing cities. And members in other wing cities can write to members in New York or wherever they like.

I realize that the summer is no time to sit down and write letters. None of us want to. But it will take time to organize our "Writers' Club Unit" and send the list of members to each boy and girl joining. Let's get a head start so that we can have it well under way by September when the cooler weather will give you ambition to start writing.

No Fee to Join Writers' Club

There is no fee connected to the Writers' Club service whatsoever. The only requirement is that you must be a Junior Birdmen member. And here is all you have to do, so do it now:—

DROP A PENNY POST CARD ADDRESSED TO YOUR LOCAL WING COMMANDER. JUST SAY THAT YOU WISH TO BECOME A MEMBER OF THE WRITERS' CLUB UNIT AND GIVE YOUR FULL NAME, ADDRESS, AGE AND MEMBERSHIP NUMBER.

There isn't anything to it. It's as easy as it was to join the Junior Birdmen. And along about the last week in August you will receive a complete leaflet giving you addresses of groups of boys and girls in each of your wing cities, together with their ages so that you may strike up a corresponding acquaintance with members of your own age groups.

Model Builders will especially find this feature a very helpful one since you will be able to compare notes on model construction and designs. Wing Commanders and Captains too will find it an aid in learning of the activities of other units.

SEND YOUR REQUEST TO JOIN THE "WRITERS' CLUB UNIT" TO YOUR WING COMMANDER AT ONCE SO THAT HE CAN FORWARD IT TO NATIONAL HEADQUARTERS TO BE INCLUDED ON THE OFFICIAL LIST.

Air Dictionary List Number 28

List Number 28 in our Air Dictionary Series contains some important reference definitions regarding aviation engines that are important to every boy and girl studying aviation. Read them over studiously.

ENGINE (GENERAL)—The power plant of a plane which rotates the propellar supplying thrust or forward movement to the craft.

ENGINE (AXIAL-TYPE) — An engine having its cylinders even distant away from and parallel to the main shaft. Power is transmitted to the shaft through a wabble plate or gears.

ENGINE (INVERTED)—An engine with cylinders below the crankshaft.

ENGINE (RIGHT HAND)—An engine which revolves the propeller in the direction as that of the hands of a clock, when observed from pilot's seat.

ENGINE (ROTARY)—An engine with cylinders arranged like a radial engine except they revolve around the crankshaft instead of being stationary. This engine is now obsolete.

ENGINE (SUPERCHARGED)—An engine with a compressor for increasing the air or mixture of oxygen sent into the cylinder beyond that necessary for normal atmosphere when plane is at a high altitude where oxygen is rare.

ENGINE (VERTICAL)—An engine with cylinders arranged vertically above the crankshaft.

Well, that's 10 definitions, members. We have more types of engines to define for you but will have to leave them for another list.

HAPPY LANDINGS!

YOUTH CRUSHED BY TRAIN

Andrew Kasicky, 12, of 3217 Arlington avenue, was in South Side Hospital today with a skull fracture and a broken leg and internal injuries suffered when he was caught between passing freight trains on the Pennsylvania Railroad near the foot of Becks Run road late yesterday.

The accident occurred while Kasicky and three companions, Joseph Pietzak, 20, and his two brothers, Steve, 16, and Adam, 14, were returning from swimming in the Monongahela River, police said. Andrew had gone up the hill ahead of the three others and when Joseph Pietzak reached the top he found Kasicky lying between the tracks over which two trains going in opposite directions had just passed, police reported.

A brother of the young victim, Steve Kasicky, was one of five boys killed three years ago in an abandoned mine in Arlington avenue. Their deaths were caused by poisonous gases, police said.

Writer of 'Curfew' Ballad Paid Tribute

LITCHFIELD, Mich., July 18.—(INS.)—This village will turn out en masse Saturday to honor the memory of Mrs. Rose Hartwick Thorpe, author of the song "Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight."

Generous Stork Brings Triplets to Mamma Cow

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., July 18. (AP.)—R. F. Ross reported today that a cow on his farm has given birth to triplets—all doing nicely. Ross said:

NRA REVISES TIRE SLASH

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Revising a presidential executive order which permitted cutting of prices 15 per cent on sales to the government, the NRA today issued an order limiting the cut by the rubber tile and tube industry to 10 per cent below floor level prices.

The change was made on complaint from the industry that the 15 per cent tolerance resulted in destructive price-cutting.

10 COMMANDMENTS FOR SUN BATHERS

International News Service.

NEW YORK, July 18.—If you are one of the 6,000,000 "sunworshipers" in the United States—that is to say, if you are easily afflicted with "erythema solare" sunburn, to you!—take a tip from Dr. Charles F. Pabst, prominent Brooklyn dermatologist. Follow his "Ten Commandments for Sun Bathers":

1—Don't drink highballs, cocktails or any other form of hard liquor on the beach—unless properly shaded from the sun!

2—Don't read books or play cards on the beach!

3—Don't sleep on the beach!

4—Don't try to acquire a heavy coat of tan in a few days! Take it in small doses!

5—Don't remain in the sun at all if you are one of the persons who can never tan.

6—Don't sprinkle toilet water or perfume on the skin before exposure to the sun!

7—Don't wear scanty bathing attire (or none at all, you nudists) in trying to get a sun tan!

8—Don't go barebonded in the sun!

Man About Town

The Helen Morgans (Buddy Mashke) are dwelling apart via "a trial separation" as it is amusingly christened . . . The Louis Calhernes (she was the Guggenheims' Natalie Schaefer) are ditto. He's at the beach and she's at the garden of Allahmony . . . A Columbia film, "The Captain Hates the Sea" (after a fortnight at sea) has been scrapped . . . Paramount has shelved "Shoe the Wild Mare"—for torrid reasons . . . It's a boy at the Donald Gallaghers (Louise Glover) . . . Mrs. George Raft finally agreed to a divorce after a $20,000 settlement.

F. Scott Fitzgerald is gravely ill at the Johns Hopkins . . . The Mack Cranes, she's Caroline Francke (they wrote "Blonde Bombshell" for Harlow) are unwinding . . . Universal's radio story flicker "Gift of Gab," they allege, is fashioned after Ted Husing and the "putrid" Harvard blast . . . The Andy Devines' infanticipation is momentarily . . . Mrs. Dave Gould is telling it to attorneys.

For the first time in the history of the theater in the Ambassador (L. A.) a movie was hissed—a short . . . A movie trade mag lists all pictures that made over a million dollars and omits "Whoopee," which did nearly three millions . . . And howz about "Kid from Spain?" Some accuracy, huh? . . . Henrietta Schumann, concert pianist, and Nino Martini, Metopera tenor, have high blood "pleasure" . . . Elinson is worried about the drive against love scenes. He wishes someone would explain to his girl friend that this doesn't include the couples in the audience.

Molly O'Day's romance with the RKO dance director didn't last longer than a verse and a chorus . . . Irene Bently, who has played leads, is in the ensemble of "Kid Millions" . . . Wilbur May, the dep't storekeeper's boy on the West Coast, and "Peaches" Jackson have it bad . . . Vivian Keefer (who suddenly lost her acquired British accent) has a new car, but he isn't divorced yet, so his name doesn't matter . . . Jack Durant corrects an error—he will wed Mrs. Martin after she gets her melting . . . Greta Nissen, who applied for a Mexicanning from Weldon Heyburn, and then changed her mind, expects it on August 20th.

Orchids to Bob Benchley's hilariously amusing travesty on the critics' box score, a beautiful thing . . . Orchids to La Shearer in "The Barretts of Wimpole St." . . . Ditto for Grace Moore in "One Night of Love," a sure smash . . . Scallions to me for reporting that "Peanut Vendor" sold only 21,000 copies—the figure was 109,000 . . . Scallions to the director of "Thin Man" for allowing Wm. Powell to utter: "He shakes up the best Martinis and Manhattans in town"—when any check-fumbler knows they aren't shaken—but stirred.

Countess Agatha Samuloss isn't sore because a society mag editor is going to marry another lady. She says, however, that he must first do something about the coin she invested in his magazine, and he's ignoring her now . . . John Torrence, the hoofer, has Vivien Faye trouble . . . Frances Stutz (Rubinoff's exchanter) is letting her pretty figure go foooff . . . The Judge Gustave Hartmans, who have 500 children (they govern an orphanage), expect one of their own in November . . . Olive, the tiniest midget at Rose's Music Hall, is the heart of Harry Earl of "Freaks," who made love to Olga Baclanova.

Helen Shaw (Mrs. I. Lesser) is so steamed about things, she will sue him and name the other woman . . . Arthur Rosson, Hal's brother, has found a new hors d'oeuvre at the Hollywood Restaurant on B'way and his Hollywood tamale will tear him to pieces . . . The minister who performs in Universal's radio flicker is really Father Neal Dodd of the Episcopal Church, St. Mary of the Angels of H'wood. He likes doing bits . . . June Knight's new petrol wagon was a gift of a plumber named Paul Ames, and then it all went ouch! . . . That young actress reported "more ill than you think" is tied to her bed!! . . . Robinson Crusoe's real name was Kreutznaer.

Adelaide Moffett, whose Standard Oil pappy stopped her from singing in public last year, has gone stage struck and will canary in "Sparrow," a new play . . . The A. Sheekman-Gloria Stuart romance (see the files of 4 months ago) was such a surprise and scoop to the West Coasters last week . . . "False Dreams, Farewell" is to be flickered, but the lawsuit over its authorship hasn't been settled yet . . . Pandro S. Berman, who is 29 and RKO's ace, produced "Morning Glory," "Little Women," "Vergie Winters" and "Of Human Bondage." A perfect "success" story for any mag editor. He once swept floors at the studio!

One of the more famous Brain Trusters is being plotted against. An up-State New York village, near Rochester, is framing an investigation into his war record, alleging he evaded service, etc. . . . Sing a few bars of "All I Do Is Dream of You" and then croon, but slowly, "Bambalina" . . . Cussie Hanley is in "Gay Divorce" . . . Marilou Dix made "Kid Millions," but Eph Ascher and a dance director may duel about it . . . G. Metaxa's first frau is defeating the wolf by working in a shop at the Atlantic Beach Club . . . Lucille Ball's New York heart won't let her see Ralph Forbes anymore—which puts him behind the well-known Lucille (8) Ball . . . Ken Murray "went for" plenty on Sue Carol and then she returned to Nick Stuart—but they "live their own lives" . . . Marcella Johnson is very ill at the Nassau County Hosp . . . The new Casino de Paree revue will feature a number called: "Winchell's Outa Town, Hurray!" . . . But Billy Rose is leaving the country, I see . . . One paper is running "The Private Life of Lupe and Johnny Weissmuller" . . . What's private about it?

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Gordon Daviot evidently believes Maxwell Anderson did not exhaust all the theatrical possibilities that lie within the character and life of the Scottish queen, Mary, whom Maxwell Anderson made quite a saintly martyr in "Mary of Scotland," which gave Helen Hayes a real nice vacation from the movies, under the auspices of the most highly revered Theater Guild.

We saw that vacation begin last October and were well satisfied with the work of Miss Hayes, the Guild and Mr. Anderson. But Miss Daviot (Gordon is no lad) has written her own ideas about Mary Stuart in "Queen of Scots," just presented in London, and the qualities she gives her heroine are vanity, generosity, fickleness and vengefulness. Like the Anderson work, "Queen of Scots" opens with the landing of Mary in Scotland and it ends with the royal lady of ill-luck in flight. Gordon Daviot is the nom de plume of a woman who is said to have been a school-mistress—a member of the Macintosh family. In April we saw an example of her skill in historical drama, "Richard of Bordeaux," which has Dennis King as its star.

With Maude Adams, Ethel Barrymore and Walter Huston all going summer-theater, the idea that the hinterland has lost all connection with the stage seems farfetched. True the summer theater idea doesn't extend to all places, and the stage contact with the audience is not made under conditions that are always most satisfactory to the customers, what with tryouts, experiments in stage technique, and the like. But it is a contact, and sometimes standard plays are the fare. That is what Maude Adams, once the first among American actresses, is doing this week in Ogonquit, Me., where she is appearing in "Twelfth Night." Miss Barrymore is concerned with a tryout of a new play, "Laura Gernett," in Dobbs Ferry, N. Y. Two of her children, Ethel Barrymore Colt and John Drew Colt are playing in the company of their mother. Mr. Huston goes classical, too, and will be seen as the Moor in "Othello" when that play opens the annual summer festival in Central City, Col., Saturday night.

If you have been wondernig where Margaret Anglin is, set your mind at rest, for she is cast in a good role in "Fresh Fields," which is entertaining World's Fair visitors in Chicago. "Fresh Fields," it appears, is having its American premiere out there. It is a comedy by Ivor Novello, which had a run in London.

Doctor

Lyle Talbot plays a doctor in "Return of the Terror," in Warner Thursday along with "I Give My Love."

Walker to Direct Hull Film

Stuart Walker, who has completed the Stanley Bergerman production, "Romance in the Rain," will direct another Bergerman production. He has been assigned to "Great Expectations" which will star Henry Hull, of "Tobacco Road." The picture will go into production by the first of August. Douglass Montgomery, who was assigned to the production, has been loaned to Fox for the lead in "Music in the Air."

Molnar Not Witty As Molnar

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Perhaps it was the name of Ferenc Molnar that induced the Civic Playhouse to put on "The Lawyer" for its American premiere at the Arnold School last night. The obvious question after seeing the play is why the author did not call it "The Burglar." And the next question is why his mother and teachers did not keep a better eye on him when he perpetrated this immature farce—for the plot is too wild and extravagant to be dignified by the title of comedy.

Mr. Seibel

A very good audience had assembled and waited patiently for the unfolding of the tangled topsy-turvy situations. There is a lawyer whose best client is a burglar. This burglar decides to rob the office of his legal benefactor. The lawyer's wife is carrying on a flirtation with the lieutenant of police. The lieutenant calls upon her with strawberries and champagne just when the burglar has opened the safe and finds he is mentioned in the lawyer's will. The lawyer, who has gone out to a class reunion, returns for something he forgot—but meanwhile the burglar has put on the lawyer's clothes and gets the police to arrest the lawyer. There is also the lawyer's assistant, who has a love affair with the sister-in-law, and comes in his stocking feet as the plot is thickest. Finally the burglar goes to the class reunion and steals the watches of all the professors, who come next morning to accuse the lawyer.

This wild plot should be kept moving very swiftly, but it dragged very painfully last night. The characters should be very glib and plausible and rather fantastic, but they took themselves as straight comedy figures. Not until Robert Gill and DeLisle Crawford come on in the last scene, as the two professors, did the farce begin to gather atmosphere. Their makeup and helpless stupidity gave an idea of how the whole thing should have been staged.

John McQuade as the burglar carried off the honors as the most plausible of the fantastic puppets, who pop in and out, whenever wanted, to keep the fun going. Only the fun was too thin—and some of it, like the burglar collecting for a Lombroso fund, was too esoteric. We criminals in the audience had even forgotten who Lombroso was.

Keith Sterling did excellent acting as the lawyer's wife, but made her a real woman in a whirlpool of farce. Jill Stern was a very pleasant and personable ingenue type, and Reginald Stanborough looked like a heroic police officer, but Marianne McMullin as a fantastic chambermaid caught more of the spirit of the thing. Raymond Neyhart as the lawyer, and J. R. Jahn, as the friend, caught a little of the Tokay flavor which should have gone into the very thin fluid of the punch. This play, by the author of "The Play's the Thing," certainly is not the thing we'd expect from Molnar today. The premiere was delayed too long and then occurred too soon.

MUSIC

LAWN CONCERT

Hotel Schenley

After the spurt at Sunday night's concert the players at Schenley Lawn continued to play in a most lively manner last night. J. Vick O'Brein, orchestral leader at Carnegie Tech, directed and the men showed a fine response.

Mr. Lissfelt

Lighter classics were the rule. Schubert's "Marche Militaire," three dances from Smetana's "Bartered Bride," Rubenstein's "Toreador and Andalouse," Massanet's overture "Phedre," and the andante from Mr. O'Brein's own "Roses of Mercatel" produced here years ago at Tech.

Soloists were the deservedly popular trio known as "Fireflies," Letha Frazier Rankin, Viola Byrgerson, and Jean McCrory Newman, who sang the lilting Rhinemaidens' music from Wagner's "Goetterdaemmerung" and and Ponce's "Estrellita."

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Fame Means Little To Shirley

Driving home from Paramount, where she has been working on "Now and Forever," Shirley and her mother passed a theater where the child's previous picture, "Little Miss Marker," was showing. Shirley began laboriously spelling out a word on the marquee—"S-H-I-R-L-E-Y!"

"Mother, that's my name!" she shrieked.

"Yes, dear," said her mother, "it says Shirley Temple."

Descendants of Aztecs To Work in Film

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, July 18.—An obscure Indian tribe, descendants of the early Aztecs, will shortly be "mugging" for a motion picture camera. Wallace Smith and Bolton Mallory, who is Nancy Carroll's ex, have returned from Mexico, where they procured capital to finance a feature film based on the ancient conquest of Montezuma and his proud race.

Among other interesting practices, they discouraged marital infidelity by chucking guilty wives into the lake, where the rest of the tribe pelt them with flowers until they drown.

Mexican authorities have given Smith permission to conduct research in the national museum and to copy authentice costumes for the wardrobe of his native cast.

If you can believe what you hear, Ruth Chatterton is lending an eager ear to Harry Cohn's proposals of a Columbia contract. The star is a great pal of Grace Moore and Grace is enthusiastic—as who isn't?—over the way her Columbia picture turned out.

The most attractive feature of the offer to Ruth Chatterton is said to be a story which she likes very much. Ruth actually has turned down 18 pictures since she left Warners, because she couldn't see herself in the roles.

La Chatterton will shave her price—quoting rumor again—if she accepts the Columbia deal. Cohn's offer is said to total $100,000 at $25,000 a picture.

Effect of Nick-Names Both Good and Bad

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, July 18.—Hello! Ever since the beginning of films the public has thrown both bouquets and brick-bats at stars in the ferm of nick-names and coined expressions. Most of these fan-inspired titles were and are descriptive of the player. If they were good the player profited, and if they were bad a disastrous loss resulted.

Mary Pickford was the first to be known as "The Biograph Girl." The most dramatic and profitable of expressions was tagged onto Clara Bow, the "It" girl, by Elinor Glynn. That monicker alone added at least a million dollars to Clara's income during a five years' reign of top-notchery.

Mrs. Glynn, scribbler of once successful sex yarns, claims Carl Brisson is the "It" man of the movies, a title he is ready to accept—with the proper amount of publicity, of course!

Critics were responsible for the caption of "Legs" Dietrich after Marlene's appearance in Morrocco," which offered a gorgeous display of her limbs.

Gary Cooper laughingly (just in case you don't get the joke) suggests that he be known as the "Umph Man." "Umph" is the rugged masculine of "It," and it is Hollywood's most expressive word. When a Hollywood lady tells her girl friend that a man has got something she says he's got "Umph."

On down the list we find other nicknames—Greta Barbo is known as "The Silent Swede," and "The Sphinx." Corinne Griffith was once tagged "The Orchid of the Screen." Many comedians are known as "Frozen Face"—and without success. Rudy Valentino was "The Great Lover." Jean Harlow is "The Platinum Blonde." William S. Hart was "Two-Gun Bill;" Jack Oakie is "The Clown" and James Cagney is "Tough Guy."

A good label for an actor is considered his greatest asset to stardom, yet a bad title will ruin him quickly.

* * *

Makin' Snoopee . . . somebody sent Lotus Long (heroine of "Eskimo") a baby seal which is now kept in the bathtub—and that means Lotus is bathing out these days—well, at least, until she can get another tub for the seal . . . Jean Hersholt has been a frolicking at the Biltmore Bowl to the tune of Jimmie Grier's orchestra . . . Jane Johns, a newcomer to Hollywood from San Francisco, has joined the cast of the Tinsle-Tangle Revue . . . Winifred Greenwood, one of the really early movie stars (back in the days of the American Film Company, at Santa Barbara), is appearing at the actor's workshop in Herb Stern's new play, "Six to One" . . . RKO execs are getting excited over Gloria Gallatin, pretty blonde who can warble like Jeannette MacDonald . . . Jackie Cooper's getting his sea-legs in shape for that vacation to Honolulu . . . Maybe this is something—and most likely it isn't—but Phillip Moeller, the RKO director, uses the longest cigaret holder you ever saw to direct the players. Well, he probably knows what he can do with it!

Stool Pigeon

"TIME IS money. When we lose time, we're losing money. And money is something we ain't in business to lose."

Mr. Steinberg, partner in the manufacturing concern of Steinberg and Weinberg, pounded the table savagely. He glared at Mr. Weinberg, who was seated at the other desk.

"I tell you, Weinberg, that we are being gypped in front of our very backs. Never in all my life have I heard of such a thing. What's going on anyhow?

"Orders we got bigger than last year. Men we got working more than last year. Hours we put in longer than last year. So what happens? So last year we made a fine profit—and so far this year we are in the red!

"Accountants we call in, and they show us in black and white that everybody is honest around here, including you. And me, of course. So everything is wonderful and we got a grand business. The employes are honest, the shop is humming, the orders are big—and every day we are losing money.

"For goodness sake, Weinberg, say something. You're my partner. The least you can do is to share my worries."

Mr. Weinberg lit a fat cigar and settled back in his chair with all the grace of a paralytic walrus.

"Steinberg," he said, reflectively, "it ain't in my nature to get too excited about anything. Even when Mollie had the twins I kept playing pinochle just like nothing had happened. But that don't mean that I don't worry, and that I ain't been wondering about our business just as much as you.

"All the things you say, I already know very well. The whole thing is as big a mystery as Judge Crater or Milton Berle. And yet, when you come right down to it, there can be only one reason why we're losing money."

"And that is —?" asked Mr. Steinberg.

"And that is," continued Mr. Weinberg, "the very thing you were talking about before. Time is what's giving us the finger. Our employes are stalling on their jobs. The output is too slow. And that's how our profits are being eaten up.

"We can't catch the men. Every time we open the factory door the workers work like crazy. And every time we close the door behind us, work comes almost to a standstill.

"We give him a phoney job in the factory and he watches everybody. He reports to us all the time—and every man who ain't doing more than his share is fired right away. In that way we get rid of the shirkers—and our business jumps like crazy. Catch on?"

Mr. Steinberg nodded slowly.

"Weinberg," he said, "I hate to admit it. But you finally got an idea." . . .

A few days later, a rat-faced individual stood before Mr. Steinberg's desk. He said his name was Cross and he insisted that he was the best stool pigeon in the business.

"I tell you, Mr. Steinberg," he asserted earnestly, "that there's nobody better'n me. Why, when I walk up a familiar street these days, I gotta hide my face for protection. I'd squeal on my own mother, and a good doublecross is more pleasure to me than a trip to Europe."

"You're hired," they both exclaimed together. . . .

Cross, the expert stool pigeon, went to work that very afternoon — and the partners sat back to await results. It wouldn't be long now until the stalling workers were discovered. They had hired the best informer in town and their problem was all but solved.

Much to their surprise, however, the big results failed to arrive. A long month went by —and Mr. Cross had yet to report a man shirking on the job or wasting any of the firm's valuable time.

"Steinberg," said Mr. Weinberg one morning, "something tells me we picked a lemon in that stool pigeon. The days go by, we keep losing money—and he don't catch nobody doing nothing wrong. With your permission—or without—I'm going to do a little investigating of my own."

for some three hours. And when he returned to his desk, he was purple with rage. He glared at Mr. Steinberg.

"I found out all there was to be found out," he cried. "And I want to tell you something, Steinberg. As a picker of stool pigeons, we got plenty to learn, You want to know what happened?"

"He asks me if I want to know what happened?" groaned Mr. Steinberg. "No, Weinberg, I don't. I got no interest in this thing except my money and my life."

"So, all right," continued his partner. "You should know now that every worker in the factory knows Cross is a stool pigeon. They work only when he's watching them—so he ain't able to catch nobody."

Mr. Steinberg drummed the desk.

"Just our luck," he sighed. "We hire a stool pigeon and he turns out no good."

"That's where you're wrong," said Weinberg, vehemently. "He wasn't no good—he was too good."

"Too good?" repeated Mr. Steinberg incredulously. "What are you talking about?"

"Just this," screamed his partner. "The first day that dirty bummer went to work, he squealed on himself!" . . .

FLASH—That play which Judith Anderson will do here for the Civic Playhouse was written by Alfred Golden, Pittsburgh dramatist, formerly of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement Players, and its title at the moment is "The Female of the Species."

KRIMSKY IN TOWN

John Krimsky, that intrepid young adventurer in stage and screen production, stopped in Pittsburgh yesterday en route to Hollywood whence he is bound to complete plans for independent film making.

It was Krimsky, you probably recall, who, with his partner, Gifford Cochran, imported that very fine German photoplay, "Maedchen in Uniform," then brought out an operatic version of "Emperor Jones," and wound up by making a talking screen version of the same Eugene O'Neill drama.

One of the purposes of Mr. Krimsky's stopover in Pittsburgh was to arrange for the distribution in this territory of the English-speaking version of "Maechden in Uniform." The Krimsky-Cochran combine visions vast possibilities in this picture with dialogue in English and will shortly release it in that form throughout the country.

It is the habit of the Messrs. Krimsky and Cochran to step in, and make a success of things, on ground regarded as fatal by the older generation of producers. Mr. Krimsky, the active member of the firm, sees immense opportunities in immediate independent production, and is preparing to put his first one before the cameras and microphones within five weeks.

This will be "Damn Deborah," a farce laid in the time of the Revolutionary War, and comes, Mr. Krimsky tells me, definitely in the "clean" category. It was written by Walter Charles Roberts, head of the dramatic department of Ithaca College, and will likely be used as a Broadway in addition to reaching the screen.

O'NEILL'S BLESSING

I was pleased to receive a call from Mr. Krimsky, and we reviewed those hot days on the "Emperor Jones" sets in the Astoria (Long Island) studios, where it was my duty, as publicity director of the distributing company that was to release the film, to catch such "news" of the production as I could.

As we watched the sweating Paul Robeson crawl through a steaming "jungle" to the beat of the tom-toms, Mr. Krimsky told me how he bearded Eugene O'Neill in the hermit playwright's den at Sea Island, Ga., and before he was done had the dramatist actually enthusiastic about a sound film version of "Emperor Jones."

O'Neill even forgot two unfinished plays for the Theater Guild, and for two entire weeks worked with Krimsky and Cochran on plans for the movie. And, if you know O'Neill's habits you know what a concession that was. When the picture was finished to a screen treatment prepared by Dubose Heyward, O'Neill even went so far as to give it his silent blessing, although he would have no public announcement to that effect.

Mr. Krimsky, making his first visit to Hollywood, is of the opinion that the day of block-booking and "monopoly" in the motion picture industry is near an end. He is getting in on the ground floor with extensive operating plans, and, as he has been right in the past, it may be he will be right again.

As an earnest and conscientious young producer, who can see beyond the dollar mark, I wish him success.

WHISPERING GALLERY

A group of young amateur enthusiasts will open the Variety either next Monday, or the following week, with a dramatic production of "The Rivals" . . . Lou Averbach, John Roach and Bernie Loda are prominent in the movement . . . Bill Burton, former Fulton assistant manager, is now selling automobiles . . . When the Fulton reopens it will be with Will Rogers in "Handy Andy" . . . "Red-Haired Alibi," a 1932 release, is being rushed out again because Shirley Temple is in it . . . Mary Pickford likes the work of her Eastern press agent, Frank Bruner, so well that she gave him a car and a gold cigaret case . . . The average weight of screen actresses has jumped from 106 pounds in 1929 to 113 today . . . "The Green Bay Tree" gave the Civic Playhouse its biggest box-office "take" since its formation . . . Krimsky and Cochran have their money back and then some from the screen version of "Emperor Jones" . . . "Smart" producers saw in it an artistic triumph and a boxoffice flop . . . Will George Tyson bring Christy Wilbert back with him from St. Louis? . . . John Hooley brought Will Rogers' "David Harum" back to the Family Theater today by request of his patrons . . . Signs of the times: Jean Muir's new picture is now "Desirable" instead of "A Lady Surrenders," and M-G-M has decided that Jean Harlow's "Born to Be Kissed" would be much nicer as "The Girl From Missouri," the title you will see it under when it follows "Bulldog Drummond" here.

Trustee Appointed For Hotel Company

The Commonwealth Trust Company, of Pittsburgh, was appointed trustee of the Ruskin Hotel Company by the Federal District Court, to effect a plan of reorganization of the company.

The appointment was on a petition brought under the provision of the amended section of the Bankruptcy Act. Bond was set at $25,000. The hotel company owns two adjoining buildings known as the Ruskin Annex and University Apartment building, on Ruskin avenue.

Teeth Stall Is Out at M-G-M

By LLOYD PANTAGES

HOLLYWOOD, July 18.—Seeing as how the Columbia Studios announced that they were definitely a major lot, having a shoe-shining parlor and a candy store on the premises, won't they be jealous when they find out that MGM has a complete dentist's office set up in their quarters. Now the executives can't eat, except in the chair, when they want to go out and play, by saying they must go to the dentist. Their dentist is to be brought to them. How swank.

* * *

It has just been discovered that the tunnel-mouthed comedian, Joe E. Brown, has a singing voice full of resonance and beauty. He will bellow for us in his next picture. Speaking of singing, here be a Tommie Tucker tale: Frank Capra, the industry's very best director, when a mere infant, used to sing in restaurants for free meals. Furthermore, after the pest came up in the world and got himself graduated from Cal. Tech, he was tutor to the son of the fabulously wealthy California woman, Anita Baldwin.

* * *

Everything is now happy days in Dixie at Mr. Fox's emporium, owing as how they built a perfectly wonderful little pigeon rest haven on the writers' building. But the pigeons cooed so loudly the writers could not concentrate. Now they have been done away with and everyone suspects the man who walked across the lot with a shotgun. The old meanie.

* * *

Play the following on your piano, and then go quickly and book a berth in a laughing academy: Ann Sothern naively announces that she always eats more when she worries and that she loves to eat, but she has nothing to worry about. How excruciating. Miss Allyn Drake, of Columbia, has positively no fear of obesity setting in, seeing as how she eats four or five meals a day, and at each sitting drinks a quart of milk along with her groceries. She would be a tasty dish to have around the kitchen.

* * *

If Fanny Brice is to give of her inimitable goofiness in the movie, "The Great Ziegfeld," she will have to do it before the picture actually goes into work, since it does not begin for eight weeks, and Fannie must needs be in Chicago in six weeks for "The Follies." Casualty note: Poor little Helen Mack, who was practically done up with pneumonia, sunbathed herself in our ex-ray sunshine for a cure, but is now burned to such a crispiness that she cannot walk. If you really want to lose your mind, play bridge with the three ex-stooges of Ted Healy. Wynne Gibson tried it, but in the middle of a rubberd iscovered that the boys had a system all their own—a kind of pantomine back and forth that eliminated the necessity of bidding.

* * *

Alexander Dumas, if alive, would undoubtedly be charmed to know that Gene Raymond has read "The Three Musketeers" 19 times, and is now going through it again.

Trust Company Here Gets Lake Property

CONNEAUT LAKE, Pa., July 18.—The Crawford County Trust Company has sold approximately 525 acres of land, which includes the golf course at Conneaut Lake Park to the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company. Transfer of the deeds gives to the Pittsburgh bank ownership of all the important properties at Conneaut Lake Park, including the Hotel Conneaut.

VARIED FEATURES ON AIR

Byrd Aide Discusses Weather

William (Cyclone) Haines, weather man at Little America and Dr. James H. Kimball, famous American meteorologist who advised Byrd, Lindbergh and many others on trans-Atlantic flights, exchange data in a two-way radio conversation tonight. This will occur during the weekly broadcast to and from the Byrd Antarctic Expedition over CBS-WJAS network from 10 to 10:30.

Haines, associated with Admiral Byrd on most of his major explorations, discusses impending aerial operations at Little America, regarded by many scientists as the "weather factory of the world."

He also takes the radio audience on a tour of Antarctic Meteorological Observatory.

Three Arrested In Hill Mooney Raids

Three persons were arrested and moonshine was reported seized in three raids in the Hill district last night.

Those arrested, according to Center Avenue police, were Malfinia Muffot, 39, of 43 Washington street; Lizzie C. Thomas, 38, of 1015 Bedford avenue, and Joseph Giandella, 54, of 47½ Washington street. They were charged with violating the liquor laws.

Milk Dealers Here To Scan New Rules

Milk dealers of the Pittsburgh marketing area will meet in the Fort Pitt Hotel at 8 p. m. today to discuss the new order of the milk control board which became effective today. A. M. Winnett, acting secretary of the milk dealers, said there will be no increase in the retail price of milk, but there will be some changes in prices paid to farmers.

Employes of the Juniata Shops of the Pennsylvania Railroad will hold a picnic in Kennywood tomorrow. Five special trains will bring railroad workers and their families to the park.

Trained Seals on WCAE Tonight

Two sparkling programs for children are broadcast from WCAE this afternoon — at 4:45 the Junior Patrol and at 5:30 the second episode in the serial of "Pieces of Eight," a story of buried treasures in the South Sea Isles.

At 6:45 Harry Keck and his Trained Seals will bring a four-star sport review. Baseball scores tonight are flashed at 6:30 and 11 o'clock.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

It was with a sigh of relief that we read in the paper that "Last Chance" Otto Hoover broke the world's parachute jumping record without mishap at the Pittsburgh-Greensburg airport last Sunday.

He made a total of nineteen jumps, beginning at 4:30 a. m. eastern standard time and continuing until night fall.

The last parachute jumper we introduced to the globe trotters was the late Lois Marshall, who, after telling how she expected to safely float to earth from a speeding airplane, was picked up dead after her fourth attempt to jump. She felt so confident of her success, too.

Maybe that was the difference between Lois and Otto. Otto has been jumping for more than 14 years and still admitted to the globe trotters on the radio that he is gripped by fright in the split seconds between the leap from the wing and the jolt of the opened 'chute.

I mentioned, too, on the radio if you recall, the experience of the late Lois Marshall, and asked whether Hoover thought that a similar misadventure might be awaiting him, but he tossed the question off with a few general remarks and a fatalistic shrug of his shoulders.

Auto Theft Suspects Surprised in Act

Surprised in the act of stripping an automobile of Joseph Goldberg, of 5138 Delavan street, according to police, John Medlik, 20, of 3820 Boundary street, and Thomas Murphy, 21, of 858 Monterio street, faced hearings in Morals Court. The two fled in Medlik's automobile, police said, and were traced through the license number.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

Joey Cole's Trio is heard for the first time on WJAS tonight at 6:15.

News flashes will be given at 6:30 and Eddie Peyton's Frivolities at 11:30.

Thrill Given By Speed Program

By AIRCASTER

There are other expedients than tales of horror and gunplay by which radio listeners can be thrilled and, say the creative gents at CBS-WJAS one is the sensation of speed.

This theory is to be tried in a new series of stunt programs beginning tomorrow night at 10:45.

They will be heard weekly until ideas are exhausted. The first will emanate from a speeding police launch in the East River.

The boat will be moving at top speed on orders from headquarters and an announcer aboard will describe the modus operandi of chasing river pirates and other outlaws of the water front.

Subsequent broadcasts will be from a racing mail plane, a police ambulance, a fire engine and every other conceivable vehicle to which the law gives the right of way over ordinary traffic.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Ringworm Is Common in Summer

During the summer months there have appeared numerous advertisements in the various publications and street cars calling attention to the menace of "athletes' foot." This is a common affliction of the skin, prevalent during the warm weather. But it is a disease that is met at other times of the year.

Dr. Copeland

The term "athlete's foot" has been greatly popularized within recent years. It is an infection of the skin, not necessarily confined to the foot or to athletes. The disease sometimes afflicts athletes, but is equally prevalent among all persons exposed to the causative fungus or germ.

Doctors glory in big names. Among themselves the fungus is called "tricophyton" and the disease is known as "dermatomycosis trichophytina." This ailment is as annoying as its name. It may occur anywhere on the body, but as a rule is found on the face, hands, neck, forearms, soles of the feet and in the skin between the toes.

In a characteristic case the inflammation appears on the skin in a ringlike formation. Indeed, it is known by another name, "ring worm." The inflammation begins as a flat, reddish spot, then enlarges, becomes colored in the center, having a signet-ring- like appearance. The ring itself is elevated, reddened and scaly.

The outer border is usually darker than the inner border. As a rule, the center of the ring is pale, pinkish or almost identical with the color of the skin. The inflammation persists for several days or weeks, then disappears, only to reappear elsewhere on the body.

Unfortunately, not all cases are alike and not all resemble the description here given. Sometimes it may be difficult to recognize the nature of the infection. In many instances, watery blisters form on the skin, the inflammation itches and is extremely annoying.

The disease is highly contagious and squickly spreads from one individual to another. For this reasons it is of the utmost importance that necessary medical attention be obtained and every effort made to prevent its spread. During the summer months at the public beach or in the swimming pool a sufferer from ringworm is a menace to other bathers. Fortunately, public health authorities have realized this danger and enforce the sterilization of towels, swimming pools and bath houses. I am glad to say that this has greatly decreased the cases of ringworm.

Never neglect any inflammation or infection of the skin. If you notice intense itching of the skin, with blisters, especially between the toes, or if there is redness and cracking of the skin between the toes, suspect ringworm.

Do not apply any preparation without first consulting with your physician. Bear in mind that what is good for one person may be harmful for another.

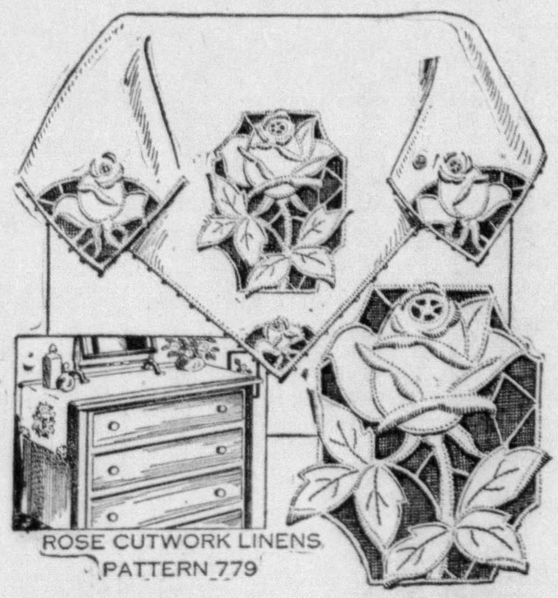
Answers to Health Queries

Rose Q.—I am a girl of 17 and wish to clear my complexion of pimples and blackheads. What would you advise?

A.—Proper diet, regular exercise and regular habits should be of general benefit and advantage. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

LAURA WHEELER DESIGNS



Roses are every gardener's joy and these will be every needlewoman's joy as well. Simple sweeping lines in cutwork set off this lovely flower that can be done as effectively in white on white or colored linen, or in a variety of colors, thus permitting the use of all the delicate coloring of the rose. The motifs lend themselves to cloths with napkins, luncheon sets, scarfs, pillows, vanity and buffet sets with equal beauty, thus filling the needs of the needlewoman who wants just a tiny bit of cutwork to do or one who wants to make an ornate piece.

Pattern 779 comes to you with a transfer pattern of two motifs 5½ x 6¾ inches, two and two reverse 3½ inch corners and three and three reverse 2-inch corners; illustrations for all stitches used; directions for doing cutwork; suggestions for using the motifs in a variety of ways; and material requirements.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

REMNANT DAY

"THE GREATEST THING OF ITS KIND IN AMERICA!"

There is only ONE Remnant Day to the people of Pittsburgh—Remnant Day at Boggs & Buhl! Originated at this store over a half century ago—yearly it has grown in volume until today no other store-wide clearance sale equals the scope and breadth of Boggs & Buhl Remnant Day.

Here is the way it is done. In every department of the store, the entire stock is searched for merchandise that should be cleared out in the interest of good storekeeping. Regardless of cause—age, odd lots, surplus stock, mussed from handling, etc.—it is put to one side and plainly marked with a RED INK price—a price that in every case positively assures the sale of that item.

Whether you want apparel for yourself or family, furniture, rugs or other home needs, you will find them Remnant Day at this store, at the lowest prices you will see during the year. And bear in mind that this year's tremendous Anniversary Sale in June has left us with more odd lots than ever which we must move out. Come, see, Friday, how we've cut prices to accomplish this one purpose—to move goods.

TROLLEY OFFICIALS TO BE CALLED IN WAGE HEARING

CHILD PLUNGES INTO PATH OF AUTO, DIES

Bigelow Boulevard Head-on Collision Injures 2 Men

Eight-year-old Louisa Patek, of Aiken road, Kennedy Township, was killed last night when she broke from her mother's grasp and stepped into the path of an automobile in Lincoln Highway, Robinson Township, according to the Coroner's report.

The girl was taken to the office of Dr. J. W. Burkett, of Moon Run, where she was pronounced dead of a fractured skull and internal injuries. Mrs. Evelyn Wood, of 67 Stanwood street, Crafton, the driver, was ordered to post bond at the Coroner's office today, deputy coroners reported.

Two men were injured when two automobiles collided head-on in Bigelow boulevard, near the Seventeenth Street Incline late yesterday. The injured were Charles Freedburg, 59, and his son, Mulford Freedburg, 30, both of 5831 Darlington road. They were taken to Montefiore Hospital.

George C. Knorr, 31, of Portland, Ore., driver of the other automobile, was arrested.

Five persons were injured when two automobiles collided in Long Run road, Versailles Township, yesterday. The injured, taken to McKeesport Hospital, were William Weller, 29, of 724 Fairview avenue, McKeesport, and Edward Escher, 23, of 515 Second street, Bradock, the drivers; Raymond Lipman, 22, of Corey avenue, Braddock; Helen Haney, 21, of 7934 Union avenue, Swissvale, and Victoria Kubant, 17, of 2613 Delaware avenue, McKeesport.

Three men were hurt when the automobile in which they were riding collided with a street car on a curve at Eighth avenue and Ravine street, Munhall, late yesterday.

The victims were Lloyd S. Lewis, 59, of 5651 Second avenue, Hazelwood, the driver; Paul Milko, 32, of Duquesne avenue, Munhall Terrace, and Frank Soalles, 25, of 290 Hays Glenn street, Hays, police said. They were taken to Homestead Hospital.

Edward Kalchthaler, of 5208 Poe way, was reported in a serious condition today in West Penn Hospital from injuries suffered last night when he was struck by an automobile in Craig street, near Fifth avenue.

VICTIM OF AUTO IDENTIFIED

A man who died early yesterday in Mercy Hospital from injuries suffered when struck by an automobile at Market and Water streets was identified at the Morgue last night as Martin Gannon, 46, of 527 Fifth avenue.

Attorney Bernard J. McKenna identified Gannon as a former client. McKenna said Gannon had several sisters living in New England, and deputy coroners were making efforts to communicate with them.

Shortly after the man's death police were informed that he had been represented at law by Mayor William N. McNair when he was injured in an automobile accident a year ago.

FIVE INJURED, DRIVER HELD

An alleged drunken driver was under arrest in Aliquippa today after his automobile collided headon with another machine, causing the injury of five persons, according to Aliquippa police.

The injured were Edward Bauer, 25, of West street, Pittsburgh, the driver; Mrs. Mary Woolslayer, 57, and Mrs. Alice Summerill, 54, of Tioga street, Wilkinsburg; Mrs. Ellen Pohlot, 29, of Chester avenue, North Side, and Mrs. Virginia Shaffer, 44, of East End avenue. The injured were taken to the Rochester Hospital.

AIRPORT RATES WON'T BE CUT, COUNTY SAYS

Fees Not Out of Line, Marion Declares; Scores Service

The rates for airplane service at the $4,000,000 county airport will remain unchanged, it was indicated today.

In a letter made public by the County Commissioners, A. M. Marion, director of parks and aviation, informed L. P. Arnold, of the Transcontinental and Western Air Lines that his complaints of high rates were unjustified.

Arnold, in a letter to the commission, said the company he served was paying the local airport more than twice as much as any other field, and urged three classifications of reductions.

Not only did Marion refuse, maintaining that the figures Arnold submitted did not include the lines' revenues from mail, freight and express, but added:

"We feel that Pittsburgh with its large population is entitled to more consideration than that of a 'way station,' and if it gets such consideration, your revenues would increase and the percentage of charges for airport use here decrease."

Marion and County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, indignant at the complaints, emphasized that the airport here had been adjudged by those who complained as one of the finest airports in the country.

They pointed out that Pittsburgh had been slated to be a terminal, but that the TWA scheduled it a "way station," and reserved only six of 60 seats for Pittsburghers on the Chicago to New York service.

Marion said:

"There is enough business to justify operating a ship every hour from Pittsburgh to New York."

He pointed out that according to airport figures, the company paid the airport $1,917 in May and June last year, and $2,132 this year, an increase of 11 per cent, whereas the company showed an increase of 53 per cent in revenues.

Arnold had maintained the increase in airport charges was 112 per cent.

The local airport, Marion continued, furnished more revenue than any port except Newark, and should be treated with relative consideration.

SARA LOUISE, 8, SHOWING HER FIREMEN-FATHER THE FIRE DAMAGE AT THEIR HOME

ILL GIRL SOUNDS FIRE ALARM

Sara Louise Reichel's playmates hailed the eight-year-old girl as the heroine today of a fire which badly damaged her home at 19½ Mineola avenue, West View, yesterday.

Recovering from an illness, she was resting quietly on a davenport in the living room when the fire broke out.

In a flash, she called a warning to her mother, Mrs. Frank J. Reichel, her sister, Cecelia, and dashed across lots to the nearest fire box. Sick, barefooted, and scantily clad, she was the only one with sufficient presence of mind to sound the alarm.

Next door in the double house, the family of Edward Rebel also escaped the flames with a few of their possessions. Quick work by the West View Volunteer Fire Department saved the house, a two-story frame, from complete destruction.

NAME TRUSTEES AT FOLLANSBEE

John Follansbee and George T. Ladd, of Pittsburgh, and Isaac M. Scott, of Wheeling, were appointed permanent trustees of the Follansbee Brothers Company by Federal Judge R. M. Gibson to effect a plan of reorganization of the company, under provisions of a recently amended section of the bankruptcy act. The concern, with offices in Pittsburgh, has plants in Follansbee, W. Va., and Toronto, O.

Creditors and stockholders attended the hearing before Judge Gibson to determine whether temporary appointments of Follansbee, who is president of the company, and Ladd, made June 18, should become permanent. There were no objections, but on motion of counsel for creditors and stockholders the name of Scott was submitted, as a third trustee, because of large interests of the concern in West Virginia.

Bond for the trustees was set at $50,000 each.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 18.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well for a little fresh air away from Hollywood, made a little two hour flight up to Frisco last night. Lovely historic old place, but it seems nothing ever happens here.

Will Rogers

Never saw it as quiet. About the only news, Max Baer who lives near here, announces he won't fight this fall, that set the old town kinder agog.

I see among the hotel arrivals is Gen. Hugh Johnson, who is passing through going to Los Angeles, he is lectioneering for the N.R.A. I want to see "Robbie" before she gets out of town.

Some talk of President Roosevelt pulling in here for fuel, but I see where he has gone to Honolulu instead, nothing ever happens in this town. Oh, yes, the national guard is using the old town as a summer camp, instead of Monterey. That brings in a little extra money, the chamber of commerce landed them. To kinder stir up a little interest in the place the governor spoke on the radio last night on "civic pride." Certainly a quiet restful old city, but nothing ever happens here.

Yours, WILL.

Versailles Treaty Turns Out to Be Sam Loyd Puzzle

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

If you do not understand just why that famous Versailles treaty started trouble, we will explain it until you are dizzy.

America wanted nothing. And got it. The nations who wanted something did not get what they wanted.

The victory was complicated because there were 15 or 20 winners. And most of the gang shootings occur when the bandits are dividing up the swag.

Instead of being a peace treaty, the Versailles document turned out to be a Sam Loyd puzzle. How can a man take a lion, a lamb and a wolf across a river in a boat without making more than one trip?

The answer is that he cannot. And that's why the Versailles treaty will go down in history as the bone that did not knit.

TEACHER SEEKS DIVORCE

Edward J. Caye, 5336 Keystone street, teacher at the South High School and well-known scholastic basketball coach and official, testified his wife tore up his school records, threw out his clothes and threw water on him, in his suit for divorce before Judge Samuel H. Gardner.

The wife, Katherine Caye, 4819 Dearborn street, contesting the case, said that ever since they returned from their honeymoon trip to Washington in 1928 he had spent every evening away from home. She added:

"He said I was too dumb, and that was why he wouldn't stay at home with me or take me places. He said he was always at basketball games or political meetings, but they don't keep up till long after midnight."

Mrs. Caye said that during their seven-year courtship, while Caye was a student for the priesthood at Duquesne University, he had forbidden her to go out with any of her friends, either men or women, but immediately after he gave up his studies and married her he went out every night.

PACKAGED RUM SALE FAVORED

Legislation permitting the sale of packaged liquor in restaurants for off-premises consumption is favored by the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board, according to A. M. Meek, of Johnstown, treasurer of the State Restaurant Code Authority and member of the liquor committee of the Western Pennsylvania Restaurant Association, in an address to the latter organization last night.

Meek said A. Marshall Thompson, member of the Control Board, had told him the legislation would be favored as a measure against bootlegging.

Robert S. Gawthrop, liquor board chairman, said today in Harrisburg that he has "never heard" of a move to have the board support legislation, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

R. L. Gammon announced a campaign to prohibit by legislative amendments to the present liquor laws, Sunday sales in private clubs, investigation of chartered clubs with a view of eliminating "one man" clubs and limitation of club licenses to organizations in which members pay at least $20 a year dues.

CAR MEN SEEK TO PROVE PAY BOOST NEEDS

Union Holds Company Able to Grant Raise

Counsel for union street car operating employes were preparing today to call officials of the Pittsburgh Railways Company as witnesses in an effort to prove the company could and should pay the men higher wages.

Building up the case for the union men, who are presenting their side first, O. David Zimring, of Chicago, introduced tables yesterday showing that the hourly crew rate in Pittsburgh is 18 cents an hour less than the average for six other large cities. The other cities were Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, St. Louis, Boston and San Francisco.

Pittsburgh trolley men, he said, get 43.9 per cent less than the average for the other cities.

Zimring introduced a descriptive pamphlet of the minimum health and decency budget of the United States Bureau of Labor, as he sought to show the wages paid here did not permit the workers to live properly.

He supplemented this with a private survey made here in May by a group of experienced welfare workers who went around pricing everything from beef stew to furniture. A chart of averages showed that it cost the average family $1,914.85 annually to live in the city.

Zimring said this did not include such items as telephones, automobile, radio, washing machines, vacations, savings, razor blades, tobacco, haircuts or clothing for the wife.

The provisions made for clothing in the table were not much, if any, higher than allowances made for charity clothing by welfare agencies, he stated.

To live even somewhat in accord with this standard, the trolley men would need an increase to $6.60 for a six-hour day asked by the union, he said.

The hearings are being held before a special arbitration board, composed of Dr. J. W. Madden, chairman; Councilman John J. Kane and Philip A. Fleger in the Bar Association room of the City-County Building.

PERRY HIGHWAY TO BE WIDENED

The Perry highway will be widened from Perrysville to the Pines, and from there to 1,700 feet north of the Highland school, be relocated and reconstructed, it was announced today by the county planning engineer, E. L. Schmidt.

The state will widen the road and do the actual work, which will cost in excess of $200,000. The county will pay property damages estimated at $82,300.

From Perrysville to the Pines, the road will be widened from 30 to 42 feet, and from there, for one mile and three-tenths it will be relocated and widened from 18 to 30 feet.

Bottle Falls From Shelf, Hits Girl

Miss May Whalen, of 3548 Massachusetts avenue, North Side, was taken to Mercy Hospital when glass from a falling ginger ale bottle struck her in the eye while she and a companion, Nellie Darton, of 227 Spencer avenue, were seated in a booth in a Wood street restaurant last night, according to police. At the hospital a physician reported to police that Miss Whalen suffered no apparent injury. She was taken to her home. The bottle fell from a shelf above the booth.

Airbrake Company Gets $75,000 Order

Orders for brake equipment totaling $75,000 have been placed by the Pennsylvania Railroad with the Westinghouse Air Brake Company at Wilmerding, according to air announcement today by local rail officials. The equipment will be installed on 28 additional electric locomotives, recently ordered by the railroad. The placing of this brake equipment order, it is said, will provide work for additional men at the Westinghouse plant.

New Girl Trade School Planning Approved

A resolution authorizing the planning of a new trade school for girls, and indorsement of City Council's anti-fireworks ordinance featured a meeting of the Board of Public Education yesterday.

The resolution for the new school was offered by Mrs. John M. Phillips, a member of the board. In it she suggested that school officials make a study of girl trade school needs and draw up plans with a view of having them ready when the opportune time for building comes within the next few years.

In regard to Council's ordinance on fireworks, the board went on record as favoring an airtight ban on the sale of fireworks except under permit from the Department of Public Safety.

The board also voted to close the two-room school in Beck's Run road, holding that proposed repairs to the 35-year-old building would cost more than the value of the structure. Discontinuance of the school was opposed by a delegation of residents from the Beck's Run road district. Plans were announced by the board to transport children from the district in taxicabs to the Wickersham School in Carson street.

Transfer of Dana Z. Eckert, principal of the Herron Hill Junior High School, to Prick Training School, succeeding Herbert Spencer, was approved. Mr. Spencer recently was named to the faculty of the University of Pittsburgh. Eckert's place will be filled by H. L. Cleland, principal of Horace Mann School.

Youth Dies in Plunge Into Allegheny

A two-hour battle to resuscitate John B. Fierst, 21, of 1343 Penn avenue, after he was taken unconscious from Pool No. 9 in the Allegheny River at the foot of Thirteenth street, proved futile last night.

Fierst, an expert swimmer, failed to reappear after diving from a board. Elmer Kleber, the guard, working his first day at the pool, was unable to find him. He summoned Chester Forsythe and Edward E. Grimm, houseboat occupants, who dragged the pool and and brought Fierst to the surface.

Police applied artificial respiration in an effort to revive him. After two hours, Fierst was pronounced dead by a physician.

River Patrolman Charles Snyder questioned witnesses and learned that Kleber began diving immediately after Fierst failed to appear. Kleber replaced a guard fired Monday for negligence, police said. The guard was absent Sunday when a young boy, swimming about 200 feet from the pool, screamed for help. Forsythe and Grimm rescued and revived him.

Deputy coroners were informed that Fierst's death was probably due to drowning. Witnesses expressed belief that the youth either struck his chin with his knee while diving or struck an object on the bottom of the pool. His chin bore a deep laceration.

Fierst was the son of B. J. Fierst, who operates a barber shop at the Penn avenue address.

Tries Hanging in Cell, Now He's Jail Nudist

Harry Swatsworth, 38, of 2038 Tustin street, spent the night in Center Avenue Police cell in nature's garb as a result, police said, of two attempts to hang himself.

Swatsworth, arrested at Watson and Magee streets on a charge of drunkenness, attempted to hang himself with his belt shortly after he had been placed in a cell, according to Sergt. Joseph Kohnke, who frustrated the alleged attempt. Kohnke took the prisoner's belt. He made another round of the cellroom 45 minutes later and reported finding Swatsworth fashioning his sock into a noose.

To balk further attempts Kohnke disrobed the prisoner, he said. Swatsworth will be arraigned today.

Long Mourning Period Is Thing of Past

The days of lavender and old lace are gone. The times when we mourned our dead for years, when we sought little green trunks in the attic and shed tears over letters tied in blue ribbon. These are as passe as hoop skirts and waterfall curls.

The Civil War was partially responsible for this epoch of heavy grief. After the four years' span of bloodshed it was the vogue for women to mourn. Graves on the hillside were wreathed and flowered. And women in black knelt over small glasses full of petunias and forgetmenots, tears running down their cheeks and burying themselves in the mossy ground.

There was a romantic aloofness in their sorrow.

In "Long Remember," a modern story of the battle of Gettysburg, by MacKinlay Kantor, this spirit is evident. Although written with the quick action and the raw facts of present day literature, in the end the hero who had been a pacifist loses out, and the heroine remains faithful to her crippled veteran. It appears a noble sacrifice, a timely act of devotion.

Miss Brunot

Yet is that what we do now? Or do we live but for the present? There is a rushing on to what will be next that fairly erases the past for us. When we lay someone in the ground, it is looked upon as the end.

We are expected to go on to new contacts, and to forget.

SWEETHEART DIED

Dear Miss Brunot:

I read your advice every night, I am in great trouble, and have decided to ask you about it. I am 18 years of age, and always have gone steadily with a fellow for two years. Just about two and a half months ago he died. We loved each other dearly, and were planning to get married.

When he died I thought I would never go out with anyone again. Lately, however, I have been meeting a fellow who seems to think a lot of me. He is always wanting to take me places. I refuse to go.

He has brought me a few little gifts, which I have accepted, for I do not care to hurt his feelings. I do not seem to care for this fellow. I like him, but I can't find any love in me for him. It is because of the other fellow.

WAITS FOR HER

I still cling to memories of him. I told the new fellow all this, and yet he visits. When he drops in I and my mother or my sister may be sitting on the porch. And I say "Hello" to him, and go out somewhere. No matter what time I return, he is still there.

And invariably he has sandwiches, or something good to eat, awaiting me.

Mother and dad and everyone in the family like him and think it terrible the way I treat him. But, Miss Brunot, what's the use of acting a part which I don't feel? BLONDIE.

It is natural your family cannot feel your sorrow as deeply as you do. The sweetheart left behind when a man dies never gets the same tolerance a widow does. That is life. The legal words had not been spoken. That is vital with other people.

Your heart aches, sister. You loved, and lost your man. But you are very young, the world is active, we live entirely for the living. The dead are left in vaults and upon hillsides. Drive through the country, and we see many neglected mounds. Already the rows of crosses in France are but faint memories, only rekindled on Armistice Day, or when some mothers leave Hoboken for a trip to France.

We are a forgetful people. For there is so much newness in the air. New inventions, new di-dos, new everything. The old, and especially that which is buried, must be forgotten, in the onward rush.

And it may be best. It is at least the material thing to do. Your emotions will heal. Time will leave only a faint scar upon your heart. And so, perhaps the wise thing to do, is let matters drift. Accept the sandwiches, be tolerant toward the new love. It may mean happiness in the end for you.

REFUSED KISS

Dear Miss Brunot:

I read your Speak Up, Sister, column and enjoy it. I started to go with a fellow in February. I see him almost every Saturday at a dance. He always gave me from four to six dances, but now he doesn't even give me a dance, Miss Brunot, I think he is cool, because he asked me if he could walk home with me, and I said yes. But when we were walking towards the house, he asked me for a kiss. And I wouldn't give it to him.

I would like him to talk and be the same as ever. Sometimes he says "hello." But that is all.

BROKEN-HEARTED JOAN.

I fancy you have the correct reason for the young man's coolness. Wait awhile, and let him see you are still friendly with him by speaking whenever you get the chance. I am sure his hurt feeling will pass on, and he will ask you to dance again.

When a young fellow asks for a kiss, and especially in the dark, he treads on dangerous ground. Girls usually say "no." And even if their eyes are contradicting their words, the darkness hides it.

FAY. KING

By FAY KING

It is interesting to read of a fine wedding where great wealth and social position contribute so much to its splendor.

But for such a couple we wish that they may be as happy together as many other young couples who have married on small means.

If a young pair are really in love, wealth or the lack of it does not make much difference. They can be as blissfully content in the happy adventure of planning a cozy little home on a budget as sailing around on private yachts and having several mansions.

Many a humble home has been filled with bright and beautiful children, while wealthy marriages have remained childless.

It isn't wealth or the lack of it—but love and loyalty that count.

THREE KINDS OF EVENING COSTUME

By PRUNELLA WOOD

SATURDAY NIGHTS sort of loom up in a woman's mind these dog day months as sartorial problems. There is little fun in always sticking at home and playing hostess; it's the time of year to sample hospitality in other people's vacation shacks, and dressed to kill, at that.

So what does Mrs. Whoosis do of a Saturday night when she has house guests? Is it the one night when the people in her community get themselves up in clothes that would do the height of the Palm Beach season honor? Or do people in those parts affect a rustic simplicity at all times, treating all revels as if they were country barn dances, best approached in gingham or a clean tennis frock? Then again, maybe she is the kind of woman who figures that week-ends are made for rest, and a simple dinner at home, with everyone in a soft frock or hostess gown, is the ticket.

* * *

AT THE moment, the formal gowns one could choose are demonstrating that dark colors point up a summer evening scene. Just as regularly as velvet hats bloom in August, blooms the dark frock for August evenings. Much pleated tulle, with perhaps a garland at shoulder and skirt-flounce of bright field flowers; thin satin cut very simply and with a very deep decollete; and dark chiffon or velvet-dotted net over a light slip are some of the materials used in this genre. They look stunning for their own part and are perfect foils for other women's frocks of light, airy hue.

* * *

IN THE barn dance tradition fine gingham cut with a tennis dress back and a trained skirt is something pretty swell. One picks out a color scheme which will show up under artificial lights, a pair of very cut-out sandals that harmonizes, and cancels stockings in favor of an exotic pedicure. If you are the type, you can look very young and fresh in such a getup. Dotted Swiss in the Spanish fancy, organza styled with rows of tucking and rickrack braid or colored pipings, and wash satin cut on sports frock lines are all good for this sort of hayseed nonsense.

For the simple dinner gown, or the hostess gown, any soft model of becoming color will fill the bill. Flowered stuffs are effective, and so are contrasted thin flat crepes.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Given in Marriage :: A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Gives First Aid to Hugh

For an instant after Hugh Grantland, weakened from the loss of blood following the knife thrust by one of the Chinese, had swooned at my feet, I was helpless from panic.

Indeed, it was a situation which might have daunted any woman. A wounded, insensible man and two bound and gagged men, who must be transported to the farm house without being seen by any curious passerby, to say nothing of the restorative measures which I knew must be given to Hugh at once—these were the tasks that confronted me; and for the panic-stricken fraction of a second that followed Hugh's swoon, they seemed insuperable.

Then from somewhere there came flowing into me the strength of mind and body which I needed. I knew, of course, that on me alone was the responsibility for the acts of the next few minutes, and that mine must be the decision as to what was best to be done.

"Do either of you boys happen to have a first aid kit with you?" I asked, without hope, but knowing that there could be none in Bob's car where Katie waited.

DRAG MEN AWAY

"You bet," Hank said proudly. "When we came out on this stunt this morning, we figured we might need something like that. It's with our bicycles."

"Get it quick," I commanded. "Jim, drag those men away, and tie each of them to a tree—securely, mind, so that they will stay there until we can come after them. Bill, come here and help me with Major Grantland."

Bill was already at my side, and while Jim dragged away the two Chinese—whose eyes would have killed us all if their expressions had been given power to slay—Dicky's oldest nephew and I laid Hugh on his back, with his heels higher than his head, and Bill cut away sweater, shirt and undercloth-ing to disclose a deep knife slash in his shoulder, from which the blood was welling.

We scarcely had finished our task before Hank came racing back, and with trembling fingers I snatched the surgical gauze, unrolled it and put it next the wound.

It was, of course, not nearly sufficient to stanch the flow of blood—I had used it simply to prevent infection if possible—and as I looked up I saw that Bill had divested himself of his shirt and rolled it up into a compact bundle, which he now held out to me.

"If you could put that next, and press it close, Auntie Madge," he said deferentially, "I'll slit up Hank's shirt for bandages. Pull it off, Hank."

PREPARE BANDAGES

Hank obeyed, and helped his brother prepare strips which, knotted together, made creditable bandages, and with these we bound the wounded shoulder as tightly as we dared. Then from my purse I drew the powerful smelling salts with which I long ago fortified hyself against my mother-in-law's heart attacks, and which I always carry, and held them under Hugh's nose.

"Have you water?" I asked Bill softly.

"Yes, here in the little thermos that goes with the first aid," he replied.

"Prepare a dose of aromatic spirits of ammonia immediately," I said. "If you have a first aid kit—"

"We have it," Bill finished, holding up the bottle.

It seemed hours instead of seconds that I crouched on the ground by Hugh's side, holding the powerful smelling salts under his nostrils and hoping that he would open his eyes.

"And I fainted!" he said, in a voice so weak that his fierce self-scorn was rather lost in it.

"No wonder!" I retorted warmly. "You had a knife wound in you which might have killed you, and you kept on fighting regardless."

HUGH WEAK

"And what would you have had me do?" he asked. "Stop fighting?"

"No, but I would have you stop scoring yourself, for fainting. But, now that you're awake again, we must plan how to get you to the hospital. Jim and Bill and Hank, I am sure, can carry you to the car."

Unexpectedly he raised himself on one elbow, then spoke firmly.

"I will not go to the hospital," he said. "Please understand that. We must have no publicity about this thing, if it is possible to avoid it. I am going back to The Larches or to the farm, and I'll have a doctor look at this, if you insist."

Long before he had finished speaking he had sunk back again to his reclining position, and his last words trailed off weakly. But his smile flashed up as I repeated his last words indignantly.

"If I insist! Of course I insist. And you are going not to The Larches, but to the farm, where we can look after you."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Birthday Gifts

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Your column has been so helpful to me in the past. It seems incredible that you should be a friend to so many unseen and unknown readers!

I, too, have a problem. I have known two young people since the second month of this year. They are twins and they are going to have a birthday next month. I met them at school. I have been "going places" with one of these . . . the other is a girl.

I should like to know whether it would be proper to give them gifts for their birthday? I am rather puzzled because my birthday is the following month and none of us are working, and I'm afraid that it would be a "give back" proposition if I do give them something. You see they would undoubtedly want to return my thought.

If you think that it would be proper, what would you suggest for the boy who is going to be 20 . . . and what for his twin sister? R.

Under the circumstances, since there apparently is a question of budgeting and of "paying back" involved, I suggest that you don't make any special gesture about giving birthday presents to these twins. You might send each a friendly note of felicitations and good wishes, or birthday telegrams . . . either certainly starts a birthday right!

If this isn't enough in your estimation, you might send the girl a corsage of one or two gardenias, or a box of candy, and the boy a carton of cigarets, or a nice plain white linen handkerchief or a book.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By Josephine Culbertson

My Dumb Partner

I think that most people who have played Bridge with me will concede me good manners at the Bridge table. I never "bawl out" my partner, nor do I criticize my opponents. In the first place it is a breach of good form and in the second place it is useless and profitless. However, I must admit that there was an occasion during the recent National Bridge Teachers' Convention in New York when, in a Duplicate game that furnished part of the entertainment for the teachers attending, my partner utterly failed to live up to the obligations of partnership in a situation which, though rare, appears to me to be crystal clear. In fact, when it was too late to change the result, my partner, who is not generally regarded as "dumb," admitted that his drawing of the wrong inferences was almost a major Bridge crime. The situation and hand upon which this discussion is based were as follows, my partner and I sitting South and North respectively:

East, Dealer.

	♠ A K Q 2 ♡ 8 ◇ A 6 ♣ A K 10 5 3 2
♠ 9 8 4 ♡ J 4 3 2 ◇ K J 10 7 3 2 ♣ —	North West East South	♠ J 10 3 ♡ A K Q 7 ◇ 0 8 4 ♣ Q 9 4
	♠ 7 6 5 ♡ 10 9 6 5 ◇ 9 5 ♣ J 8 7 6

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♡	Pass	3 ♡ (1)	Double (2)
Pass	Pass (3)	Pass

1—A very fine effort to inhibit bidding by North and South in case North holds a big hand.

2—The only alternative would be a bid of four hearts. This would be very bad in case my partner should respond with five diamonds. Under the circumstances I could do nothing but double for a Takeout. It was of course perfectly obvious, even though my partner failed to grasp it, that this could not be a Double for penalties, for had I wanted to play for penalties I should have waited until my opponents had contracted for game, which they were almost sure to do.

3—Of course South must bid four clubs. My double has clearly indicated a tremendous hand, since it shows preparedness to play at a contract of four even though my partner should have a worthless hand. My partner must give me the opportunity to make the final decision as to the proper contract.

In the play the contract of three hearts doubled was made. The diamond 9 was opened. I cashed my Ace and then three spade tricks. But after that there were no tricks left for us.

Had my partner responded with four clubs, the hand would have been played in five clubs, which of course could have been made without difficulty. The losing diamond in the South hand could be discarded on the fourth spade in the North hand, thus limiting South's losers to one heart and one trump trick.

The Beauty Bo

By HELEN FOLLETT

Soft, silky, thin hair is likely to take too good a permanent wave. Yet if it doesn't get a decided crimp it goes limp, all is lost. After the first finger wave, don't use water; substitute brilliantine. Water is likely to destroy the wide lines, produce small corrugated ones.

Undersized school girls worry and fear they're always going to be half portions. The slim princess is their ideal, a beauteous lady in sweeping draperies persued by the handsome cavalier who, quaintly enough, resembles the favorite movie actor. If they're still sweet sixteen there is hope for them, they may grow taller.

Growth depends upon nourishment and exercise. Little Miss Pint-size should lap up her cream and milk, take cod liver oil, eat a balanced diet of meats, cereals, vegetables and fruits. She needs a great deal of sleep, plenty of sunlight and outdoor exercise. As growth uses up energy, each meal should be satisfying.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

Today brought a wedding of interest, although it was small, as most July ceremonies are.

The bride was attractive Ann Steitz, a daughter of Mrs. John Steitz, of Valmont street, and the bridegroom, James West Arrott Rider, son of the Roscoe C. Riders, of Pittsburgh and Cambridge Springs.

They were married at noon today in the Steitz home by the Rev. Father Burke of St. Paul's Cathedral.

Rose Point Tiara For Bride's Veil

Her only attendant, her sister, Mary Steitz, wore a pink mousseline de soie dress having a short-sleeved jacket. Ruching marked the brief sleeves and the bottom of the skirt. Her large pink straw hat had an extra brim of blue organdie. She carried butterfly roses.

Roscoe C. Rider, Jr., was his brother's best man. There were no ushers.

Allegheny Country Club Smart Mecca

The depletion in the ranks of the smart set on Sewickley Heights due to summer travelers is never so noticeable as at the country clubs, where the gathering of lunchers and golfers shrinks to less than half its usual quota.

Yesterday at the Allegheny Country Club I noticed just a few of the people familiar to Tuesday club goers.

Margaret Painter, Mrs. Putnam Goldsbury and Margaret McCready were indulging in a fast set of tennis up on the grass courts. Margaret Painter wore white, as did Margaret McCready. Mrs. Goldsbury wore blue and white barred cotton.

Mrs. George L. Craig, Jr. and Genevieve Bell were golfing together, and so were Mrs. Thomas E. Rhodes and Virginia Jones. Virginia was in pale blue pique and her companion chose yellow crepe.

Sunning on the terrace were Mrs. Lewis A. Park, in a white sports frock; Evelyn Evans in a green and white finely barred cotton shirtmaker dress; Mrs. W. C. Robinson, Jr., in white silk jersey with a blue and white crepe scarf, Mrs. David Meall Gilmore in yellow; Mrs. Ledlie W. Young, Virginia Frew Wright in a rose and white flowered cotton print, and Mrs. William Lloyd Standish.

Virginia Davis Betrothal Told

Mrs. George Milton Davis, of Beechwood boulevard, announces the engagement of her daughter, Virginia Bridgman Davis, to Wayne Rawley, Jr., son of the Wayne Rawleys, of the Schenley apartments.

Virginia and her fiance are planning an early fall wedding. She is a Thurston girl. Her fiance went to Yale after doing his college prep work at Mercersburg.

Eight Clubs Represented At Shannopin

Eight teams of golfers came to Shannopin Country Club's invitation tournament yesterday. They were from the Highland, St. Clair, Montour Heights, Wildwood, Oakmont, Stanton Heights, Chartiers Heights and South Hills Country clubs.

Mrs. F. D. Unkefer, who is chairman of women's golf at Shannopin, was wearing a white crepe skirt with a brown and white striped satin blouse and a white hat. Chatting with her around the score board were Eleanor Entrikin, in a white corded silk frock with a sun tan back with a wide brimmed leghorn hat; Mrs. Mitchell Pollock, in white pique boasting covered red and white striped buttons matching the piping around the neck and arms and Mrs. J. C. Schmidt in red, white and blue striped seersucker.

Miss Verna Irons and Miss Eleanor Johnston were having punch on the terrace while watching the players come in. Miss Irons was wearing a white cotton dress and Miss Johnston chose a gay green and white checked gingham sun-back dress.

Jean Vickerman, in yellow pique, and Mrs. A. B. Drastrup, in yellow crepe, were playing. And knitting on the terrace was Mrs. L. W. Mason in a white knitted linen string frock, with which she wore a large white linen hat.

Picnic Benefit For Oakmont Orphanage

For the benefit of St. Anthony's Orphanage, Oakmont, there will be a picnic on the grounds Sunday with Frank J. Zappala as general chairman.

Mrs. Nicholas Frazier will be assistant chairman; Miss Harriett Cipriano, treasurer, and Mrs. Samuel La Dolce, assistant treasurer.

Assisting this group will be Miss Lucy and Miss Nellie Liberto, Mrs. Faustina Casperino, Mrs. Joseph Bisceglia, Mrs. Anna Cheery, Mrs. L. Scarpino, Mrs. Joseph Barbies, Miss Catherine Leonardi, Joseph Vellela, Angelo Ferranti, Russell Pratt, Joseph Liberto and Joseph B. Uffano.

Hemstreet to Tell Of Scenic Wonders

James A. Hemstreet, manager of the Travel Bureau of the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh, will be the speaker tomorrow afternoon at 3:45 o'clock, over KDKA, for the radio program of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women.

Mr. Hemstreet will describe beauty spots of Pennsylvania, and outline the routes to them.

Beaver Falls Teacher To Wed

A teacher in the Beaver County public schools is engaged. She is Miss Besse Lee Marcus, who has been teaching in Beaver County for the last four years.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Solomon A. Marcus, of Seventh avenue, Beaver Falls, announce her engagement to William Goodman, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Goodman, of Fifth avenue, Coraopolis.

Squirrel Hill Girl Recent Bride

Mrs. Samuel McCrum, of Alderson street, Squirrel Hill, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Julia McCrum, to Joseph Hunter Bakewell, of Washington, formerly of Pittsburgh, which took place at the Emmanuel Episcopal Church, of Baltimore, on June 11.

* * *

Taking a brief vacation from her work at the Salvation Army headquarters, Boulevard of the Allies, Mrs. D. Edwin Miller, with her family, motored this past week-end to Chautauqua for a day and an evening concert. On Sunday they had dinner in Hartstown with Mrs. Arvilla Sigler, and Monday went to Pymatuning Dam and Conneaut Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Kirk have arrived at the Chatham Bars Inn, Chatham, on Cape Cod, Mass., where they will remain several weeks.

Teacher Here Gets Position In Egypt

The Administrative Board of Pressley Memorial College at Assiut, Egypt, has elected Miss Rachel M. Dawson to its teaching force. The college is under the control of the Foreign Mission Board of the United Presbyterian Church.

Assiut is located 300 miles from Cairo, on the Nile river, and is the residence section of a great many of the wealthy and well-to-do Egyptians. The work will be with native girls using English text books. She will sail from New York August 7.

Miss Dawson has been a teacher in the Delmont High School, Westmoreland county, for four years. Besides her regular teaching schedule there, she managed the production of several plays and operettas, together with the commencement exercises. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Dawson, of Highland place, Bellevue, is a graduate of Muskingum College, class of 1926, a member of the Forest Avenue United Presbyterian Church, and is the first person that congregation has sent to the mission field out of its own membership.

Pittsburgh Girls Visit Yellowstone

Among recent visitors in Yellowstone Park were Miss Marianne Colvin, Miss Jessie M. Scott, Miss Mary Fielingham, Miss Mae Hambright, F. W. Benning, Miss J. Segall and Miss G. Segall, all of Pittsburgh.

C. R. Andersons At Conneaut Home

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Anderson, Jr., of Crafton, and their son Robert left Saturday for the Anderson home at Conneaut Lake, where they will spend a month.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson attended the wedding of Miss Anne McCullough and George S. Evens at Point Chautauqua Saturday. Mr. Anderson was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Evens will sail today on the "Queen of Bermuda" for a Bermuda honeymoon.

Children's Party in Crafton

A children's party will feature the summer program of the civic committee of the Junior Woman's Club of Crafton.

The group will give the entertainment on Thursday afternoon, July 26, from 3 to 5 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Finley Wesenberger. Miss Mary Florence Taylor, chairman of the civic committee, has asked Mrs. E. M. Meyer to be general chairman.

Miss Evelyn Underwood and Mrs. T. M. Krall will be in charge of games; Mrs. H. W. Robb and Mrs. E. K. Redfern, of refreshments and Mrs. Victor Young and Mrs. Harry M. Brown will see that that there are balloons enough for all the children.

Aides will be Miss Alma Jean Strassler, Miss Elizabeth Riley, Miss Anne Rahm, Miss Esther Williams, Miss Betty Bortuck, Miss Kathryn Bury and Miss Loretta Delochie.

Mrs. R. W. Robb, newly appointed chairman of the Better Movie Committee, will continue the work of sponsoring better movies in Crafton with the cooperation of William Walker, of the Crafton Theater, who has helped especially in making Saturday matinees suitable for children.

Saxton Girl, J. K. McKee Married

The bridegroom's father officiated at the wedding of his son to a Saxton, Pa., girl Saturday morning in the Bethany Lutheran Church, of Braddock.

The bride was Miss Ruth McCahan, daughter of Mrs. J. F. McCahan and the bridegroom, J. Kelvin McKee, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Thomas McKee, of West Newton, Pa.

The bride chose a white mousseline de soie gown and a harmonizing hat. She had a corsage of pink rosebuds.

Mt. Holyoke Women in Europe

Many members of the Pittsburgh Mount Holyoke College Club are away this summer, with some in Europe, some in the East and some in the mountains.

Miss Helen Booth is now on a motor tour of England with Miss Dorothy L. Moore. Another member, Mrs. Phillip Dempsey has left for a summer on the continent, and Miss Margaret Thoburn is spending her entire summer in the Pyrenees.

As usual, Mrs. C. D. Armstrong is summering in her Cape Cod home. Mrs. Carl Harvig and Mrs. William Hutchinson are at their Laurel Mountain Park cottages for the season.

Vacationing in the East will be Mrs. John Brodsky and Miss Ruth Jackson.

Among the members staying at home is Mrs. Max Henrici, who finds social work so pressing to leave her home, "Hildesheim." She and remaining stay-at-home members are planning a benefit picnic for the College Centennial fund. The date has not been named.

Sister Guest Of Mrs. Hirsch

Mrs. John B. O'Malley, of Los Angeles, Cal., is visiting her sister, Mrs. I. E. Hirsch, of Dithridge street. She is accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Rudolph Marx, and her granddaughter, Miss Gretel Marx, and her son, John P. O'Malley.

Through the Spyglass

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

What's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander . . . what's fun for the children is fun for you and your own friends!

Those swimming dolls that you may have seen 'round the town are the cause of the racket! And judging from the way we've seen adults hang over the edge of the bathtub watching the little swimmers plow along, it's a successful one! Something exciting about them . . . just wind them up and away they go doing the "crawl" even as you and I, whilst mammas and papas who have long since put away childish things, spend whole evenings rallying round the tub.

Funny . . . but then, what we wanted to say is that they are now 19c each, instead of 25c . . . and come packed in a box with some salt water kisses (pure, without nuts, and therefore fit for the children to eat).

When the linoleum in your kitchen (of not TOO many months duration) begins to fall into rags as if it had been chewed . . . there's only one thing to do. Either chalk up one to the credit of your private family banshee . . . or (if you don't believe in that sort of thing) get some new, and forget the episode.

Which is a good idea all 'round and especially so today when you can buy felt base linoleum for 37c the yard. Having had this experience, we are in a position to speak from our heart. You know how it is . . . the kitchen floor is a disgrace; your landlord refuses to buy any more; you are a poverty-stricken soul, who, nevertheless, likes to have her kitchen neat and attractive!

So-o-o-! . . . you get some of this, like we did. For average kitchens it can't cost you more than two-something, and the patterns are attractive. Broken stone, tile, in nice colorings, with plenty of green combinations that are not as palling to the soul as most we've seen at this price! (Incidentally, the buyer tells us that you DO NOT chellac or wax it for six months!)

* * *

Rather like rubbing salt in wounds this thing of telling you NOW (after you've maybe purchased your summer dance frocks) that some of the sweetest ones we've seen are reduced to $7.95—a whole group of them.

This group is mainly for the smaller girl (we talked to the large sizes the other day) . . . and consists of sizes from 11 onward through 16. One of the swankest of the lot being—

The self-same frock that was sketched in this paper a bare week ago. A dress of Spanish influence . . . brown dotted organdie, with ruffles climbing up the back in a scooped line that give you no end of swoop and dash as you go rumba-ing 'round!

Silk crepes, these reduced from $16.50, no less, and one of them in dusty pink actually wearing a long navy taffeta "duster" wrap with it . . . INCLUDED in the price of $7.95! Bear up under this if you can!

VIEWING THE NEW

And lots of others . . . the new Palmetto cloth so sheer and cool . . . organzas with their floating crispiness . . . tissue ginghams with organza jackets to give them that bit of fluffiness! Every last one of them at $7.95. And if there's the least iota of excuse for you to get another dance number . . . have yourselves one of these and salve your conscience afterwards!

* * *

Since the vogue of fingers-dipped-in-strawberry-jam is still with us, you'll rejoice in the news that one of the better known hand-cream-and-nail-polish houses had gone plebeian and is offering their combination liquid polish and remover for the very whistle-producing sum of 19c . . . or 3 for 50c. (The idea of this last being that you can mix varying degrees of polish to suit your costumes . . . if you like the idea!)

EMPLOYMENT FIGURES SHOW DECLINE

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, July 18.—Today let us take a look at the statistical record for June. Complete data are not yet available but we have enough of the more important figures to be reasonably sure of the general trend.

In the first place there are the New York state figures for factory employment and payrolls. These both show decreases, employment being off 1.2 per cent and payrolls declining 1.8 per cent.

Since New York factories are quite typical of industry in most of the country, they generally anticipate the tardy federal figures.

This decline is a little more than usual for the season. My "adjusted index," which takes the average for 1921 as 100, was only 77.1 for June.

The payrolls were only a little more than half what they were in 1921. This, together with the fact that they declined in June more than employment did, tends to show that short hours are necessarily reducing the earnings of factory workers.

It is fact that during the past year retail food prices have risen more than the average weekly earnings of industrial laborers in New York.

In the second place, let us examine the sales record of the nation's chief department stores.

When we put these on an average daily basis, and allow for the usual seasonal change, we find that there was a net decline of nearly 5 per cent in June.

SALES DECLINE

Compared with a year ago, the Atlanta and Dallas areas hold up well, but most other areas were hardly so good. When we allow for probable liquor sales (which did not exist last year), and for the 15 to 20 per cent rise in prices, we must include that throughout most of the country people bought less merchandise than a year ago.

This is most markedly true of the San Francisco, New York, Boston, Minneapolis and Chicago areas.

Next, we have the building activity figures to consider. This basic industry is rightly regarded as being one of the most important factors in the situation.

Building permits turned down sharply in June. My adjusted index based on 215 cities was only 10.6 per cent of the five-year average during 1921-25. This compares with 15.4 per cent in May.

Evidently the May spurt was temporary and artificial. Permits are the lowest since February, March and April last year, when they were the lowest in many, many years.

Construction contracts declined 5 per cent in June, which is about seasonal. This figure held up better than the permits, because of government spending for "public works." A year ago the government financed 28 per cent of the total construction, which includes bridges, roads, etc. Last month it was financing 57 per cent.

STEEL LOWER

Steel ingot production in June was lower than in May, but we allow for trend and seasonal factors, it shows practically unchanged at 69.9 per cent of "normal," against 69.4 per cent in May. Pig iron production was up nearly 3 per cent. The number of blast furnaces active declined during the month, however, and the percentage of capacity fell from 48 to 46.8. This showing is very similar to that of last August, and strongly suggests a further let down in steel manufacturing.

Railway car loadings gained very slightly in June, thanks chiefly to the temporary stimulation of the steel industry and an early wheat movement. They have changed very little, aside from seasonal variations, since last July, and were lower in June than in March.

Money, Its Part in Life

By B. C. FORBES

WHAT PART should money-making play in life?

Does wealth yield happiness—or the reverse?

Mr. Forbes

SINCE MONEY is almost as necessary as air from the hour of our birth to the day of our death, does it not, inescapably, inevitably, occupy much of our thought during our journey through life?

Therefore, the analysis, the judgments, the decrees of men who have first-hand experience in owning and using large quantities of money should interest, and perhaps enlighten us.

SENATOR JAMES COUZENS, who, when a young man, put $2,500 into the Ford Motor Company and sold out for $30,000,000 in 1915, declares "the 'unselfish' use of money does not exist."

But he has an explanation:

"I cannot conceive any red-blooded human being putting money first and concentrating all his vitality in accumulating a huge fortune. Just what he could get out of that, I do not know, except that it might gratify some inordinate ambition.

"Certainly, wise judgment seems to suggest that money is only a tool or instrument by which things can be done. Too many people concentrate on the figures on their trial balance sheets, or the number of men they may control because of their fortunes.

"The 'unselfish' use of money does not exist, that is, in a broad sense. It undoubtedly does exist in the generally accepted term of 'unselfish.' When we satisfy ourselves by the use of our money, it certainly is selfish. Therefore, it resolves itself as to what use money is put to; whether it be to help those less privileged, less endowed, and therefore with less opportunities, or whether to use it to build up a material monument, would probably be the deciding factor."

ALFRED P. SLOAN, self-made, who attained millionaire-dom in the automotive industry many years ago, has continued for years to toil and sweat longer hours as president of General Motors than any of the workmen in an "assembly" line, although he never has had any weakness for ostentation, extravagance or costly recreation.

Declares Mr. Sloan:

"I do not believe that the productive type of man, beyond a certain necessary point, concentrates all his vitality on accumulating a huge fortune. I consider that a huge fortune is purely a by-product.

"I am fortunate enough, as you are also, to know intimately practically all the so-called captains of industry. I do not know a single one who is not solely concerned with the ambition of accomplishment.

"The point is very rapidly reached in the progress of a successful executive when no financial consideration whatsoever can effect the sacrifices that must be made for the cause. Only the enthusiasm and ambition to accomplish a bigger and better result, to make a real contribution to a better order of things—such things and such things only are what enables that class of individual to carry on."

THE PRESIDENT of the world's richest organization, Frederick H. Ecker of Metropolitan life, naturally is ardently in favor of every man "making provision for his own future and his dependents"; but he declares emphatically:

"I should feel very sorry for the individual whose sole purpose in life was to accumulate riches."

FRANK A. VANDERLIP, who for years was head of America's largest bank, gained abundant intimate insight into the ways of high finance, and has taken time to think as well as to do things since retiring fifteen years ago, responds thus to my quizzing about his concepts of money:

"Emerson wrote an essay on compensation which ought to be read once a year by every adult capable of understanding it. Almost any phase of life, carried to excess is detrimental. The man who contrates all his vitality on accumulating money of course misses the 'durable satisfaction of life.' On the other hand, the man who attaches no importance to the industry and sacrifice that much be made to accumulate money will, under our present order of society, also miss the durable satisfaction of life.

"It is the sensible balanced point of view that is important.

"When we get to accumulating money in order to spend it for what Veblin called 'conspicuous display,' I think we are admitting that, having no other claim to distinction, we may hope to purchase distinction of a sort through extravagance. That is surely a shallow concept."

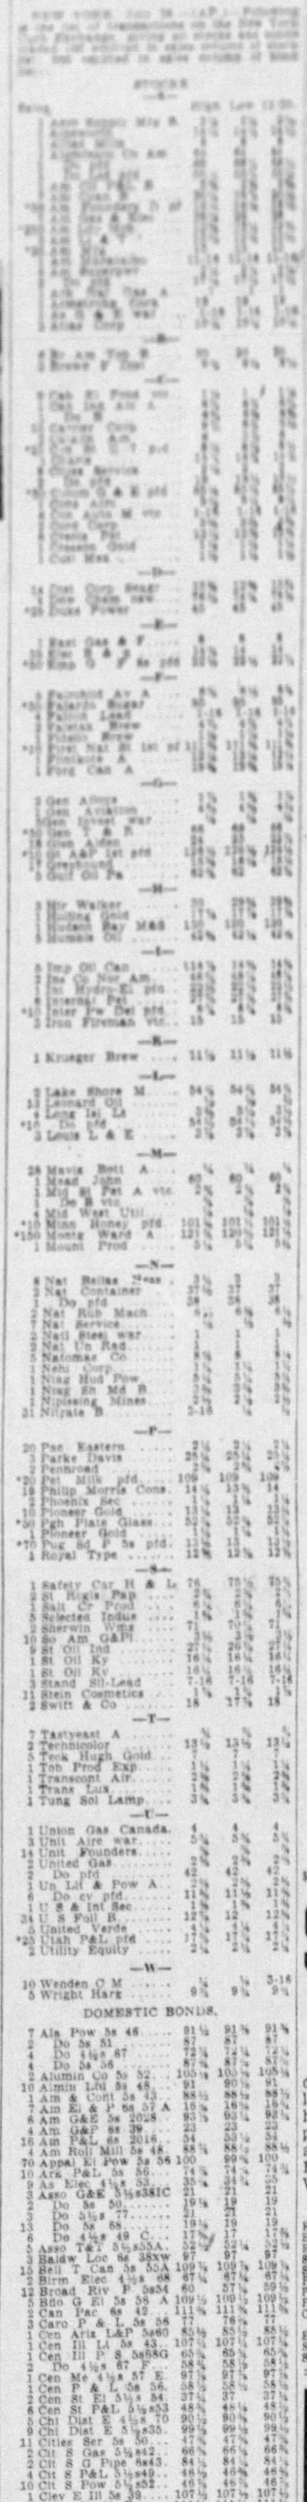
NEW YORK CURB MARKET



STRIKE TROUBLE GIVES HINTS TO EMPLOYERS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

CHICAGO, July 18.—The trailer union crisis in San Francisco, in Minneapolis and elsewhere forces us to look into the realities of the labor situation.

Until recently, we have to some extent been living in a fool's paradise, confused by the academic mind and the politician.

Politically, we have through the National Recovery Act and otherwise tended to fan the flames for the agitator.

As a result, socially minded businessmen are perplexed.

They seem unable to translate the vague advice of "progressive professors" into workable plant policy.

Mr. Rukeyser

Even the "model" town of Kohler, where the employer was long aware of the needs of his workers, has not proven strike-proof.

SHOULD END ABUSES

Nevertheless, the best insurance against labor troubles is the voluntary elimination by the employer of labor abuses and grievances. This entails good wages, satisfactory working conditions and limited hours.

In addition, it should also include besides machinery for collective bargaining a technique for employe participation in profits and perhaps in retirement insurance. Where feasible, a plan, guaranteeing a given amount of employment per year, such as introduced by the Proter & Gamble Company, is excellent.

Normally, the right to strike peaceably cannot be taken away from free men, but in the present emergency of widespread unemployment, with millions dependent on public funds, it might be desirable to abridge the right to strike as long as millions are on doles or dependent on made-work.

ORDER ESSENTIAL

Progressive employers purport to be concerned about the safety of life and limb of loyal workers.

When strikes get out of of the peaceful stage, it is essential for government agencies to intervene and maintain order.

With all the new machinery for guaranteeing the rights of labor by the federal government, strikes have lost much of their social justification.

A general strike, as in San Francisco, is a demonstration against the whole public, and in the circumstances the employers directly involved constitute only an incident.

CHISELERS FOOLED

The anti-social employer, who chisels with labor, plays into the hands of professional agitators.

Instead of frittering away their time with sterile and obsolete anti-labor propaganda, associated businessmen should demonstrate that they are pro-labor by insisting on proper standards in their own shops and also in the places of other businessmen of their cities.

Where other businessmen are seeking to sweat labor or otherwise provoke trouble, the Chamber of Commerce or some other spokesman for organized business should take steps to bring the recalcitrant one into line—first through moral suasion and then, if necessary, through publicity. No ordinary employer could stand out against public condemnation by fellow businessmen.

Historically, Bourbon employers brought on troubles by seeking to buy labor cheap. But with the legal changes under the NRA, with its minimum wages and maximum hours, that situation no longer obtains.

In the circumstances, unless the honest and capable leadership can sway trades unions, their reputation before the public will suffer, with serious possible consequences.

Mutual Savings Banks Abandon Insurance

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor.

MUTUAL SAVINGS BANKS have withdrawn from the Federal Deposit Insurance Fund at a wholesale rate.

The Dollar Savings Bank, Pittsburgh's only mutual banking institution, was among the 167 organizations in all parts of the country which quit the insurance fund on July 1. Of the 167 mutual savings banks which withdrew, 133 are in New York State. In addition to the mutual savings banks, 21 commercial banks also abandoned the protection of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Behind the action of the mutual savings banks is to be found a maze of legal and financial objections to the insurance system.

* * *

Law Restricts Mutual Policies

Mutual savings banks in most states are subject to rigid restrictions in their investments. Laws confine their purchases to securities of the highest grade. Officers of mutual banks feel that it is unreasonable for them to make their institutions liable for losses which may occur in commercial banks which are not subject to the same restrictions and which, in the course of conducting commercial banking affairs, make loans which involve risks which mutual banks are not permitted to take.

Under the Federal Deposit Insurance Law any losses through bank closings must be prorated among banks which participate in the fund. Mutual savings banks which might continue to participate would be underwriting risks for institutions engaged in types of banking which are entirely foreign to their activities.

* * *

Participation Started On Temporary Basis

WHEN TEMPORARY deposit insurance was started at the beginning of this year, many mutual savings banks refrained from participating. Others participated in the system only on a temporary basis. The temporary insurance plan originally was scheduled to last only until July 1. The last Congress extended the temporary plan for a year but boosted the coverage from accounts up to $2,500 to accounts of $5,000. Permanent insurance will cover all accounts.

When permanent insurance goes into effect, all participating banks must become Federal Reserve members. Mutual savings banks, under the charters granted by Pennsylvania and most other states, cannot become Federal Reserve members since they cannot make the required stock investment. Accordingly the mutual banks expected to withdraw on July 1. The changed law would permit them to hang on another year but most of the organizations decided to cut loose at the date originally planned. The mutual banks feel that this has been a sufficient contribution to government efforts for restoring confidence in banks.

A legal question has also been raised. Under the charters of mutual banks all earnings must be turned back to depositors in the form of interest after reserves have been established. The mutual banks are not sure that it is legal for them to devote portions of their earnings to the maintenance of the Federal Deposit Insurance Fund.

Pennsylvania has only seven mutual savings banks. Five of these are on the list of organizations which have withdrawn from the insurance fund.

POWER OUTPUT UNCHANGED

NEW YORK, July 18.—Production of electricity by the electric light and power industry of the United States for the week ended July 14, was 1,647,680,000 kilowatts as compared with 1,648,339,000 kilowatts in the like 1933 week with percentage unchanged from last year, according to the Edison Electric Institute.

Production in the yeek ended July 7, came to 1,555,844,000 kilowatts against 1,538,500,000 kilowatts in 1933, an increase of 1.1 per cent and in the week ended June 30 was 1,688,211,000 kilowatts, an increase of 2 per cent over the like 1933 week.

Wall Street Personnel Trimmed to Bone

NEW YORK, July 18.—(AP.)—Wall Street hasn't the highest regard for the prophetic judgment of stock brokers either when they expand forces in anticipation of long continued boom, or cut expenses to the bone and dig in for a protracted spell of lean business, as they are doing at the present time.

Even the brokers themselves, some observers aver, are highly mistrustful of the correctness of their course, but are so susceptible of the herd moods and motives that they just follow the majority.

In the present wave of retrenchment, resorted to because of the exceedingly small public interest in the stock market, the brokers, it is asserted, have gone to extremes which might easily have embarrassing sequels in the event of a sudden revival of stock trading. Staffs have been trimmed to the limit, tickers removed and other physical equipment needed in times of normal activity disposed of.

Replacement of man power and equipment, if needed at short notice, would, it is claimed, give the brokers a considerable problem to deal with.

CANADA GOLD HOLDINGS

OTTAWA, July 18.—Gold held by the Minister of Finance at the end of June totaled $72,973,922, including $2,279,764 held against savings bank deposits and $27,178,398 against notes, as required by the Dominion Notes Act. The amount of gold held in excess of statutory requirements was $43,513,759. Total note circulation at the end of June was $172,637,393.

STOCKS RISE IN QUIET MARKET

NEW YORK, July 18.—With Pacific coast strike news not quite so ominous today, most financial markets showed tendencies toward improvement.

While many stocks recovered fractions to around a point or so, the trading activity was still of the drab pattern which has marked recent sessions. Only a sprinkling of diffident customers was to be seen in the boardrooms and most professionals found their seats on the sidelines quite comfortable.

COMMODITIES RISE

With equities virtually devoid of speculative interest, commodities continued to furnish the principal field for profit hunting. Wheat and corn got up a cent or more a bushel at one time, but most of the grains shaded their extreme advances under realizing. Cotton moved into new high territory for the past four years before meeting offerings which canceled some of its gains. Silver and rubber futures firmed. Bonds steadied and international dollar rates were somewhat higher.

Shares of Phillip Morris reached another new year's high with the gain of a point. Others up about as much included Chrysler, Columbian Carbon, American Can, du Pont, Case, Johns-Manville, Western Union, McKesson, American Sugar Refining, Santa Fe, New York Central, United States Smelting and Bethlehem Steel.

Moderately higher levels were attained by Consolidated Gas, American Telephone, United States Steel, General Motors, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Westinghouse, Union Pacific, Southern Railway, Southern Pacific, American Smelting, Howe Sound, American Commercial Alcohol, National Distillers and Schenley. Packard slipped to a new 1934 low and Corn Products and United Aircraft were a trifle heavy.

BULLS DESPONDENT

Analysts, calling attention to the extremely thin character of the equities trading, pointed out that the general disinclination to let go of holdings around present prices tended to give the market an appearance of having a fairly firm undertone.

This condition, however, was not found to be especially encouraging to bullish operations of importance and, in some quarters, it was believed no outstanding leadership can be expected until there is a more pronounced change in business sentiment.

STRIKES AFFECT STEEL RATE

NEW YORK, July 18.—Iron Age says:

"Seasonal inactivity in the steel industry has been accentuated this week by increased uncertainty regarding the labor situation and renewed unsettlement in the finished steel price structure. While ingot production in the country as a whole, has risen 1 point to 28 per cent of capacity, increases have not been general in the principal districts.

"Steel production is unchanged in the Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Wheeling and Detroit districts, although replenishment of raw steel inventories in many plants is reported. Detroit output is sustained at capacity by the steady requirements of nearby automotive plants.

"Recent price reductions and the current uncertainty regarding the maintenance of present levels offer little incentive to immediate purchases. Price revisions during the last three weeks have offered conclusive proof of the fact that the code is not a price-fixing medium.

"The general strike at San Francisco is having little immediate effect upon the steel industry except as it influences business sentiment generally.

Cement Production Up 12.6% in June

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The Portland cement industry in June produced 8,786,000 barrels, shipped 8,539,000 barrels from the mills and had in stock at the end of the month 21,547,000 barrels. Production showed an increase of 12.6 per cent and shipments a gain of 7 per cent as compared with June, 1933. Stocks at the mills were 8.1 per cent higher than a year ago.

Irving Trust Named Trustee for United

NEW YORK, July 18.—An order was signed today by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe, appointing the Irving Trust Company, as permanent trustee of the bankrupt estate of the United Cigar Stores Company of America, and naming referee Irwin Kruty a special master in the reorganization of the company under the Bankruptcy Act.

SPORTS COMMENT BY HARRY KECK

Has Great Record As a Puncher. Solters Day Planned.

Peter J. (Bunny) Buntach, Pittsburgh's most colorful boxing manager, long has been a disciple of the old school which believes that if you breed bigger and better mice on your country estate some energetic mousetrap salesman finally will beat a path to your door, or something like that, and he has reached a point in his experiments on the theory where he believes he will be able to prove the point.

Mike Barto

His Exhibit A is not exactly a mouse; in fact, isn't any mouse at all, but rather one of the most explosive little fighters we've ever had around here. He is Mike Barto, the hard-hitting lightweight of New Kensington.

When Mike knocked out another victim, one Eddie Andrews, of Cleveland, in three rounds at Hickey Park, Millvale, the other night, he drew down upon himself an official decree from the boxing commission to the effect that henceforth and notwithstanding he would have to fight a better class of opponents and nothing else but. The promoter was notified that there must be no more matching of Michael with boxers of doubtful rating.

Did this make Peter Buntach, the manager of Barto, sore? It most emphatically did not. It was right down his boulevard, just what he wanted, the knocking on the door of the salesman who has a good line about the superiority of his mousetraps for catching bigger and better mice.

For some time Barto has been demanding a chance to fight better men, and they have been giving him the runaround. He has been after Dominic Mancini especially, and has been champing at the bit while Dominic's manager, Gus Camp, has been telling him to go and get a reputation, and Luke Carney, manager of the Zivic brothers, Eddie and Fritzie, has been orating similarly. Now, by the boxing commission's own word, Mike has arrived and has that reputation, and the fellows who have been getting better breaks no longer can avoid him. In fact, the commission itself is going to see to it that he meets the likes of Mancini and the Zivics and probably also Joey Costa and a few of the better known out-of-town lightweights. And he's happy.

USE SOUTHPAW ALIBI TO AVOID MATCHES

The main reason these other men have been avoiding Barto is because he is a southpaw and hits too hard. That southpaw angle gives them an out. They can truthfully say no one wants to fight a southpaw. But the commission says someone will have to fight Barto, and if the local fighters won't do it the promoters will have to spend carfare to bring in good opponents for him.

Barto has been "hot" since the night he took on Marty Gornick on the Ted Yarosz-Ben Jeby card in Duquesne Garden and almost stopped the Whitaker welterweight in the last round of their five-round bout. He had Gornick on the floor or getting up all through the round and all but out at the finish. That was at a time when no one else around here wanted to fight Gornick. Barto stepped out of his weight class to take him on and won—and then went into comparative idleness because of lack of competition.

On Monday night of last week, Promoter Bus Vogel, of Hickey Park, brought in Joey Wilson, of Cleveland, to box Barto, and Mike cut him up so badly that the fight had to be stopped in the first round. Last Monday night he disposed of the aforementioned Eddie Andrews in three rounds in the same ring. He has had only 10 professional fights and hasn't been beaten since the first of these, in which he dropped a six-round decision to Johnny Durso, last summer. He has knocked out Tommy Murphy, Charley Blozevich, Johnny Birek, Elmer Wilson, Billy McCale, Joey Wilson and Andrews for seven decisive victories, evened the score with Durso in a return bout and won over Gornick.

HAS GREAT KNOCKOUT RECORD

The 10 bouts were scheduled for a total of 67 rounds, but Mike, being a union man, finished them in less than half that time, in 33 rounds to be exact.

As an amateur, Barto scored 36 knockouts in 41 fights. Twenty-one of these bouts ended in the first round, seven in the second and eight in the third.

Manager Buntach and Barto both believe in the power of the punch in the ring, and they think that the caliber of the opponent makes little difference. They are of the opinion that Mike is liable to knock out any man he hits and that he is just as apt to stop the big name fighters as the preliminary performers he has been meeting. They welcome the commission's stand, and are ready and anxious right now to take on the Zivics and Mancini to pave the way for bigger game.

LOCAL FRIENDS TO HONOR SOLTERS

"Solters Day" will be observed in Cleveland next Sunday, when the Boston Red Sox play the Cleveland Indians. The delegation paying honor to Julius (Lemons) Solters, Hazelwood product with the Sox, will be a host of his local admirers, who will make a presentation before the game. The party is expected to take about 300 solid citizens of Hazelwood and Greenfield out of the city for the day.

Andrew (Chief) Bennett, former catcher for the Pittsburgh Federals, is chairman of the committee. Others on the committee include F. C. Hunter, S. Gall, Lou P. Golvash, the bowler, who is a cousin of the player; Red Adams, P. W. Murphy, George Mesgaros, J. A. Collins, W. Gloeckler, Edmund Schwager, S. A. O'Toole, Father Markey, John Fallough and Bill Irwin.

VIGNETTES OF SPORT

It sort of gives you the jitters to read that Red Grange, the onetime ghost of the gridiron, signing to play his seventh and probably last year with the Chicago Bears professional football team, is almost at the end of his career at the age of 30 . . . They come and go fast in the sporting headlines, and Grange has stuck around longer than most of them . . . Jack Kennard, of the Keystone Athletic Club, is sending a team of seven girl swimmers to the National A. A. U. meet in Detroit, July 26-27-28-29, which is being staged under the auspices of the Detroit Times, a Hearst newspaper.

It is incorrect to refer to Australians as Anzacs . . . Anzacs are New Zealanders . . . And the Australians hate to be called Aussies, as they sometimes are in American headlines.

PERRY FEARED BY HELEN

NEW YORK, July 18.—(AP.)—While Helen Jacobs suffered one of the greatest disappointments of her career when she failed to win the all-England championship at Wimbledon, the Berkeley (Cal.) tennis girl was back on her native shores today, brimful of hope and confident she will retain her national title next month.

Miss Jacobs, who lost to Dorothy Round in the Wimbledon finals, returned to the United States last evening and planned almost immediately to launch into a campaign to whip herself into condition for her title defense at Forest Hills in August.

While she was in England, Miss Jacobs watched the American Davis Cup squad work out and predicted an easy victory for the United States in the interzone final with Australia beginning Saturday, but said our chances of wresting the international trophy from England depended upon the kind of tennis Fred Perry, John Bull's star, is playing at the time.

Venzke Defeated In German Meet

COLOGNE, Germany, July 18.—(AP.)—Touring American athletes won four events in an international track and field meet here yesterday, but lost five others in competition with stars from Germany, Hungary and Poland.

The outstanding surprise was the defeat of Gene Venzke, of Pennsylvania, in the 15,000-meter run. Venzke was beaten by three-fifths of a second by Szabo, of Hungary, with Schaumburg, of Germany, another two-fifths of a second behind in third place. Szabo's winning time was 3:55.2.

Water Polo Stars To Meet Sunday

Tim Crannan has been named manager of the Pittsburgh collegiate water polo team which will meet the Duquesne Dolphins Sunday afternoon in the Willows Pool, Oakmont.

The Dolphins already have a 5-1 victory and are undefeated for two years. The All-Collegiate team will have Buzz Wright, Geisinger, Lindberg, Aldersberg, all of Pitt, Hannf and Powers, of Illinois, Derland Johnson, of Michigan; Fred Wink, Dartmouth, and Davies and Illsley.

N. KENSINGTON LEGION WINS

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., July 18.—The New Kensington and Windber American Legion junior baseball nines clash in the second game of their best-out-of-three series here this evening, with the crack local nine one up on their Cambria County rivals. The winner of the series will meet the Northwestern champions for the right to battle the Eastern legion representatives for the state title.

Playing at Windber yesterday, New Kensington defeated the home team, 6 to 4, Sakol, Kensington hurler, turning in a splendid performance as he fanned 15 batters. Windber filled the bases in the ninth inning, but Sakol fanned Freeman, who already had collected four of his team's 10 hits, to save the day. The score:

Cubs Lose Bush For Several Days

NEW YORK, July 18.—(AP.)—The Chicago Cubs, fighting for the National League pennant, have lost the services of Guy Bush, veteran righthanded pitcher, for a few days.

Bush turned up at the Polo Grounds with an ear ailment and was ordered to remain out of uniform until he has recovered.

By PHIL GRABOWSKI
Softball Tournament Secretary

Thirty-five hundred fans cheered lustily as Al Anderson and Anthony Oskin waged a spectacular pitchers' battle while the Hunzeker Radiators and the Campbell Box Lunch teams battled to a 1-1 tie in nine innings in one of the best contests staged in Bracket III of the senior division in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Western Pennsylvania amateur softball tournament on the Peabody High School Field yesterday. Anderson yielded only five hits while the Hunzekers reached Oskin for six. The game was called on account of darkness.

Anderson received a split index finger in the second inning when H. Langford caromed a single off his left hand. The injured finger did not hurt Speed's pitching, as he made 12 enemy batsmen fan the breeze. Oskin fanned five.

The Sportsmen's Club, of East Pittsburgh, and the Book team, of Donora, will play off their postponed game today at Elizabeth, Pa., in Bracket IV in the senior division. The Sportsmen were originally scheduled to play an exhibition game with the Harris Reds, but the game was called off to permit them to play their tournament game.

Manager Clyde Confer, of the Harris Reds, has arranged a game with the Weise Newsies, of Bridgeville, for today. The game will be played at Bridgeville. Both teams play in senior competition of the Sun-Telegraph softball tournament.

The S. A. O'Toole Club will play host to the East Liberty Drugs at Hazlewood this evening in a Bracket III game of the senior division. The O'Tooles are tied with the Campbells for first place, while the Drugs outfit is close behind. The East Liberty crew handed the Hunzekers a surprise defeat when it won a 2-1 decision from Anderson. Danny Hagan is Manager James F. Ryan's selection to pitch for the O'Tooles. Dan Auslander may oppose him on the mound.

Rosenbloom, Olin To Meet August 16

NEW YORK, July 18.—(AP.)—Maxie Rosenbloom will defend his light-heavyweight title against Bob Olin, of New York, in a 15-round match at the Madison Square Garden Bowl on Long Island August 16, Jimmy Johnston has announced.

On the same card Baby Arizmendi, Mexican champion, and Mike Belloise, of New York, will fight 15 rounds for New York state recognition as the featherweight champion.

AUSSIES, BRITONS DRAW

SHEFFIELD, England, July 18.—The three-day cricket match between the touring Australians and Yorkshire County yesterday ended in a draw, the time limit expiring with the Australians in their second innings with 9 wickets in hand.

HARTMAN TOPS CREIGHTON IN LONE UPSET

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Clean-up of men's singles contests in brackets one and two is aimed at as the annual Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh Parks tennis championships swing into their second day of action on the rectangles of South, Frick, Highland, Olympia, Schenley, West and North parks early this afternoon. Women's singles competition likewise graces the program, feminine stars being slated to begin hostilities at West today. Fair aspirants in the other ballwicks, where the ladies' enlistment has been less extensive, will not be called to battle till the morrow.

Favored by absolutely perfect weather conditions, tournament tilting got away to a most auspicious start yesterday. Though there was neither time nor space for all 240 of the masculine entrants to get into the combat in the course of the initial session, a high percentage actually trod the courts. Eighty-five entrants were completed and four more were well on the road before dusk rang down the curtain on the inaugural.

TO BAN LAGGARDS

No defaults were registered at the opening seance, but the edict went forth last evening from the tournament chairman to each of his seven assistants in the individual parks that any man-to-man contender who shall have failed to report before a reasonable hour today is to be summarily shunted from the festivities.

Yesterday's jousting was singularly free from upsets. Dick Creighton, Detroit University product and second seeded star at Olympia, felt the sting of reversal, though not without extenuating circumstances, for he dropped a tough 4-6, 6-4, 6-3 decision to Adrian Hartman, his second opponent of the day. Creighton had trimmed Bud Pendergast, 6-3, 6-2, almost immediately prior to taking on Hartman, and he faded badly after annexing the first set. His setback marked the lone break in the seeded ranks.

Two of the chosen group were pushed to three frames ere prevailing. At Schenley, Irwin Solow, fourth of the favored quartet, went the limit to outsteady Walter Kelly, clever Lebanonian, 6-3, 2-6, 6-4, while at Highland, Joe Tucker, rated No. 3, had a bad second stanza before he cared for J. M. Gibson, 6-0, 2-6, 6-1. Al Lazar, Harvard luminary and second of the Highlanders, was pushed to 9-7, 6-3 by Charles Morton, Peabody High School youngster.

NORTH STARS WIN

John Allison, Gerald Barry and Ed Helm were three-set victors at North, as were Ed Quill and Paul Lackner at Schenley and Jack Manning, John Mogan, Howard Gadd, Steve Smith, Alex Goss, Gene Immekus and Jim Senn at South. A. B. Carl staged a courageous rally to click off Louis Dorn, 1-6, 8-6, 7-5, at West as Ray Cooper spurted to eke out 5-7, 6-4, 6-3 success over Bill Purcell, '34 Duke net boss, in the same sector. The summary:

FRICK PARK

First round, upper half—Richard M. Nugent defeated Walter R. Douglas, 4-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Lower half—Ted Rosenthal defeated Ed Rennells, 6-4, 6-1; George Wilson defeated Corey Wynn, 6-2, 9-7.

Second round, upper half—Harry Wald defeated Frank F. Waterman, 6-0, 6-2; Irvin Sobel defeated Eldred Shelton, 6-4, 6-3. William T. Luyster defeated Philip Gold, 6-3, 6-1; George Sobel defeated Clarence Randolph, 6-1, 8-7; J. Paul Games defeated Al Leggin, 6-4, 6-4.

Lower half—James L. Slocum defeated Milton Hammond, 6-0, 6-0; C. D. Cable defeated Jack Kennon, 6-0, 6-3; W. J. Biles defeated Landon Fuller, 6-7, 1-6, 9-7. Leonard J. Sistek defeated Robert Guson, 6-0, 6-0.

OLYMPIA PARK

First round, upper half—Franklin Cope defeated Frank Moore, 5-7, 7-5, 8-6.

Lower half—Richard Creighton defeated Bud Pendergast, 6-3, 6-2.

DANIELS GETS SIXTH K. O.

Johnny Daniels, amateur heavyweight boxing star, of West Newton, is making a name for himself as a knockout puncher. Daniels has won his last six starts via the k. o. route, adding No. 6 at Greenlee Field last night on the occasion of the Allegheny Mountain Association's benefit show, when he stopped Johnny Schuster, of St. John's Lyceum, in the second round.

In all, four knockouts were recorded, three technical ones being scored besides Daniel's clean kayo.

The technical knockout victors were Pete Landini, the Risko-like heavyweight; Sammy Angott, hard-hitting Tucker A. C. 126-pounder, and Minnie DeMore, Willow Club flyweight.

In one of the feature engagements on the card, Vic Yarosz, brother of the famous Teddy, whipped Frankie Wingo, Willow Club veteran. The summary:

GIANTS MAINTAIN LEAD IN CRUCIAL SERIES WITH CUBS

TIGERS BOOST LEAD OVER YANKEES

Associated Press.

The New York Giants, the club which has an amazing habit of coming through in a pinch, moved into the final game of their duel with Chicago's second-place Cubs today with the same two-game lead which they had at the start and with even better reason to believe they will stay on top.

The extra reason came from Leroy (Doc) Parmelee, the sturdy young pitcher whose feats of hurling and hitting gave the Giants an even break in yesterday's doubleheader. Parmelee, who hadn't won a game since April 19 and had been inactive for two months because of an appendicitis operation, not only held Lonnie Warneke even in the mound duel but broke up a tie game by socking a home run with the bases full. That clout, after Warneke had passed Gus Mancuso to get at the pitcher, gave New York a 5-to-3 decision in the first game.

HUBBELL BEATEN

The second game told a different kind of story as young Bill Lee outpitched Carl Hubbell by a 2-to-1 count. But even in taking his sixth defeat of the season Hubbell showed the 45,000 fans the kind of hurling that usually wins.

The third-place Cardinals lost a good chance to overhaul the leaders when they dropped a 7-to-6 decision to Brooklyn on Len Koenecke's homer in the seventh. The blow came after circuit drives by Jim Collins and Joe Medwick had helped overcome an early Dodger lead. The Phillies completed the National League program by trouncing Cincinnati, 7 to 0, for their fifth straight victory as Curt Davis pitched seven-hit ball.

In the American League, the Tigers and Yankees returned to the point at which their "crucial" series ended two days ago when the league leaders beat out the Senators, 4 to 3, and the Yanks took a 13-to-5 drubbing from the Indians.

Despite his wildness Carl Fischer pitched six-hit ball for Detroit and escaped trouble when his mates gave him superb backing after scoring three runs in the sixth on four hits and an error. Cleveland's batters hit practically everything offered by Johnny Broaca, Danny MacFayden and Burleigh Grimes as they piled up 17 hits for their victory.

FERRELL VICTOR

Wesley Ferrell picked up a share of the day's pitching laurels when he limited the White Sox to six hits and chalked up his seventh victory for Boston against a single defeat. The score was 6 to 2.

Connie Mack's Athletics equaled a major league record when three of them, Bob Johnson, Jimmy Foxx and Pinky Higgins, hit successive homers off Jack Knott in the fourth, but they couldn't win a ball game from the Browns, who came out on the long end of a 7-to-4 score. The blows were the twenty-eighth of the season for Johnson and the twenty-seventh for Foxx.

GARDEN DENIES DEMPSEY PACT

NEW YORK, July 18.—(INS.)—Reports from Boston that Jack Dempsey and Ancil Hoffman, manager of Max Baer, had accepted terms to handle boxing at Madison Square Garden were flatly denied by Garden officials here today.

Even Col. John S. Hammond, one of the principal stockholders, who negotiated with Dempsey for several weeks, joined in scoffing at the story that Dempsey had been guaranteed $35,000 a year for three years.

Insiders claim that the corporation has abandoned all thought of Dempsey, now that Baer refuses to fight until next June. Hoffman made a flying trip here from Boston yesterday, conferred with Dempsey and took a night train back.

MARATHON CARDED

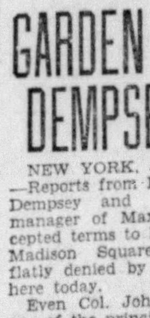
The second annual Irish Day marathon race of the United Irish Societies of Cleveland will be held in Cleveland on August 23 at 10 a. m. Entries may be filed with Pat J. McDonnel, 606 Terminal Building, Cleveland, O.

Honus Says:

By HONUS WAGNER,
Former Star, Now Coach of Pirates.

To the Sports Editor:

If somebody was foolish enough to ask me what I would do to benefit mankind I would say I would do something so men would not have to shave. Think of it: Using 15 minutes a day, a man between the ages of 20 and 60 spends 3,650 hours shaving. That is 152 days—24 hours a day. In other words, you start at noon on January 1, let's say, and you shave steady day and night until noon on June 1. That's how much shaving a man does if he lives to 60, and if he started shaving at 20. Some time I'll figure up how much time we spend eating breakfast, lunch and dinner.



Honus Wagner

HONUS WAGNER.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: A LIVE POLICE STATION—The old oak of Wahrenholz, Germany, was struck by lightning about 75 years ago, and its hollow trunk since has served many useful purposes. Its latest tenant is the solitary policeman of the locality. In spite of its hollow condition, the tree never has ceased to bear leaves every season. THE PRIZE-WINNING PRIZE WINNER—During 1933, A. S. Pirie, of Detroit, won a contest prize an average of every five days, winning 73 prizes during the year for a total value of $1,640.00. This participation was in contests of almost every kind—newspaper, magazine, radio, or direct solicitation. Of the 73 prizes, the principal ones were: $1,000 in the Household Finance contest, 10 prizes of $25 each, a $105 radio, $100 in a cigar contest, and various others ranging from $1 to $10 as well as baskets of groceries, gas coupons, paint, theater tickets, etc. The "Contest" Magazine rates Pirie as one of the leading winners of the country. GOOD FOR NOTHING—Section 1200 of the Revenue Act of 1924 provides a 25 per cent reduction in the Federal Income Tax for 1923. Taxpayers who already had paid part of the 1923 Income Tax according to the original scale became entitled to a refund of 25 per cent on their payments, and local federal collectors were instructed to this effect. In the case in question, the taxpayer does not seem to have been entitled to a refund and so he became the beneficiary of a government check for no dollars and no cents.

TOMORROW: A CENTURY OF PROGRESS ODDITY.

STAR GOLFERS ON EDGE FOR STATE OPEN

By TOM BIRKS

A field that includes a former American open champion, a former British titleholder and two stars who have won the trophy before will tee off tomorrow in the first 36 holes of the annual Pennsylvania state open golf championship over the testing Oakmont Country Club links. The affair is a 72-hole event, the second 36 holes to be played Friday.

Both Denny Shute, who won the British open crown last year, and Willie McFarlane, former American open champion, are included in the comparatively small but strong field seeking the $1,000 in prize money. Other stars include Ed Dudley and Felix Serafin, both former holders of the state title, Al Houghton, Bobby Cruickshank, Herman Barron and Al Espinosa.

CRUICKSHANK HERE

Cruickshank, one of the most methodical and progressive professionals in the country, arrived in town yesterday, accompanied by his wife and daughter, and promptly proceeded to play the first nine of the famous Oakmont layout in 35, just two under par. He and Jim Lappan, Field Club veteran, played Ted Luther and George H. Flinn, president of the state body. Luther practically matched shots with Bob for the first nine, the Valley Heights professional having a 36, one under par.

Another interesting figure in the field is Al Houghton, the professional from the Kenmore Club at Washington, D. C., holder of the Bedford open title. Houghton recently set a new competitive record down East with a 63. This will be the first visit to Oakmont since the 1927 open.

M'FARLANE IN FORM

McFarlane, classed by many as the greatest iron player in this country, will play with Emil Loeffler Dutch, by the way, will be shooting for his third title.

If Cruickshank can reproduce the form he displayed at Merion when he led the National Open battle for three rounds, golfers believe that he will win the title. He was hitting the ball beautifully yesterday, but had trouble on the long No. 12 hole. This is the hole that caused the former Scottish Amateur champion trouble in the National Open in 1927. The pairings and starting times follow:

8:30 and 1:00—*Francis Totten, S. Walter Phillips and John Kaufmann.
8:36 and 1:06—Paul Featherstone, Jr., *Joseph Totten and Al Mendicino.
8:42 and 1:12—Eugene Keath, Hart Darragh and Walter Simpson.
8:48 and 1:18—Ralph Beach, Cliff Spencer and Tip H. B. Rainey.
8:54 and 1:24—Ernest Jacob, Arthur Walter Loether, *Bruce Thompson and Guido Fabiilli.
9:00 and 1:30—D. Cappelanson, Gene Kunz and L. Baltosser.
9:18 and 1:48—Archie Loether, H. D. Smith and William A. Kline.
9:30 and 2:00—Andrew Casper, *Sidney Salomon, Jr., and Monroe Arndt.
9:36 and 2:06—Dave McKay, William Kaiser and *Barrett Marlin.
9:42 and 2:12—Bobby Cruickshank, *George H. Flinn, Jr., and Denny Shute, Jr.
9:48 and 2:18—Vincent Eldred, Herman Barron and Sadar Jewett.
10:00 and 2:30—Harold McMadden, *W. F. Marks and Ralph Hutchison.
10:30 and 3:00 — Felix Serafin, Ted Luther and Sam Parks, Jr.
10:42 and 3:12—Al Houghton, Ivan Gantz and H. M. Round.

With a low gross score of 90, Mrs. McConnell, of St. Clair, topped a field of more than 100 women who took part in a one-day tournament at Shannopin yesterday. Miss Sanders, of Highland, won the low net award among the visitors with a score of 96—21—75.

The Alcoma Country Club played host to officers from the Peoples Pittsburgh Trust Company yesterday with a dinner, preceded by a golf program. Thirty took part in the event.

MRS. MOORHEAD WINS

WHEELING, W. Va., July 18.—(AP.)—Mrs. F. M. Moorhead, of Charleston, triumphed over a field of 68 women golfers representing 11 country clubs in West Virginia, Ohio and Pennsylvania at the annual invitation tournament at the Wheeling Country Club. Her 88 won medalist honors.

CHILLYSAUCE

You may expect to see Hitler reversed any day now. The trick has just been pulled on Sir William Klem, who, like Adolf and Looey the Fourteenth, "can do no wrong." But Sir William, of Yonkers, was wrong recently in a game in Chicago when he failed to invoke the infield fly rule and the quiet Mr. Heydler has let it be known through the far-flung agencies of the various news agencies.

Heydler has ordered that the disputed Cub-Cardinal game be resumed at the point where the controversy occurred. Klem refused to apply the infield fly rule and what appeared to have been an ordinary loft in the infield. Manager Frisch protested the veteran's decision and won a big reversal from the supreme court of the league.

One of the best, or worst, arguments this writer has enjoyed during his association with the sport centered around the same play and with the same umpire furnishing the fireworks in the opposite corner. The Giants were fighting it out with the Braves at Forbes Field when a Pirate hoisted a high one near the plate with runners on first and second and none out.

Catcher Frank Snyder started after the ball which went up foul but came back fair aided by a brisk westerly wind. Frank's face was red when he failed to touch the falling sphere, but when he saw that neither runner had tried to advance he went through the actions of making a double play.

Now many a schoolboy knows that the honest intent of the infield fly rule is to protect the runner, provided the runner protects himself. Here was a fly of the common garden variety and when it fell in fair territory Klem should have applied the rule. He allowed the double play and got away with his decision. I took issue with Bill in the public prints and personally, but William continued to smile and intimate that he is not kidding when he refers you to the brightest phrase in his lexicon, "I never miss one!"

Sir William, in my opinion, remains the greatest of all umpires, but he is correct in the breach rather than in the observance when he says he never misses one. He seldom does, but he booted the same play at Forbes Field as that which got him a jam in Chicago.

If you have any doubt as to the popularity of Jimmy Collins, home-run walloper and star first-sacker of the St. Louis Cardinals you should read the current issue of the Nanty-Glo Journal. The coal town is the home of clever ballgamer and he is so well thought of by his oldtime neighbors they have decided to honor him when the Cardinals play the Pirates at the Oakland orchard, Sunday, July 29.

The Nanty-Glo Lions are sponsoring the community demonstration. The town band will be on hand with bright uniforms and will help to kick up a merry racket as the townsfolk invade Pittsburgh and Forbes Field. The Lions clubs of Johnstown and Portage will help out in the festivities. Jimmy made his professional start with the Johnstown club when Joe Cronin was the star shortstop of the Johnnies.

John Heinon, chairman of the local chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association of America, is authority for the statement that the third annual picnic of the Pittsburgh scribes next Sunday at Marbis Gate Inn will be bigger and better than ever. John announces that Max Unger has donated a pretty trophy to be presented to the winner of the softball game.

MEMORY TEST

TODAY'S QUESTIONS

How good is your memory of sports events, heroes and dates? Can you answer these questions?

1—What famous home-run hitter led the National League in striking out last season?

2—Who was the minor league star who clicked for the Giants last year and was given a great deal of credit for winning the pennant?

3—Who were the players who were steered from the world series last year?

4—Was Frank Moran, the heavyweight fighter, a Pittsburgher?

RUTH MAY LEAD INDIANS

International News Service.

CLEVELAND, July 18.—A possibility that Babe Ruth may replace Walter Johnson as manager of the Cleveland Indians loomed here today.

In face of a rising storm of protest against Johnson's recent managerial tactics, sports writers and baseball club officials turned serious thoughts to the suggestion that the home run idol be substituted for the world's greatest pitcher at the Tribe's helm.

Ruth, when asked if he would accept such a proposal, declared:

The Bambino, now receiving $35,000 a year from the Yankees, could change uniforms on a moment's notice, it was pointed out. He is popular with the fans here, as he is everywhere, and has long been itching for a manager's berth.

Johnson, too, is popular—even though he is generally blamed for the Redskins' repeated failure to prevent opponents from staging last inning rallies.

Adams Pilots Boat To Close Triumph

NEWPORT, R. I., July 18.—(AP.)—Yankee, of Boston, leading aspirant for the defense of the America's Cup, yesterday won a 24-second victory over Harold S. Vanderbilt's Rainbow in the most exciting and closely contested race of the trials series.

Vanderbilt had a little better of the start, taking the windward berth from Charles Francis Adams, Yankee's skipper and former Navy secretary, but it was an advantage Rainbow did not long maintain.

The contest was sailed over a triangle of approximately 22 miles in a southwestly breeze that measured eight knots at the start and 14 at the close.

WCAE to Broadcast U. S., British Meet

When Jack Lovelock, the British speedster, and Bill Bronthon, the United States star, match strides in the Princeton-Cornell vs. Oxford-Cambridge meet on Saturday in London, H. M. Ahrahams, British Olympic champion of 1924, will be at the microphone to send an eye-witness story of the mile duel to the American sport fans.

The rebroadcast is scheduled for Saturday afternoon at 1:34 p. m. over WCAE.

CONVENTION CARDED

A number of prominent members of the National Soccer Football Referees' Association are scheduled to attend the annual convention of the West Penn Association at the Fort Pitt Hotel Saturday and Sunday. Robert Rollins was the local delegate to the national convention in New York last week.

Dado Is Stopped In Australian Ring

MILWAUKEE, July 18.—Australian advices today bring news of the defeat of speedy Dado, Los Angeles bantamweight star, by Mickey Miller, of Sydney in the seventh round of a scheduled 15-round battle at Melbourne stadium before 6,000 people.

Dado was obliged to give up when he suffered a torn legament of the right leg in the seventh round. Up to that time Miller had the edge.

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Billy Donohoe vs. Pietro Georgi, 10 rounds, Oakland, Cal.

Wrestling—Jim Londos vs. Ed Don George (for heavyweight championship), Fenway Park, Boston.

Joey Costa, of New York, is due in Pittsburgh today for his 10-round return bout with Eddie Zivic at Greenlee Field tomorrow night. He is coming determined to avenge his recent 10-round technical knockout defeat by Zivic at Hickey Park, which caused him to lose much prestige in the East, where he had been highly rated.

Zivic, training at Conneaut Lake, believes he has become acclimated to the eastern weather again following his trip to California and thinks he will repeat this victory in faster time.

Eddie floored Costa twice in the third round and had him helpless after two more floorings in the tenth when they met before, although he underwent a severe mauling in between these knockdowns. He is confident he can take Costa's best, after his experience of that night, and punch his way to a speedy win. He realizes that a second victory over Costa will establish him in the east and pave the way for some good money matches.

Mose Butch and Jackie Wilson meet in another 10-round bout and there will be three five-rounders.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

Cleto Locatelli and Frankie Klick headline a card of four 10-round bouts at the Phillies' Park, Philadelphia, July 30, marking the twentieth anniversary of the partnership of Murray Taylor and Bobby Mendelsohn, promoters. In the other engagements, Jimmy Smith meets Paul Pirrone, Unknown Winston engages Al Ettore and Johnny Jadick will take on Benny Dees.

Patsy Perroni and Johnny Risko, rival Cleveland heavyweights, will clash in a big "natural" at the Cleveland Municipal Stadium, next Tuesday night. There's 10 years difference in their ages, with Risko still carrying on at 32. Paul Pirrone and Jackie Purvis will box the eight-round semi-final.

Another bout, between Vic Yarnez, brother of Teddy, and Billy Miller, making nine in all, has been added to the Joseph Conrad Club amateur boxing show at Hickey Park, Millvale, Friday night, to raise funds to complete the Polish room in the Cathedral of Learning. Teddy Yarnez will appear in an exhibition with two sparring partners as an added attraction.

FIGHT RESULTS

IOWAN WINS SHOOT

KANSAS CITY, July 18.—(AP.)—F. M. Smith, of Iowa City, won the National Elks handicap trapshoot championship here yesterday, breaking 92 out of 100 targets from 23 yards, and led his mates to victory in the team championship in the annual B. P. O. E. tournament.

The rocky road the Dormont tossers traveled to gain the top position in the City League continued to be just as rocky last evening as Homewood took a fall out of the conquerors of the Books, defeating the new leaders at the playgrounds, 4 to 1. The defeat cost Dormont the lead, as the Books came back to down Mt. Oliver, 5 to 3.

In this evening's contests, the Dormonters have a chance to gain a share of the lead as they meet the Vaughans at home while Books are idle. In the other league tussle on the books for today, Mt. Oliver meets Parmelee at Frick Park.

The first half title in the North Side League will be at stake this evening as the Ottie Cochran Club meets Fineview in a playoff game on the Oliver High School field.

Another surprise was served up in the Greater Pittsburgh League last evening when the Scott Morgan nine bumped off Mellon-Stuart, 3 to 1. The Mellon-Stuart aggregation had gone through the first half championship with only one defeat.

UPSETS MARK CITY GOLF

Arch Fineman sprang the big upset when he eliminated Johnny Pasikowski, 3 and 2; Roy Lundeen put out Galido, 2 and 1; Marty Boschert fell before George Engstler, 1 up, and Art Sekay was the victim of Davey Wilder.

Mike Skowran, the medalist, who set a new competitive record at Schenley by recording 64-64—128 in the 36-hole qualifying round, entered the second round by defeating R. A. Guentner, 7 and 6.

ZINK CAPTURES NET CROWN

Harry Zink, of Steubenville, O., seeded No. 1, won the Western Pennsylvania boys' tennis crown this morning when he defeated William Benz, of Mt. Lebanon, in the final round of the University of Pittsburgh courts, 6-2, 6-0. Zink was runnerup in the championship last year.

Zink polished off Jerry Baraff in the bracket of eight yesterday and continued in the semi-finals by downing George Soisson, titian-haired little star from Connellsville, 6-3, 6-1. Soisson upset Murdaugh Madden, third seeded aspirant, 6-2, 6-1, and trimmed Sidney Klein, 6-3, 6-4, so that his joust with Zink was his third of the day—absolutely too much for the lad. Benz accounted for Bob Washabaugh and Baker Bradbaugh to achieve the concluding frame.

Harold Mathieson, holder of boys' honors hereabouts several years ago, led the way into the junior quarter-finals by outsteadying Bill Fay, 8-6, 6-3. Jimmy Arensberg, Shady Side captain, trimmed Ray McColligan, Duquesne Prep southpaw and third seeded entrant, 6-2, 6-3, to earn a crack at rangy Bob Bald, of Rockwood, this morning. Other junior quarter-finals will bring together Champion Ralph Bald with Bob Merchant, of Wilkinsburg, and Bob Madden, of University Club, with Irwin Solow, Allderdice High satellite. The summary:

JUNIOR SINGLES

Second round: Upper half—George Hamilton defeated Harry Sharpnack, 6-2, 6-3; Robert Merchant defeated Tom Brown, 6-1, 6-0; William Fay defeated Morton Handmacher, 6-1, 6-0; Dudley Weiss defeated Audley McFarland, 6-4, 6-1; Charles Morton defeated Curtis Horn, 6-4, 6-3; Harold Mathieson defeated Raymond Mestrezat, 6-1, 6-3.

Lower half—James Arensburg defeated Larry Smith, 6-1, 6-1; David Dalzell defeated Celio Capelli, 6-4, 0-6, 6-4; Irwin Solow defeated Russell Grant, 6-4, 6-4; Paul Wick defeated Ray Helm, 6-3, 3-6, 6-0.

Third round: Upper half—Ralph Bald defeated George Hamilton, 6-2, 6-1; Robert Merchant defeated Jerry Goodman, 8-6, 3-6, 6-3; William Fay defeated Dudley Weiss, 6-2, 6-1; Harold Mathieson defeated Charles Morton, 6-2, 6-2.

ENGLAND NAMES PERRY, WILDE

LONDON, July 18.—(AP.)—Fred Perry, Wimbledon and United States tennis champion, and F. H. D. Wilde, sixth ranking English player, today were officially nominated by the English Association to compete in the United States championships at Forest Hills in September.

They also will compete in other American fixtures as Perry did last year after defeating Jack Crawford in the all-empire final of the American nationals.

Perry also will tour Australia again this winter, the association announced, accompanied by Dorothy Round, the Wimbledon woman's singles champion, Evelyn Dearman and Nancy Lyle.

Betty Nuthall, Fred James and Katherine Stammers previously had been nominated to compete in the American women's championships at Forest Hills in August.

British Name Team For U. S. Invasion

LONDON, July 18.—(AP.)—A team of eight women golfers headed by Doris Chambers as captain today was named to represent Great Britain in a team series against Canadian women September 15 and in the Curtis Cup matches against the United States September 27, 28.

The other members of the team are Pam Barton, runnerup for the British women's title this year; Molly Gourlay, Diana Fishwick, former titleholder; Wanda Morgan, Diana Plumpton, Mrs. George Coates and Mrs. J. B. Walker.

Mrs. A. M. Holm, British champion, was invited to the team but was unable to accept.

The Misses Gourlay, Fishwick and Morgan competed against the American women at Wentworth in 1932 in the first ofvcial inter-nation series but the others all are newcomers to the British-American play.

The United States is holder of the Curtis Cup, presented by the Curtis sisters of Boston, having won at Wenworth, 5½ points to 3½.

-:- OBITUARY -:-

Mrs. Catherine Hieber.

Mrs. Catherine Hieber, 90, widow of John D. Hieber, died yesterday at her home, 323 Butler street, Etna. Mrs. Hieber was one of the oldest residents of Etna, where she had resided since early youth.

She was a member of Union Veteran Legion No. 1, Mothers of Democracy of Allegheny County; Service Star Legion of Etna, Ladies of the G. A. R. the First Congregational Church of Etna and the Ladies' Aid Society of that church.

She leaves three daughters, Mrs. George N. Pfaub, Miss Catherine Hieber and Mrs. D. Austin Shaeffer, and three sons, John D., Charles N. and George E. Hieber; one sister and one brother.

• • •

WHAT "COOL-A-GRAMS" ARE:

Cool-a-Grams are short, snappy descriptions of the cool places, services and aids that appear in the "KEEP COOL!" hot weather guide published in this section of the Sun-Telegraph on Sunday, Wednesday and Friday.

1—COOL. . . as a pent-house in Siberia!
2—COOL. . . as a pocket-full of ice!
3—COOL. . . as an Eskimo's nose!
4—COOL. . . as an Arctic breeze!

WHAT COOL-A-GRAMS ARE WORTH TO YOU!

The Sun-Telegraph will pay
ONE DOLLAR

HOW TO SUBMIT COOL-A-GRAMS:

Type or write legibly the Cool-a-Gram you wish to submit on an individual sheet of paper and forward it with your name and address to the COOL-A-GRAM EDITOR, in care of the Sun-Telegraph. You may submit as many Cool-a-Grams as you wish. For each one accepted and published, you will receive a check for one dollar. Employes of the Sun-Telegraph and their relatives are not eligible to enter the Cool-a-Gram contest.

Memory Test

2—Mel Ott, of the Giants, has led the National League in drawing bases on balls the last two years.

3—The Pirates led the National League in batting last year.

5—Paul Derringer, an admittedly high-grade, tough luck pitcher, led the National League in defeats last year with 27.

MEN

IF YOU CAN LEARN TO DO THIS JOB IT WILL PAY YOU $1,800 AND UP A YEAR ACCORDING TO THE SKILL YOU ACQUIRE, PLUS THE WORK YOU PUT INTO IT — THE PAY IS REGULAR AND THERE IS NO COST TO LEARN.

THE ABOVE is a fair statement of the opportunity this company offers to men who have a desire to get into sales work and learn specialty selling, or to those who already have had experience in such work and desire the place where they can use their talent and skill to make for themselves the most money under the most pleasant and favorable conditions and associations.

MOST OF OUR most successful men had no previous selling experience whatsoever, yet after being taught our methods they have changed their entire future outlook from one of wage earning and the limitations of small salary with danger of discharge, to that of prosperous security. Furthermore, these men became bigger and better men in all ways. They have taken a different station in life for themselves and families.

For personal interview call at 201 Law and Finance Building, Thursday, 10 to 3. Men outside of Allegheny County write for appointment.

Girl in the Family

By BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

Susan got up to go with her eye on the mantel clock like a person with a dozen important and pressing engagements for the day. "I can't stay," she said, fastening the worn frogs on her coat. "I just came to let you know that I'm all right and that you mustn't worry about me."

Her aunt put her plump arm around her, the look of puzzlement and worry coming into her face once more. "I can't see any reason in the world why you'd stay at your Anna's house when you know you're as welcome here as Mary or Sara unless you don't really care for us, Susie," she said. "And I know it isn't that. Susan, what is the matter? You certainly can tell me—"

For a flying second Susan was strongly tempted to put her head down upon the comfort and warmth of her aunt's broad motherly bosom and blurt out the whole story to her.

But in that swift second something happened to stop her. They stepped into the hall and there in the corner, hanging on the coat tree, was Mary's scarlet hat, the hat that she had worn the night Susan watched her go up the street beside Allen. And on another branch of the mahogany tree hung Allen's raincoat with a corner of his muffler showing above a pocket. There they were as if the owners had come in from outdoors together and hung them there side by side.

Susan shook her head. "Nothing's the matter," she said firmly. The coat tree was proof enough of her aunt's statement that Allen and Mary had "struck up" a great friendship. It was inevitable that they would do that in this houseful of pleasant kindly people where everything would be made smooth for them. Allen would never be made to feel that he was an intruder here as he had always been made to feel in the Brodericks' house. He would be—undoubtedly, already was—part of the family circle just as Connie had been port of it. Part of the busy happy life of the Cullens, taking part in the games of cards and backgammon, the putting together of jigsaw puzzles, the impromptu concerts that made up their evenings.

Easy for Mary

How easy it would be for Mary to see to it that their friendship deepened into affection, encouraged on all sides by the Cullens, as Susan felt sure it would be. She could tell by the pleased tones of Aunt Nell's voice when she spoke of him that she felt certain he was the very person for Mary.

She opened the front door and stepped out on to the porch. Behind her Aunt Nell's voice seemed to be trying to reach out and hold her. "Do you have to go, Susan? Surely you can stay and have lunch with me. Why, you've just come and now you're running away before you've really told me anything about yourself. . . . Susan, what IS wrong?" She put out her hand and caught Susan by the shoulder. Her eyes were like bright drills trying to get into the girl's mind to find out what actually was the matter.

"Oh, I just feel that I ought to get right away from everybody and work things out alone for myself," Susan said suddenly. This much was the truth at any rate. "You know how I've always wanted a job, don't you? I've always blamed Dad and the rest of the family for holding me back and not letting me get one. And now that they're all gone I've made up my mind to find out whether it was their fault or mine that I'm no good." She opened her gray eyes wide. "I'm not any good. I haven't even been able to find work yet—in all these weeks."

"Have you any money?" Aunt Nell's voice followed her down the front steps. "Now, tell me the truth, Susan."

"Oh, yes." Susan smiled over her shoulder. "Aunt Edna gave me some before she went away. Goodby. I'll come over again soon." And she waved her hand, ending a conversation that had been as unsatisfactory to herself as it had been to Aunt Nell. She could tell by her last glimpse of her aunt's troubled face that she was still mystified, still at a complete loss, concerning her behavior. Well, there was no help for it.

"Susan didn't tell me anything about herself except that she's living with the hired girl that the Brodericks used to have and is looking for some work to do," Aunt Nell told Uncle Arthur that night. "I forgot to ask her about her Mr. Steffen and she never mentioned his name. Maybe that's what's wrong. She may have broken her engagement to him, or perhaps he broke it when he found out there wasn't so much money among the Brodericks as he thought there was."

At bedtime she thought of something else. "I don't remember seeing that headlight of an engagement ring on her finger today," she said thoughtfully, "and if it had been there I would certainly have noticed it.

"Still," she murmured musingly, "even if she has had a quarrel with that fellow it wouldn't explain her staying away from us and going to live on the South Side with a family of foreigners."

Susan Gets Job

It was through old Mrs. Herbst that Susan finally found a position. The old lady read "The Waechter und Anzeiger," and one day she came to Susan with it in her wrinkled hand and pointed her forefinger at an advertisement on the back page.

"It is for somebody to sell the music by the Eagle Store," she explained in her awkward English. "He should nice clean work be, ja?"

"'Girl to sell well-known makes of musical instruments and sheet music. Must have some knowledge of music.'" was the first of the advertisement as Herbst translated it for her.

"You know where the Eagle Store is, don't you?" he asked her.

At 8:30 the next morning she stood in the rain outside the employes' entrance of the store with a little box of lunch under her arm and hope in her heart. She had arrived at the store at 7, and she was first in the line of girls and women who stood waiting at the entrance.

"You'd better take your dinner with you every day." Anna had advised her several days before. "In case you should get a job and go right to work you could not go all day without anything in the stomach. You might faint away, dead like. And if you don't got the job, still you got to eat."

At twenty minutes to nine Susan stood in the employment office on the top floor of the store talking to a sharp-faced young man who was Mr. Morrill, the employment manager. He was asking her questions and she was answering them, trying not to seem too eager.

Yes, she did know something about music. She could play simple things like popular music without much difficulty.

No, she was not married. No, she was not thinking of getting married. . . . No, she had never worked in a music store.

"Well, I'll send you to Mr. Lesser who's in charge of our music department, and see how you get along," Mr. Morrill said when she had answered all of his questions. "I see you have on a black dress. We require all our women employes to wear black. You can go right to work now?"

"Oh, yes!" said Susan breathlessly. Excitement, so keen that it was like happiness, rose in her. She had a job! She had made her start at last!

Learns Boss' History

With feet that felt as if wings were attached to the heels she followed Mr. Morrill's stenographer down to the girls' rest room on the next floor below. She was shown where to put her hat and coat and lunch box and then the girl, a thin-lipped blonde who wore glasses and spoke in a precise clipped fashion, took her past the floor-covering department with its rolls of carpet and linoleum standing on end to the music department, a space hedged in by upright pianos and radios and phonographs in polished wood cabinets.

Mr. Lesser was gray and middle-aged and gentle looking. His eyes were blue and mild behind silver-rimmed spectacles and in all the time that Susan worked for him he never gave her a single order. All day long it was, "Will you please dust the record boxes, Miss Broderick?" or "Would you be so kind as to wait on this lady who is just coming in, Miss Broderick? I must go over to the stock room for a few minutes."

The first morning she came to work he asked her to play a little for him, and he smiled over her rendition of a Waldteufel waltz and "To a Wild Rose." "You will get along all right," he said when she had finished. "Hardly ever do we sell anything here but 10 cent sheet music. You will be able to play it well enough. You will 'get by,' as they say."

By the end of a week he and Susan were old friends and Susan knew his whole history. He had come from Bavaria 30 years before, and he had played the cello in the old Euclid Avenue Opera House until it was torn down. Then he had played in the Orpheum moving picture house until talking pictures came along with their musical accompaniment and there was no longer need of an orchestra at the Orpheum. Since that time he had worked at the Eagle Store. He had a wife, crippled with arthritis, who was in a sanitarium at Santa Rosa, Cal., and he lived alone in half of a small double house that he owned in Trowbridge street a few blocks away from the store.

Sadness Forgotten

Very often at noon she would come back from the girls' rest room where she had eaten her lunch and find him sitting at one of the pianos, swaying from side to side on the bench in time to one of the pieces he was playing—soft lovely things of Schubert or of Chopin. And she could tell by the look on his face that he had forgotten for the moment whatever sadness was in his life.

He belonged to a club, the Germania Turnverein Vorwaerts, and on Monday morning he always told her with great enthusiasm about the sing-out they had had the night before and how much he had enjoyed it.

In this new world of the Eagle Store and the South Side, peopled almost entirely by strangers, she began slowly to stop brooding over the things that had happened in the Center street house during the last few weeks. She stopped thinking a hundred times a day, "If only I had walked out with Allen that night when he wanted me to"—if only I had done everything differently—"

It was all over now, and the thing to do was to look ahead to the new life. Other people—people like poor old Mr. Lesser—had unhappiness, too, and they managed to lead happy and useful lives in spite of it.

"And so can I," thought Susan hardily, "if I just put my mind to it."

Junior Patrol Mail Box

It's as easy as rolling off a log! Think of the good deed you are proudest of since you signed the Junior Patrol pledge. Maybe you ought to read it over again. Right away you'll think of several good deeds you are proud of.

Then sit down and write us a letter—any kind of paper will do—and tell us all about it.

That's all there is to it. And we don't want your letter to be more than 100 words.

Those prizes are worth going after—$2.50, first prize, $1.50, second prize, and $1, third prize.

Those are swell prizes, fellows, so why not write the letter that will win one?

Almost everybody can think of things they need that you could buy or do with that prize money, fellows.

Maybe, for one good deed, you want to put some money in your patrol club treasury. Maybe you would like to do another good deed with the money and help some poor family.

But remember, this week's contest ends Thursday night at midnight. The time is short now, so you had better write that letter right now—today. Got your paper ready? Pencil handy? Let's go!

Send your letter to the Junior Patrol contest, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. And talk it up among your friends who are Junior Patrol members. Only Junior Patrol members can enter this contest, so be sure to put your badge number on your letter, right beside pour name.

Armchair -:- Daily Short Short-Story

By DON ROLLIN

"Stick 'em up, Judge!"

To Judge McKenzie the command was not exactly unexpected. He was sitting in a large, comfortable armchair that stood near the center of the room from which he could not reach a gun.

Judge McKenzie, being a strict and impartial jurist, had enemies, some of them would welcome his death.

There was a pistol in his desk, and another hidden behind the panels of the bookcase. But the man who stood in the long French windows, black and sinister against the night, watched the judge intently to prevent any move. He had heard about this room and he wasn't taking any chances.

"Stick 'em up an' keep 'em high," he ordered as he shut the windows behind him.

The judge, without a change of expression, slowly raised his hands, but the fingers of his right hand circled the arm of the chair before he raised it above his head.

The man with the gun sat down on the edge of the chair facing the judge and leaned forward. His small, beady eyes glittered triumphantly.

"Judge," he said, "I guess you know why I've come."

"Surely," said the judge easily, as if he had been expecting this call. "You've come to kill me. And you're Joe Speri, sometimes known as 'Butcher Boy,' because you do most of the gun work for that gang of Ricco's."

"Huh!" The man with the gun grunted uneasily. He hadn't expected such quick recognition. "Leave Ricco and the gang out of this," he snarled. "And don't be so certain of yourself. You ain't sittin' so easy right now, you know."

The judge looked at Speri. Contempt was in his level gaze. "Ricco sent you, I presume?" he inquired carelessly. He glanced toward the window as though expecting somebody.

Speri nodded savagely. "Right the first time, Judge." His lips twisted into a grin. "Ricco sent me—to do some of that gun work you was speakin' about. "It'll be the easiest job I ever did."

"And also the last, Speri," the judge said quietly.

Speri sat up. "What do you mean?" he sneered.

"Do you see that dial there, Speri?" the judge asked negligently, pointing to a dial set into the wall close above his head. "Well, that dial opens a safe. And in that safe is your end, and the end of all that gang of Ricco's."

Speri stared, his small eyes glittering. "Go on Judge, explain yourself," he said softly. "This is no time for kiddin'."

"Oh, I'm not kidding." Judge McKenzie said easily. "In that safe are the records of every member of your gang. It's information that I've collected during my term on the bench. There's enough evidence to hang the lot of you. I've convicted a few of you—as many as I could—and you want to kill me for that. But by killing me, you're sending yourself to the chair. For the combination to that safe is with the chief of police. And he has instructions to open it—in case of my death."

"Why didn't you use this information before, if you had it?" Speri asked skeptically.

"Because I knew it was better this way," snapped the judge.

"Okay, then open it." The muzzle of the gun was only a few inches from the judge's heart.

For a second the jurist hesitated, then he stepped to the wall and twisted the dial. He smiled, then his hand wavered. He turned and said: "I've forgotten the combination."

"Don't you have it written down?"

"Yes."

"Well, get it."

"It's upstairs."

"Bunk!" scoffed Speri. "Don't try to kid me, Judge. And this is no time for fairy tales. You got about three minutes to live . . . You can say your prayers if you want to."

He stopped. A paroxysm of hatred flexed his face. "How I hate you. . . . Every night for a year in the big house I used to swear that I'd kill you when I got out."

His finger was on the trigger.

The judge blanched, for he felt death was imminent. Again his eyes strayed to the window and this time Speri followed his gaze. A face was pressed against the pane. Speri turned and raced from the room, making for the rear door. As the police squad came through the French window the judge sank weakly back into the chair. He motioned toward the rear. Next came the sound of shots. The squad leader reentered the room where the judge sat. He smiled. "We got him, Judge."

The judge nodded. The squad leader felt under the arm of the chair and tapped the button concealed there. Then he walked to the dial of the "safe," looked at it carefully and exclaimed: "Both alarms worked, judge. The house has been surrounded for the last five minutes."

Return

The years have set their mark upon this place,
The garden has grown sturdy, rooted deep,

The old house wears a milder aspect now
And finch and linnet sing there all the year through.

It almost seems, like old hearts, to have won
To peace and patience, after years of strife,

And we, who have returned for haven, find
Its rooms grown calm, its high walls strong and kind.

SUNDAY NIGHT IN THE HINTERLAND

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat.)

There wasn't any preaching in Nashville Sunday night, twenty young folks couldn't stand to be doing nothing so they all bunched together and went out to hunt watermelons. They visited a patch about two miles north of here and the owner came out with a shotgun and snapped at one fellow who ran all the way to town and was very hot when he got there. The Lauck boy tore a new suit of clothes by climbing through the wire fence.

Dear, Thoughtful Aunt Belle:

Don't you really think, I mean seriously, when you realy sit down to think about things seriously, that the barbaric institution know as the cocktail party is ruining the American constitution?

Apprehensive.

Far, Farther and Farley

Although merely a morning in national sports we knew enough to realize that this prevailure quite prevalent down the back and does the trend little good.

Congress has dissolved in its own earnest perspiration, the tall cyclone are coming again, and still Postmaster Farley fails to unload that patronage on the wharf.

We have not consummated with the national chairman of all that walks, creeps and swims. But patronage is not a thing that should ripen on the vine or wither on the vine. It should be handed out to one and all of the deserving, tired and those who have been tried in the crucible of partisan campaigns.

Still, why shouldn't the Republicans get the gravy? They always have. And why should a little jota like a national repudiation change precedent and hamstring habit?

It doesn't if we can believe the Democrats, who are wailing in the fleecy clouds and bemoaning their ungarnished fate. The House Democrats are openly bitter against Ambassador Farley for his efforts in the wrong behalf.

The Imperial custodians of artistic stamps should have spilled the jobs around a year ago. We know they were held up as a whip over Congress until the President got his bills through the chopper. But now, everything has been accomplished and all are ashore who are going ashore.

So why doesn't Potentate Farley dish out the offices? The thought bombards us with gossamer wings that maybe there are no jobs. Maybe there are, and the ancient incumbents refuse to vacate.

Maybe there is such a thing as Civil Service that keeps the Republicans firmly imbedded to their necks in profitable swivel chairs.

Maybe this and maybe that. Anyway, maybe must be the answer. Irving Berlin wrote a beautiful ballad on that one word. We heard it over the National networks. And we also heard General Farley over the same networks. And not a word did he say about jobs for moody and fearsome Democrats.

Can it be possible that we all went for tickets on Jim, not knowing there were no prizes in the Farley sweepstakes?

San Francisco 'Strike' Must Be Broken as Threat to Peaceful Government

THE San Francisco strike has ceased to be a strike.

The attempt to broaden the issue between the longshoremen and their employers into a general walkout of all organized labor has brought about a situation which threatens the well-being, the livelihood, the health and perhaps the life of every member of the great San Francisco community.

It is a challenge not only to law and order, but to the right of peaceful and law-abiding existence, which is inherent in American citizenship.

It is a defiance of the city of San Francisco and its entire population—an effort on the part of a minority of the community to coerce the majority, by imposed hardship and privation, into obeying the will of an organized minority.

A graver issue could hardly be presented—nor one in which the duty of the community, as such, is clearer!

* * *

THE challenge must be accepted! The issue must be fought out.

Of the outcome, there can be no doubt.

The city of San Francisco will win.

The Communist instigators behind the scenes will be made to realize the gravity of bidding open defiance to the sense of justice and the common right of a great American community.

And—regrettable to be said—the legitimate rights of labor and the sympathy which every American feels with its decent demands will suffer a grievous setback as a consequence of the nation-wide resentment, now being engendered by the folly of labor's leadership.

CERTAIN measures, however, are necessary and must be taken without delay!

The great forces that reside within the community as a whole must be mobilized and placed under a unified direction.

Every service essential to the life of the community must be taken in hand by special corps of citizens representing the best intelligence and directing power within the city. Private pursuits must be laid aside and the most experienced and efficient men in the community must dedicate their abilities to its service and to its rescue from this all-embracing threat.

* * *

ENGLAND gave the world, in 1926, a demonstration of what a great self-respecting community can do in the face of such a threat.

Men, women and student bodies volunteered for service. Food supplies were organized for distribution. A volunteer transport corps was formed. It included even women as truck drivers and was augmented by army and navy transport units. Everyone capable of driving an automobile was asked to enlist.

All transport means were thoroughly organized and there was no food shortage in any part of the country. Volunteers were trained to drive subway and trolley cars and buses.

As the general strike was proclaimed as an attack upon the government, the government therefore organized itself to overcome the strike.

Military guards were provided for the convoying of food. All food in transit was concentrated by authorities and distributed at cost. All monetary disputes were settled by government authority.

WE RECALL the history of this great—and almost instantly effective—resistance, in order to illustrate the steps that must be taken, WITHOUT HESITATION OR DELAY, in combating the San Francisco crisis.

It is a struggle between society and the forces that would disrupt society.

The Communist leaders who are at the bottom of this disorder, and its real source, should be spotted, identified and arraigned. Their evil counsels should be silenced. San Francisco and the state of California should be rid of their presence.

If this is not done, the state of California, despite its advantages and attractions, will be no more fit to live in than Russia under its present Communist domination.

* * *

THE FULLEST SUPPORT must be given to both the STATE AND MUNICIPAL AUTHORITIES in whatever they do to vindicate the rights of the public.

And both the state and municipal governments must give the fullest support to the decent and loyal elements in the community—for it is the latter, with their preponderance in numbers, weight and influence, who will determine the outcome.

It is the self-respecting and straight thinking Americans in San Francisco who will prevail in this argument.

Lined up with them are all the latent forces of society, and properly directed, these are irresistible.

This it is which foredooms a "general strike" to failure—failure which is inevitable!

FROM THE STRIKER'S STANDPOINT—IT IS SUICIDE!

Fair Play for Ex-Convicts

It Is Not the Duty of the Police to Keep Them From Getting Jobs

A man entered the editorial office of the Sun-Telegraph yesterday, approached a member of the staff, and asked:

"Do you know who I am?"

"Yes," was the reply, "you were one of the bandits in a hold-up story that I covered some years ago."

"Right. Well, as you know, I was convicted, and served a term in the penitentiary. Since I got out I've been going straight. But the police won't let me alone. I've been working for John Doe & Co. during the last year. But last Thursday night a policeman that knew me when I got into trouble saw me on the street, picked me up and questioned me. When he found out where I was working he went to the store and told them of my record. The result was that I have been fired. It's the fourth time that this has happened. What can I do about it?"

We do not believe, as this man supposes, that the police have been causing him to lose his jobs because of a malicious delight in persecuting him. We think it is more likely that they consider it their duty to warn employers that they have in their employ a man who was once convicted of robbery.

But it is not their duty in a case like this, where the criminal has paid the penalty and there is no evidence that he has been dishonest since his release from prison.

The police are doing society a disservice when they prevent a reformed bandit from working at an honest job.

Furthermore, fair-minded employers will take pains to study the individual case before resorting to dismissal.

'Thumbers' Under Ban

"Hitch-Hiking" Is Unlawful, and There Is Danger in the Practice.

Twenty-five "thumbers" who begged rides of motorists entering Philadelphia were arrested there yesterday, charged with violation of a city ordinance.

Simultaneously the Governor's Committee on Street and Highway Safety issued a report calling attention to the fact that it is unlawful to solicit a ride and urging drivers to make it "thumbs down" for "thumbers."

Uncharitable as the recommendation seems to be, there are good reasons for it. "Hitch-hikers" have become so aggressive that they sometimes take a stand in the road, thus risking their own safety and the safety of others. This is one of the prime motives for asking motorists to ignore those who beg rides.

It is also to be borne in mind that "hitch-hikers" of both sexes may be criminals who will hold up the accommodating motorist and perhaps even steal his car. It has often happened.

Another thing to be considered is that a driver is responsible for the safety of his passengers, and in case of an accident would be subject to a damage suit for any injury suffered by a "hitch-hiker" whom he was helping with a lift.

The advice to pay no attention to "thumbers" is good advice.

These Modern Eves

Superior Education of Wives Is Found to Cause Domestic Unhappiness

Dr. Paul Popenoe, director of the Los Angeles Institute of Family Relations, spoke on marriage before the American Home Economic Association.

He said very few men visited his institute in search of wives, but the husband-hunting women were numerous.

Then he said, in regard to marriage failures:

"The superior education of wives is a frequent cause of breaks. No matter how successful the husband may be financially, the wife has, in general, a superiority complex toward him."

The dominating female continues to nab her man and then to "henpeck" him.

And the only avoidance for the male of the species is to follow his grandfather's advice about women—

New Deal Goes Wordy

Meet "Sanitize" and "Ultracodex."

The New Deal is making a New Language.

Proceeding from the A B C stage of NRA and its alphabetical progeny, Washington has reached the world-manufacturing stage. "Sanitize," for example, means putting sanity and sanitation in business. "Ultracodex" means to exceed a Code Authority.

The Medicine Man

(Copyright, 1934.)

As a matter of fact, though, one glance at Old Doctor Europe himself will tell us that his medicines are not going to do us any good.

Developments in Germany Postpone War Danger

By James T. Williams, Jr.

WHATEVER danger there was of war in Europe has probably been postponed five years by the course of recent events in Germany.

This is the belief expressed in reports to the State, War and Navy Departments since the executions without trial in Germany opened the eyes of the world to the fact that Germany today is a house divided against itself.

Because of the division the belief is held that domestic problems will immobilize the Germans on the home front for the next five years and lessen by so much the probability of war between Germany and France, with the repercussions which the renewal of that historic feud would threaten.

Evidently this is the point of view of the English government. It has turned from Berlin to Paris in its diplomatic maneuvers, and Sir John Simon, the British minister of foreign affairs, appears again to be working for closer relations with France.

This is no new experience for Sir John. He seems always to have preferred to promote an Anglo-French entente to improving relations between London and Berlin or doing anything constructive to promote Anglo-American relations.

This is no new game for British diplomats of the Sir John Simon school. It is an old game at which they have long shown themselves to be most adept. Their search is always for a powerful European ally. Had the German people shown increasing solidarity at home they might have expected increasing attention from British diplomacy. But the breakup of the Germans at home and the probability that home troubles will increasingly occupy the attention of whatever German government can survive the storm, has been quickly followed by a series of conversations between British and French officials, and the cunning hand of Sir John Simon seems to be steering British diplomacy toward a closer working agreement with France and her allies.

* * *

The Same Old Game Of Diplomacy

IT IS the same old story of the balance of power. Europe has not been changed by the League of Nations or the League Court or any of the other branches of "the evil thing with a holy name." European politics after the war does not differ greatly from European politics before the war. It is a play on the part of the great powers for position, a striving on the part of each to maintain an advantageous balance of power, based on secret agreements and understandings and supported by armed force.

European diplomacy today is running its traditional course and that course only serves to emphasize the wisdom of the American people in refusing to ratify the Treaty of Versailles, or to enter the League of Nations either by the front door of the League Covenant or the back door of the League Court.

The only disarmament in which the dominant powers of Europe are really interested in today is disarmament of Germany by force and of the United States by intrigue.

President Roosevelt began his administration by prevailing on the Congress to begin the upbuilding of our Navy to equality with the strongest. Immediately the European effort for a new conference was revived. The main purpose of the London exchange about the Navy appears to be to find some way of halting the upbuilding of the American Navy.

* * *

Geneva Conference Is Fruitless

MEANTIME, the Geneva Conference on land armaments has broken down. It has broken down because the only disarmament in which that conference is interested in is keeping Germany disarmed and in keeping the national defense forces of the United States below strength, and both these things have been done.

How long the Roosevelt Administration will be willing to continue its participation in the farcical proceedings at Geneva or the tricky conversations at London only time will tell. What is certain, however, is that if President Roosevelt should tomorrow send a cablegram to Geneva calling home the American delegation and another to London recalling Norman Davis, he would tremendously gratify a majority of the American people. This majority is opposed to submitting to any more European sapping expeditions against our national defense camouflaged as "world disarmament."

This majority holds with George Washington, that "to be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace," and that to keep out of all entangling political alliances is the only road to American security.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, July 18.—Crack copy writers of the big advertising agencies have become most temperamental of all who live by the pen. Every star of importance has his own de luxe paneled office, often sound proofed, to get away from it all and think up slogans that will grip the world.

They are petted in their moods like divas of the opera. Any one of the top notchers doubles the income of any two best-selling novelists. Some of them fly to confer with their clients in super personally-owned planes and often live in petit-Trianons dotting the New England landscapes.

Chicago has been the incubating ground of a quartet of ad men who have made salary history in their industry—O. B. Winters, Lee Maxwell, Phil Lennen and Art Kudner. Their yearly incomes, along with about a dozen more, run well into six figures, and all have amassed fortunes.

Expert copy writing has its artistry in brevity. A single line must often tell a story that has several dozen angles. It looks easy—indeed a cinch. Yet thousands are working at it every day but the percentage who attain higher brackets is small.

* * *

I talked to an investor with the usual miseries today. He said the only railroad stock he had not purchased was that of the Long Island, telling an impetuous salesman airily that "the road didn't go anywhere." He now wishes he had not been so fresh.

* * *

Theodore Dreiser, next to Irvin Cobb, is New York's most indefatigable window shopper. On increasingly rare visits from his country place he lumbers about with the lost air of ship officers, most of whom, incidently, are window shoppers, standing before this window and that totally unconscious of the gawkers who invariably clot on the sidelines. Dreiser walks, like everything he does, with a ponderosity. At times he seems to be charging an imaginery football line.

* * *

I was drawn into a movie the other day by a lobby poster announcing Buster West. Here is a performer who has lifted slap-stick into realm of sheer artistry. His loose, uneven and lazy walk across the stage takes on the fascination of a stalking panther. His timing in absurd falls or postures has a gracefulness suggesting a Nijinsky float through the air. West's buffoonery is out of the lowest comedy cliches, but there's a feeling one is watching a master. Chaplin has similar technique. Also Jimmy Savo. West used to be tossed around by his father, like still another Buster, Buster Keaton, in standard vaudeville days. All have something—these hardened troupers—that shines through jovial commonness.

* * *

Sophie Tucker's metier is long outmoded. Her songs belong to an era entirely gone, her delivery is barbed with vulgarity and Sophie, herself, is no candidate for a beauty prize. Yet so robust are her jags of clangour and so superb her sense of showmanship, she never fails to put over her chanty and bring down the house. It is not specious press agentry but has brought London, Paris and New York to their collective feet cheering. I have beheld the phenomena in all three cities. Amid her rowdy brawlings, something of her kindly generosity and loyalty to friends must go over the footlights. Another successful slambang singer is Blossom Seely.

* * *

Blossom Seely's husband and stage partner, Benny Fields, is also a performer whose fervor sparks contagion. He is, so far as careful records determine, the first crooner, wah-wahing in a Chicago saloon back room when Rudy Vallee was Hubert Whatshisname in whatyoucallems at a Maine crossroads.

* * *

Strictly tailored suits for women are creeping into every wardrobe and fashion experts expect the revival to reach a furore by fall. The most accomplished of tailored ladies to my notion are Madge Evans, Katherine Cornell and Julia Hoyt. In her day the show girl Dolores, now reported ill in London, was always smartly turned out in precisely garmented ensembles, never without a lapel rose. Still another perfect model for tailored effects is Billie Dove.

* * *

I dined at Ben Riley's last night with a learned gentleman with a passion for palaver. He plunged with keen analysis into the enormous intricacies of economics, winding up with a plea not to be quoted. His secret is safe. Even though I knew what he was talking about I'd say nothing.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Has Your Job a Present?

For the last 30 years we Americans have believed that the first question to ask about a job was—

"HAS IT A FUTURE?"

But its future is actually the least important thing about any job. The vital matter is—

"HAS THIS JOB A PRESENT? WHAT WILL IT DO FOR ME AND TO ME—TODAY?"

What are you trying to find when you take a job? You are trying to find—Life. No matter who you are, or what your job, you are looking for a larger and livelier Life. But what do you mean by Life? Do you mean THINGS? Do you think you can find Life in houses, automobiles, fine clothes?

At first, when you were young and ignorant, you believed that these things meant Life. Remember when you bought that wrist watch out of your first pay check? You were sure that everything would be changed—somehow glorified—if you could only possess that wrist watch.

Then you did possess it. And, after the first thrill, nothing was changed at all! Within a few days the wrist watch was just another gadget—and you were facing the same old feeling of dreariness within yourself.

So you learned the first and most important lesson about Life—that it's the INSIDE FEELING, not the OUTSIDE THING, that counts.

YOUR OWN FEELINGS MAKE LIFE

Your own feelings are all the Life you will ever have. They are all the reward you will get out of any job. You my EARN a million dollars by terrific sacrifice and struggle, but if you don't FEEL LIKE A MILLION after you get it, of what use will that million be to you?

Since that is so, how utterly idiotic is our notion that the present should be sacrificed for the sake of some remote future gain! For there plainly can be no "future" that will mean anything, if you starve emotionally in the interval.

America is filled with the horrid spectacle of men who have made just such bad bargains, and who now can see and feel nothing but the glitter and jangle of the money in their own pockets. Of all dreary forms of suicide, theirs is the worst!

Yet these men are honestly bewildered by the failure of their own lives. They have played the game according to the rules—why hasn't it worked? Maybe they didn't choose the right job. As a matter of fact, they didn't even try to choose the right job. They didn't choose a job because they liked the job for itself, or because it fitted their own tastes and tempo. They choose the job for its "future"—swapping eagerness and delight, pride and peace for cold cash.

BIG BUSINESS IS FILLED WITH BITTER BROKERS WHO WOULD HAVE BEEN BLISSFUL BUTCHER BOYS.

But the brokerage business is supposed to have a future, and the butchering business hasn't. So, willy nilly, young Jimmy Jones goes Wall street.

And that—in case you happen to be wondering—is why we are where we are today. We may still be the richest and most powerful nation on earth, but what good does it do us? And what a lot more fun our unambitious grandad had, ploughing fields, peddling pots, cobbling shoes and building boats BECAUSE THEY LIKED IT, than we do, passing up happy wheelbarrows for high-hat Rolls Royces.

So don't ask what a job holds in the future. Ask, rather, what it will do for you in the present. How much richer will it make your life as you go along? How much will it add of fun and friendliness? What does it hold to excite your curiosity, challenge your courage, add to your interests?

Will it enlarge your LIFE or will it just distend your pocketbook? Will you FEEL more if you take it, or will you merely EARN more?

Dare to seek a job with that attitude, and you'll find far more than work or income. You'll discover Yourself and your World—and Life. And whether you hold that job for a day or a year—YOU'LL HAVE LIVED EACH DAY TO THE BRIM.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Women Are So Surprising!

A woman is always SURPRISING a man!

* * *

It's a "surprise" to him when she falls in love with him—no matter what he has done to try to MAKE her love him. No matter how long he has chased her, he is always "surprised" when she catches him.

And it's a Bigger Surprise to him, when she falls OUT of love with him—no matter what cause he has given her to distrust him and no matter how long he has kept her guessing, hoping and waiting.

* * *

Nowadays, many lovers seem to be very strong on "petting," as it is amusingly called, but exceedingly chary and shy about committing themselves to anything so serious as real love.

* * *

But even in these times, when women seem so easily pleased, the average girl wants only genuine love. And a modern girl wants marriage, a home and a husband just as much as her mother and her grandmother did, no matter how good a job she holds down nor how brave an imitation of the Goddess of Liberty she may put up.

These laggard lovers, who go on for heavy dates and heavy love-making, but surround themselves with fortifications, gas masks and alibis, may fill a girl's spare time for a while; but her eye is always on the lookout for Romeo or Lochinvar or somebody who is not quite so uncertain of his fluttering affections.

* * *

And when Dobbin or Romeo walks off with the gal, the Don Juan lover who thought he had an option on her is aggrieved, shocked and SURPRISED. He "never thought she'd let him down, like that!"

* * *

After marriage, it's very much the same. A woman's love, like a cat, is supposed to have nine lives. No matter what a man may do to kill it, from eating onions and getting fat to grouching, flirting or getting sarcastic, he is always "surprised" when he discovers that her love is dead, cold and laid out for burial.

Oh, yes, a woman is constantly surprising a man. But it is safe to bet that the greatest "surprise" of the average man's life is when he finds himself standing at the altar, saying "I DO!"

Text for Today

II Samuel, xxiii:3.

The God of Israel said, the Rock of Israel spake to me, He that ruleth over men must be just, ruling in the fear of God.
